DIFT FOR THE FAT. Sugar and Starchy Foods Are to be Avoided.

It is popularly believed that all fat persons are gross feeders, but this is not true; indeed, the reverse is often the case. Obesity may be a disease, or rather a prominent symptom of one, the trouble being with the internal chemistry of nutrition—a disease of metabolism, as it is called. It is comparable to dispetes, nearly related to it. ism, as it is called. It is comparable to diabetes—nearly related to it, in fact. In this disease sugar is formed in excess in the system even when very little is taken with the food, and so in besity there is a tendency to the formation of fat in the body, even if little fat forming food is eaten. In most cases much can be done by a regulation of the diet. The amount of meat should not be increased, but the quantity of sugar and starchy foods should be reduced, their place being taken by non-starchy vegetables, such as spinach, cauliflower and salads. The foods to be avoided or taken in great moderation are those which contain much starch, such as rice and potatoes and all sweets—pies, puddings and candy. Tea and coffee should be taken without sugar, if taken at al, and chocolate should be omitted entirely. Bread is fattening, but for most persons it seems an indispensable article of diet. Its amount can, however, be limited, and it should be toasted.

Fats are less harmful than sugar and starch, and may be allowed in moderation in the form of butter and salad oil.

oil. The belief that the drinking of water makes fat is erroneous. If one eats juicy fruits, such as apples and grapefruit, and abandons the use of sugar, there will be a natural reduction in the amount of water taken, but one should drink all that is needed to quench the thirst.—Youth's Companion.

The Blackheath Branch of the Women's Institute assembled at the home of Mrs. John Martindale on Wednesday, July 14, with thirty-three ladies in attendance. The President opened the meeting, and all joined in singing. After the reading and adoption of the minutes of the last meeting the gathering was entertained by a pretty instrumental by Miss Winnie Moore. Miss Jennie Blaire, district delegate, gave a detailed report of the annual convention of the Women's Institute, which broadened the members' knowledge of Institute work in the country. Mrs. Irvine Berry gave a splendid synopsis of a popular book, "Jane Eyre," which proved decidedly interesting. AIRSHIP TOYS

CHRISTMAS TRADE ANNOUNCE. MENTS ALREADY OUT.

An Elaborate Layout of "Teddy in Africa," With Camp Followers, Jointed Animals, Tents and Scenery—Floating Toys Shown Many Novel Designs.

Christmas toys of this year have already been planned. They will reflect in many forms the general interest that has attached during the last six months to attempts at navigating the air. Samples are now being shown by importers agents. One of the novelties is an aerial po liceman mounted on an aeroplane, with dangling legs, in his movable right arm a drawn sword and his left arm stiffly extended in the direction of the malefactor he has spotted. The policeman is a favorite figure and in the toys this year he will be found following and bestriding aeroplanes and airships. The German toy makers impartially follow both Zeppelin and the Wrights.

The fact that Roosevelt has gone ahunting in Africa is responsible for a pretentious toy an American house has got out, "Teddy's Adventures in Africa" can be faithfully or imaginatively followed by the lad who gets one of these. Jointed and indestructible toy representations are furnished of Roosea drawn sword and his left arm stiffly

They have the new elbow and knee joint, so that they may be posed kneeling to shoot, sitting on horseback, lolling on the ground, etc. Some of the larger sets add a choice variety of figures of Africans to portray the remainder of the party. There are also jointed animals, rhinoceroses, hippopotamuses, elephants, giraffes, lions, hyenas, warthogs and the like. There are tents, flags, horses and camels and standards from which the captured game carcasses may be suspended. Sections of African scenery lithographed on muslin and mounted on folding wood frames are also sold with these sets.

New things in aquatic floating toys are to be shown. There are swans, ducks and fish that are wound up by clockwork, and thus propelled speed about quite naturally and gracefully. There is a whale that tosses a stream several feet into the air as it plows through the water. A tin to inventors is given in the a whale that tosses a stream several feet into the air as it plows through the water. A tip to inventors is given in the hydroplane, a boat propelled by aerial screws, moving on the surface of the water. Submarines are presented in new forms. One modelled after the actual submarine floats on the surface for a short distance, then dives, proceeds under water for a way and then bobs up to the surface. A new model is that of a fire engine, under the management of a uniformed man on the bridge, which has an automatic pump that spurfak a stream of water in any desired direction. A collapsible water tank in which these toys may be floated is another of the season's new things. It has a valve at the bottom by means of which the water may be let out, the tank folded up and put away in a box.

Among the new metal toys for street sale is a motor car with a door that may be opened, an armored motor with a gun in front so fixed that it may be trained in any direction and a street car with a conductor.

By pressing a small lever on one side of the toy the hen moves toward the egg opens and a small chicken appears. Several novelties are shown in the way of miniature moving picture devices, and these toys are booked as big sellers. These are nearly all models of the various motion picture machines in general use and are real practical toys.

In recent years American manufacturers have been taking away a part of the big trade of Nuremburg in the making of wooden playthings, and so far have found very few rivals in the field of electrical toys. The present great popularity of postcards, which from a fad has become one of the staple businesses of the country, has led to the putting on the market of various stereopticon devices that reproduce the natural colors of the cards and do away with the expensive slides which have made magic lanterns slow sellers.

There are many forms of children's banks on the market. One of the oddest is a keyless bank of copper moulded in basket shape. As each coin is dropped in it is registered on the face of the bank. It automatically opens whenever $5 in silver has been deposited. It will hold several times that much, but can be opened only on $5 or its multiple.—

GALVESTON'S SEA WALL

Saved It From Being Destroyed by Great Storm. The Wall is a Gigantic Mass of

Marble and Concrete. Ten Lives Lost at Tarpon Pier-

Other Damage Done.

Galveston, Texas, July 22.—Galveston has successfully withstood a repetition of the storm of 1900 (when a tidal wave surfaced the island city, taking a toll of lives counted in the thousands, and causing a property loss counted in millions of dollars), without the loss of a single life in Galveston, and a property loss trivial in comparison. To the sea wall alone is attributed the fact that the city is standing to-day. In the vicinity o is standing to-day. In the vicinity of Galveston tne loss of life as a result of the storm is placed at ten, members of a fishing party at Tarpon Poer, several miles in the Gulf. The total property loss is estimated at $100,000.

Finished but four years ago, at a cost of $2,000,000, by the Government and Galveston county, the sea wall, a gigantic mass of marble and concrete, stands 17 feet high and 17 feet thick at the base, and gradually sloping at the top, yesand gradually sloping at the top, yes-terday successfully withstood the on-slaughts of the raging Gulf, as white-capped wave after wave was hurled against it. Whether or not this mass of construction was damaged by the action of the water can only be told when the of the water can only be told when the waters of the Gulf finally fall back to Galveston Beach will have to be rebuilt. When the sea wall was constructed the encircling band of concrete and steel was laid to the rear of the bath houses, and below the beach stretched out 1,000 feet to the water. Between the water line and the wall were the two louses, and below the beach stretched out 1,000 feet to the water. Between the water line and the wall were the two bath houses, Murdock's and the Breakers, constructed in recent years at a cost of $25,000 each. These were swept away and scattered the nine-mile length of Galveston Island. A mile to the west and at the end of the sea wall boulevard, unscratched, stands the new surf bath house, completed at a cost of $40,000. Standing on piling driven as deep as those supporting the sea wall, this new hotel and resort successfully withstood the onslaught of the Gulf, and to-day is the only thing standing between the water line and the wall.

Working throughout the night by the light of lanterns, piledrivers worked at each end of the mile trestle spanning Galveston Bay between the island and mainland, and by midday to-day the breach caused by a drifting barge will have been repaired and traffic restored to the island.

Until this is done Galveston will be isolated from the mainland, and this is the only bridge, and no launch wilk attempt to cross the rolling bay.

Tarpon's fishing pier, where occurred the only loss of life thus far reported, is at the end of a narrow and rocky promontory, which sheers into the deep gulf. Waves sweeping the hotel from the summit of the rocks cast ten persons into the water, and they drowned.

THE BUNYAN MEMORIAL. Westminster to Have a Rich Window in His Honor. It is somewhat of a surprise when one comes to think of it, that England's shrine of her greatest dead contains no monument of the man whose writing, next perhaps to the Bible and Shakespeare, has most profoundly affected the thought and aspirations of English speaking people the world over.

Even that statement, broad as it is, says the Outlook, does not cover the whole of John Bunyan's influence. The "Pilgrim's Progress" has been translated into almost every language and has thus passed into the general literature of the world. In respect of his influence upon religious thought Bunyan's masterpiece may be said to have influenced the thought of English speaking peoples far more profoundly than Milton's "Paradise Lost" and to rival that great epic as

The movement to place a Bunyan The movement to place a Bunyan memorial in Westminster was been n by Dr. Clifford as president of the Baptist World Alliance, but the request he drew up has been signed by leading men in all denominations and walks of English life and the request for the admission of such monument or memorial in the venerable Abbar for the admission of such monument or memorial in the venerable Abbey has been granted by the Dean. For example, she renounced the Protestant religion, and became a Roman Catholic. How far she was justified in doing so there was some room for difference of opinion. But she has also been in the habit since her marriage of attending bull fights, and we can well understand that such exhibitions were repugnant to one brought up as she had been. At the last one she attended the sights were so revolting that a desire to bring the horrors of the bull ring as a national sport to an end has become, we are told, a fixed purpose. She has caused to be revived the memory of the fact that Queen Isabella, when she returned from conquering the Moors, declared that it was her wish to abolish bull-fighting as a cruel sport, which she asserted, had been introduced by the Paynim Moors, and which was unworthy of a Christian race. If the Spaniards of to-day are reminded that the queen whose memory they adore was only prevented by her death from putting down the cruel sport, it is hoped that they may allow their present queen to make it at least unfashionable for ladies to attend on such sights.

Bull-fighting has so long been a national sport in Spain that it will be difficult to put a stop to it, but if the Spaniards have any regard for their queen they should respect her wishes. We trust that Queen Victoria will have firmness enough to persevere in her lumanitarian desire till it is accomplished. She has already succeeded in putting an end to duelling.—Dominion Presbyterian.
