Address by Dr. Robertson

At the Wood Memorial Hall yesterday afternoon Dr. Robertson addressed the Superintendents of Education, members of Board of Education, teachers and children in training.

The Premier took the chair and introduced Dr. Robertson in a brief speech, expressing the hope that Dr. Robertson would do something to stimulate the better training of our school children.

Dr. Robertson expressed appreciation at the attendance of teachers, who had put in a day's work at toil, "which takes it out of one." In Canada teachers gave much more than they received. That was their contribution to civilization. Teachers, of course, worked for a living, often at poor remuneration, but he had scant respect for those who worked only for a living. Their proper ambition should result in progress. He had seen a community living in the twentieth century whose stage of progress was the sixteenth century. In birth and blood they were of the best that England produced in that country. But they had no schools among them. They did not support teachers to work among them. They were the crackers of the South, who neglected one of the fundamental occupations which were worth while in the progress of the world. There were only three fundamental occupations: by

Brain and Nerves
Must be properly fed
If you expect to do
Successful, money-making work.
The law of cause and effect Dominates everything.

one man obtained the fruits of the earth; by the second he obtained a home; by the third he trained up the young to continue and advance the other two. But schools were not the only means of training. In fact they covered but a small part of it. Many a man and woman was well educated who had never been at school. The man takes a man's part in gathering the fruits of the earth, and the woman a woman's part in making a home comfortable. Such were educated. They would do better by knowing how to read, write and cipher, but after all, these formed but a small part in training, and were not qualifications which mattered most. By curbing the activities of children, keeping them cooped up and quiet in a schoolroom and grinding away at the three R's, schools often did more harm than good. Teachings was not telling merely. If it was, phonographs would make better and cheaper teachers. Teaching was a profession requiring much ability, deftness and knowledge to utilize the activities of children in giving expression to what was in him. The activities of the hand and eye improved the motor faculties of the brain. The making of things gave the mastery of hand, eye and brain. The comparing of things improved judgment. The exercise of the faculties gave confidence and a mastery over self and surroundings. In England the Minister of Education prided himself on the extraordinary increase in the number of centres where children were brought from schools around to be trained at the manual bench, the school kitchen, and in the school garden. In Canada they had taken up the work by the generosity of Sir M. MacDonald, introduced a number of English manual trainers, trained their own teachers, and now centres where these three forms of activities engage the attention of children have been established all over Canada. The children are keener and more attentive. School attendance has become more regular quite voluntarily, and children learn to read in one third the time they used to take. These things were worth while. They captured the children and made them capable of taking their part in the world. Following the address a few words by Dr. Curtis and Messrs. Burke and Blackall brought the meeting to a close with a vote of thanks.

IN THE BRITISH HALL.

At night Dr. Robertson addressed a public meeting under the presidency of the Governor. Many farmers were present and there was a good attendance. His Excellency introduced Dr. Robertson in an eloquent and stimulating address, pointing out that whatever attractiveness the discovery of gold might have had in Australia, Africa and elsewhere, the sole and enduring prosperity of the people depended on the working of the land. Dr. Robertson expressed appreciation at his reception in Newfoundland. It was a splendid place to live in. If they enjoyed sunshine for the rest of the year as he had enjoyed during his visit, they had no room for complaint, not even about agriculture. For after all what was agriculture but the catching of sunshine and bottling it up in the plant and using it in the body by consuming the plant.

Agriculture was not merely a question of land. The latter was but a root hole, where the ground was scratched, fertilized a bit, giving the plant a little food, but in the main it was a mere standing place where the plant could have room to spread and get sunshine and obtain most of its nourishment from the air; particularly was this so in regard to potato plants. Agriculture was the ripping and loosening; harrowing, finding good standing room for the plant. It was true culture for man, too. It was not the sham culture of varnish to hide defect, white shirt to cover an unhandy body. Culture was ability to do things and to obtain things. In Newfoundland, he was informed, there were 90,000 acres of land under culture. This gave $3,500,000 worth of produce annually. By better cultivation this should be doubled. This could not be done in one year or two years. As to potatoes, for which the soil and climate were particularly suitable, more attention should be paid to the seed. They should make their own seed by selecting medium sized potatoes with eyes not too deep. If the eyes were deep and the eyes were cut out and the potato peeled, quite one-third the potatoes were thrown to the pigs. The pigs got the most nutritious part of the potato, and the refuse in the centre was eaten by men. The most nutritious part of the potato was about the eyes, where food was packed for the next year's plant by Nature. The next in value for nutrition was that immediately under the skin; the least nutritious was the centre of the potato. The Irish, who boiled potatoes in their skins, got most value out of them and used them most economically. As to canker, Dr. Robertson gave a most impressive warning. As canker had a hold, if there was any carelessness now and canker spread generally, then God help the land for potato growing. In England it was regarded so seriously that a potato grower who failed to notify the authorities of the disease was punished by fine or imprisonment. It was the worst possible disease that could attack potatoes. It was worse than the disease

Children Had Eczema

Treatment prescribed had no effect—
DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made thorough cure.
Mrs. Oscar Vancott, St. Antoine East, writes: "I have four children. One son, while nursing, broke out with a rash which soon covered his head and around the ears. Many salves were prescribed to no effect. The child's head became a mass of scabs and he suffered agony untold. He became weak and frail and would not eat and we thought we would lose him. 'Providentially we heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and it soon thoroughly cured him. He is seven years old now and strong and well. An older boy was also cured of eczema by this Ointment and we hope more people will learn about it so that their little ones may be saved from suffering.' As a cure for eczema and itching skin disease there is no treatment to be compared to Dr. A. W. Chase's Ointment. 23 cents a box, at all dealers of Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. Dr. Chase's Recipes sent free.

that caused the potato famine in Ireland, and every effort should be made to stamp it out. It was so insidious in its spread that the spores were often carried from a diseased field to a healthy one on the boots of a man walking from one to the other.

In regard to hay, he thought insufficient clover was grown here. It improved the feed for cattle and the sod ploughed in was as good as a coating of manure. As to horses, he advised that the breed imported be no larger. A small breed was most suitable for local farming conditions. He recommended greater attention to poultry and pig raising. He believed in agricultural societies, competitions, prize giving with explanations of the merits in which the award was made. He had great faith in travelling teachers of agriculture, who knew their business and could do things and show how they were done and why done in a particular way. He also enlarged on garden cities, school gardens, manual training and domestic science teachings, and hoped that a means would be devised whereby some Newfoundland teachers could attend the MacDonald Donald and obtain thorough training in these practical and effective methods of educating children. This college was built out of $3,000,000 entrusted to him by Sir William MacDonald, who had also endowed it with $2,000,000. In conclusion he hoped that Newfoundland and Canada would, as partners of the Empire, not as members of the Dominion Confederation, be able to help one another.

The Premier moved a vote of thanks which was carried by acclamation.

Lady Cuts Her Hand.

While cleaning the glass at her residence, New Gower Street, Saturday, Miss Minnie Duggan met with a painful accident. She accidentally broke a pane of the glass, and her right hand was cut severely near the wrist, the arteries being severed. A relative applied a ligature stopping the flow of blood and then took the young lady to Dr. A. Tait's surgery where the severed veins were sewn together and proper treatment administered. Miss Duggan stood the painful ordeal without flinching.

Banking News by the S.S. Portia

No bankers have arrived on the West Coast since the first captain baiting. The two Hollets, of Burn, who were in on the second trip of captain baiting, had 400 and 300 qtrs. respectively, and their fares were very much exaggerated in the reports given of them. The Hollets went right around the island. All the bankers are now down at the Labrador and will finish the voyage there.

Mrs. J. W. Caldwell who had been visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. N. Phillips, of Chappel, returned here by the Portia yesterday.

Not Yet Returned.

The man James Dillon, who was reported missing to the police Sunday night, has not yet turned up at his home on Signal Hill Road, and his wife and family are very anxious about him. The police made strict enquiries but could find no trace of him, but one of the members of the force says he saw the man on A. J. Harvey & Co's. premises while the Borna was taking cargo there Saturday afternoon. The man is a fisherman and might have gone to work on the ship just before she left and may not have had time to send a message to his family. Mrs. Dillon, however, says that this cannot be correct as her husband was home with his week's money and had tea with his family, leaving his house again shortly after 9 o'clock. Friends searched for him yesterday but without avail. He might, however, have gone on the ship after quitting his residence, and a message will be sent to Halifax to-day after the ship arrives to ascertain if he is on board the vessel.

LATER.

Since writing the above a message has been received from Halifax stating that James Dillon had arrived at that port on the Borna.

A search party has set out from York Harbor to try to locate them.

Grocer Seriously Hurt

Mr. Walter Kennedy, grocer, of Springdale Street, while driving to Steer's wharf to put provisions on board a craft this morning, was thrown from the express by accident and fell heavily to the ground. He was cut badly about the forehead, and his left arm coming under him was badly hurt also. Dr. Cowperthwaite, to whom he went, put his arm in splints as some of the small bones are broken. The limb is so seriously injured that he had to go to Hospital to have the X-rays put on it for examination.

Leg Cut Off.

Saturday evening at Sydney a lad named Breven, a resident of Port aux Basques, aged 17 years, met with a terrible accident. He was working on a ballast train from which he fell when the wheels of one of the cars went over his right leg, cutting it off just below the knee, while all the toes were severed on the left foot. Passengers by yesterday's train say he was rushed to the hospital, and when the Bruce left Sunday morning he was in a precarious condition.

Child's Narrow Escape

A little girl, 3 years old, narrowly escaped being killed by a loaded train on Bambrick Street this forenoon. The horse knocked her down, but fortunately the driver saw her in time to haul in his horse. Had the wheels gone over her she would have been crushed to death. She was cut about the face.
