"The next morning I was unable to rise from my bed. They sent for the picture, however, and said it would be framed that same day and sent immediately over to the Palais de l'Industrie. In the afternoon Harry dropped in to see how I was, and before he left promised that he would go round next day and see if it had been sent.

"'Well, Harry, has it been sent in?"
"'Sent in,' he gasped. 'Well, no, I should say not. It's sold. Don't you hear it; it's sold. By jove!

FUN, FACTS AND FICTION

A Judicious Compound of Wit and Wisdom.

At Mumbles Head, Wales, a crowd awaited at the church for the arrival of a bridal party. After a long delay the bride-groom's friends went to the house of the bride to see why she did not come. They were warned oft, and found that the bride's parents, being opposed to the match, had, after she was diessed for the ceremony, locked her in her room while one of the family mounted guard at the door and threatened to shoot any one who approached. The wedding was posponed.

"Harry came in shortly afterward, and said he had been with me until after 1 o'clock, and he was afraid from the way I acted that I was going to be sick. He thought so at the cate and followed me home, keeping a short distance behind me so I shouldn't notice him.

"He now asked me if he hadn't better call in a doctor, adding that he knew one he thought would come for nothing.

"If I had continued, my friend, to keep his up all might yet have been well, but I lon't suppose it was longer than the course of two or three days when, feeling myself stronger, all my good resolutions were for gotten, and again absorbed in the intense fever of my purpose I threw aside all restraint, and again gave myself over to the old life of unremitting toil.

"I remember well the day my picture was finished. When I had put the last touch upon it and placed it against the wall I felt so exhausted that I stretched myself out upon the couch in the corner of my room, and lay there without moving. I don't know whether I fainted or slept, but I remembered nothing more until I felt my self being shaken, and when I hadroused up sufficiently I saw Harry leaning over me and looking into my face.

"When he had satisted himself that I was fully awake, he said:

"I say, Paul, get up and show me this picture of yours. I want to see how it looks now it's so near finished."

"I don't feel very well to-day, Harry,' I replied, 'but it's that canvas over there with it's face to the wall, and you may bring it out yourself, if you want to,'

"He moved my easel Into the best light and then carefully placing the large canvas upon it, steeped back and stood for a time contemplating it in silence.

"Presently he tuned to me and exclaimed:

"Paul, it's a masterpiece. I don't pretend to know half as much about painting as I ought to considering the time I've been ati, but I know this much that the picture makes me keep still to look at it, why there's pretty sure to be something great around somewhere, and you can bet I couldn't whistle in freat of this one.

"After again taking a careful survey of it he continued:

"I say. Paul, where in the world did you

"Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of colds, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there is none, within the range of my experience, so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. For years I was subject to colds, followed by terrible coughs. About four years ago, when so afflicted, I was advised to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and to lay all other remedies aside. I did so, and within a week was well of my cold and cough. Since then I have always kept this preparation in the house, and feel comparatively seeire."

-Mrs. L. L. Brown, Denmark, Miss.

"A few years ago I took a severe cold which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continual use of the Pectoral, a permanent cure was effected."—Horace Fairbrother, Rockingham, Vt.
