

WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT

Surrender of Kirin to the Russians Confirmed.

Systematic Looting of the Summer Palace.

Russians Said To Be Evacuating Peking—Germans to Occupy the Forbidden City.

London, Oct. 1.—A dispatch to the Times from St. Petersburg confirms the reports that the town of Kirin surrendered to the Russians without a shot on peremptory orders from Prince Ching. The dispatch says that if similar orders shall be issued with regard to Mukden the Russian conquest of Manchuria will be completed. According to the same authority no further reinforcements will be required by the Russian commanders in the far east.

Tien Tsin, Sept. 28, via Shanghai, Sept. 30.—The Chinese abandoned and looted Tong Shan (?) ostensibly because their wages were in arrears, and they feared a Russian attack.

General Sir Alfred Gaselee is going to Wei Hai Wei.

THENG TING FU MISSIONARIES SAFE.

Paris, Oct. 1.—The French consul-general at Shanghai, under date of Saturday, Sept. 29, telegraphs that he has been informed by the governor of Sent Che Li, that through the intervention of Sheng, the missionaries and engineers at Theng Ting Fu were safe and sound on Sept. 23; that the military and civil authorities took precautions to protect all the missionaries, and that the Belgian mission at Ning Tien Lung was safe.

SYSTEMATIC LOOTING.

London, Oct. 1.—Dr. Morrison, writing to the Times from Peking, on Sept. 24, says:

"At the same moment, the Chinese offered to permit the British to occupy, without opposition, both Schan Hai Kwan and Tong Shan (?); they also made overtures to the British to occupy Pei Tang. Although it was known that these overtures were supported by the British authorities in Peking, they were discounted by Rear Admiral Bruce, on the ground that they would disturb the concert of admirals.

"Systematic Russian denudation of the summer palace has resulted in stripping it of every valuable article. The loot has been packed and labeled, and is now awaiting transportation to Russia.

"On the second attempt the white pagoda and two adjoining temples were razed to the ground."

MORE CONFUSION.

London, Monday, Oct. 1.—2.30 a.m.—Beyond a shout of Imperial edicts, which throw into still worse confusion the complicated Chinese situation, there is little in today's news to arrest attention. From Shanghai comes an unconfirmed report that the allies have seized Shian Hui Wan. All the news with regard to the edicts emanates from Shanghai.

THOSE EDICTS.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post says: The severe punishment ordered by Emperor Kwang Su will only mean a money fine. There are traces of Li Hung Chang's hand under American influence, in the edicts.

The Standard's Shanghai correspondent remarks that the emperor's recent edicts realize the nature of the crisis. After consulting the emperor she summoned the court dignitaries, and on their assembling, while she remained silent, the emperor in a loud voice, delivered a tirade, lasting a couple of hours, against the courtiers. Then, in an angry voice, he dismissed them. After this the edicts were issued.

AUCTION SALE OF LOOT.

The Chinese official gazette has resumed publication, says the Peking correspondent of the Morning Post, wiring Sept. 24, and contains an order directing the Peking officials to follow the court, unless their duties here prevent them leaving. British looting continues and the daily auctions are held at the legations. This is likely to last all winter. Members of the nobility are the heaviest losers, Prince Ching in particular.

RUSSIANS LEAVING PEKING.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 30.—The following dispatch, dated Peking, Sept. 27, has been received from M. De Giers, Russian minister to China: "In accordance with orders from the highest quarters, I am leaving for Tien Tsin with the whole legation."

Peking, Sept. 28, via Taku, Sept. 28, via Shanghai, Sept. 30.—At the conference of generals today, the Russian commander, Gen. Linévitch, announced the immediate withdrawal from Peking of the bulk of the Russian troops and the legation. He will leave on Thursday, Sept. 27, and the legation will follow on Saturday. There will remain a mixed force of about 2,000 to represent Russia. Gen. Linévitch asserted that the dispatch from St. Petersburg, transmitting the order to withdraw, contained a statement that all the powers were adopting the same policy. The other generals replied that they had received no orders of that nature. German and Japanese columns are operating to the southward, near the imperial deer park. Sir Alfred Gaselee, the British commander, are gone to Tien

Tsin to inspect the British troops there.

FRICITION. Friction between the British and Russians over the railway continues, each party seizing and guarding small sections. The repairing is unsystematic and the completion of the work very indefinite.

GERMANS IN THE FORBIDDEN CITY.

Peking, Sept. 24, via Taku, Sept. 27.—Prince Ching has addressed notes to the ministers acknowledging their letters, suggesting that the court return to Peking. He announces that he has dispatched a memorial covering the subject to the dowager empress. It is practically determined that Count Von Waldersee shall occupy one of the imperial palaces in the Forbidden City when he arrives, and a large portion of the German army will be quartered there. There is a complete reversal of the former policy to protect the Forbidden City. The Americans disapprove of this, but will not enter a protest. General preparations for a winter encampment were resumed on the 16th. The Bengal Lancers have arrived.

WITHDRAWAL OF UNCLE SAM'S TROOPS.

Tien Tsin, Sept. 28, via Shanghai, Sept. 30.—Orders from Washington, directing the withdrawal of the bulk of the American troops, were received this afternoon, and preparations to comply were begun immediately. Gen. Chaffee is here directing the movement.

A LIVE S. S.

Dundas Street Center Makes a Great Rally in Starting on Its Fall Campaign.

Rally Day at Dundas Center Sunday School has always been a notable day, and this year was no exception. To them it means a rallying of the entire membership, from "Cradle Roll" to "Home Department." The former is a new department lately added to the school, and includes infant children whose names, with the consent of their parents, are kept on a "Cradle roll." They are remembered on their birth days with some slight token, and in due time become regular members of the school.

The platform was tastefully decorated with palms and flowers, and seated on it were some of the fathers of the church, who showed their interest in the school by their presence. Among them were Wm. Bowman, Richard Hobbs, Gilbert Glass and Frank Cooper. Above the platform hangs a large oil portrait with this inscription: "Wm. Bowman. For 50 years actively identified with Sunday school work, 35 years superintendent of Methodist Sunday schools in this city, 20 years superintendent of this school." Mr. Bowman still takes a keen interest in the school. To the right of the platform is an interesting group of photographs of the leading Sunday school workers of America, including Prof. Hamill and E. F. Jacobs, of Chicago, the late William Reynolds, of Peoria, Ill.; Marion Lawrence, of Toledo, Ohio; N. F. Caswell, Toronto; Wm. Johnson, Belleville; W. A. Duncan, Ph.B., Syracuse, and others. The pastor, Rev. J. B. Saunders, D.D., was unavoidably absent, attending a funeral. In his absence, Dr. Saunders is always present.

The keynote of the service, which included Scripture readings and sacred songs, was "Forward," the idea being well brought out. Recitations, "The Lamb of the Flock" and "The Sheep of the Fold," by Belva Chapman and Edith Deely, and a solo by Miss Hoover, found appropriate places in the service. Superintendent D. A. McDermid gave the address of welcome. Principal M. W. Althouse reviewed the lessons of the next three months, and Rev. A. K. Biles, B.A., of Colborne Street Methodist Church, gave an interesting address on "The Clean Heart," which was much appreciated.

The school orchestra of fifteen pieces, under the leadership of Rossie Fyock, rendered a number of choice selections while the school was assembling, and assisted in the musical part of the service. W. H. Hewlett presided at the piano, Dr. C. H. Ziegler led the singing, and C. E. German and William Yates, two of the superintendents, conducted the service from the platform.

Funeral of the Late Premier MARCHAND.

Quebec, Oct. 1.—The funeral of Hon. F. G. Marchand on Saturday was most impressive. The funeral procession took over an hour to pass a given point without any interruption. The floral car, containing all the floral tributes sent to the family of the lamented and illustrious deceased, was a masterpiece. The funeral car was ornate, with trophies of Canadian colors. Eighteen cars crowded with sympathizers and delegations from different parts of the province came on the C. P. R. in the morning. It was the same thing on every other railway line. The cortege included provincial and municipal police, fire brigade, pupils of the different schools, the state band, military guard of honor, the representatives of the governor-general, the lieutenant-governor, the colleagues of the late prime minister, members of the federal government, judges, municipal officers and men.

MARKETS FOR APPLES.

Toronto, Oct. 1.—There has been received at the Ontario department of agriculture an extensive list of the importers of evaporated apples and other fruits at Hamburg, Germany. This list has been forwarded from the Imperial Institute, London, and may be of use to Canadian exporters. Copies of the list may be had on application to the department. There have been several inquiries at the department in regard to the possibilities of this trade. German imports large quantities of American evaporated apples, and it is quite possible that Canadian exporters, in this season of extraordinary crop, may be able to share in the trade.

LIONS, TIGERS AND ELEPHANTS

What an Animal Trainer Says About Their Traits in Captivity.

[Chicago Record.]

"Personally I would rather undertake to train jungle-bred lions than lions that are born in captivity. You may win the regard of the first class, but the others are so accustomed to seeing everybody that they respect nobody. The idea that lions desire to eat up their trainers is preposterous. I feed these lions twelve and a half pounds of fine meat every day at 6 o'clock. If a lion was ravenously hungry the case might be different. When a beast gets mad and knocks you down with a blow and his paw you must be smart. It would be useless to fight back, for if he should close his jaws no bone could stand the pressure. I do not fear the lion's jaws and teeth and his paws and claws are the things that have left their marks on my body. Their claws are sharp as fish-hooks and take hold in the same fashion.

"Tigers are much brighter than lions, and can be taught many tricks, but they can never be relied on, as treacherous as they are to their own kind. They are tremendous fighters, and if they cannot get up a row among themselves they are ready to help others. The closest call I ever had in my life was when a jaguar got over the partition in the big den into the cage occupied by a lion, and undertook to take a bone away from the latter. I went in and undertook to drive the jaguar back into his cage. The beast turned upon me and clawed me horribly, while the lion took a whack at my back. When I was finally dragged out of the cage the new suit of clothes that I wore was a mass of tatters, and I was scarred and bloody from head to foot. This famous fight occurred in Washington with the W. C. Culp show. I had a number of encounters with the lion, and set down on the bills as 'the man-slayer.' He had chewed and clawed many men, but never eaten one, but he did occasionally feast on a horse. So many stories have been told about him by trainers that never handled him it would be idle for me to repeat them, as I had him all the time he was in this country. That famous lion died two years ago in an express car while on his travels.

"Tigers have a fancy for sliding on their backs, and getting up at a disadvantage, as they lie and claw upward. The moment you turn to leave a cage they are liable to slide its whole length and drag you down before you can raise your whip.

"But, take my word for it, the most dangerous animal you can encounter in a menagerie is a 'bad elephant.' I have been with 'em for forty years, and I know."

WONDROUS REMEDY

Is What a London Doctor Calls Dodd's Kidney Pills.

London, Oct. 1.—A large decrease in the number of cases of Kidney Disease has been noted in this city during the past year.

"There's only one thing to be said about it," said a prominent physician, speaking on the subject today. "This falling off is due entirely to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills by the people. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the most wonderful kidney remedy ever known. They are used in nearly every household. The general staff of the great decrease of Kidney Complaints."

HIDDEN DEFENSES OF PARIS

Among Them Are Twenty-Six Forts, 850 65-Ton Guns and 60,000 Gunners.

Perhaps you have just returned from Paris, enthusiastic over the sights there. Here are some things you didn't see: Seven great forts about the city, eight miles away from its walls. Nineteen smaller forts, four miles out, containing three acres and mounting two 65-ton guns. Great stacks of 100-pound melleinte shells ready for these guns to hurl. Twenty-one miles of continuous fortifications about the town—earthwork walls 10 feet thick at the base and fronted by 45-foot moats. Three hundred emplacements along this giant wall for as many 95-ton cannon, kept free from rust in the Champs de Mars arsenal and ready to be swung into place at any time. But anywhere else among the sights mentioned—and surely they are worth seeing—a visitor might be apt to have his feelings hurt, especially if he carried a camera.

So cleverly are the forts masked by long slopes of green turf and the walls by trees and bushes, that one can pass by the forts and not see them. There is scarcely a trace of its famous fortifications. The range of the 95-ton gun is over ten miles—some say fourteen.

Beneath the earth and unmounted beds on the rampart are stone casemates for ammunition, with small transfer wagons. These casemates are open upon the inner base of the wall, and a set of rails, discharging guns, runs for the doorway to the top of the fortification. You must look for these rails in the grass, the general staff is so modest.

Supports come and the 300 guns must be mounted. Well, the staff has thought of that. The rails, standard gauge—that lie ready for the ammunition wagons can be linked with the railway system of Paris.

No ordinary tramway would bear 95 tons, but that also has been thought of. The Paris tramways are built on solid oak, planked to iron trestles, bedded in concrete.

To work these guns, were every man of the garrison drafted away, Paris has 50,000 trained artillerymen among her reservists. She could man every gun twice over, Garrison all her forts with infantry reservists, and put a dozen cavalry regiments into the field for scouting purposes. Such a performance no other city on earth could rival.

The Paris railway stations have immense acreages of platform space, exclusive of arrival and departure quays, which are made long enough to receive trains at a time.

Paris has three circular railways—the Inner, the Outer and the Grand Centuries—which form a network connecting the city and its suburbs.

At every 1,000 yards along the inner slope of the fortifications is a three-story guardhouse. Some 20,000 troops could thus be sheltered within call of all attackable points.

SMALLMAN & INGRAM

These guardhouses are connected by the broad Boulevard Extérieur, which is of course, provided with tramways. Every reservist, whether Parisian born or provincial immigrant, has a book containing his number, particulars of his service, and a memorandum of the barracks to which he must report upon the calling of the reserves.

In case of war these carefully maintained would be switched into use, and the tramway system would be in communication with the enormous goods depots of the Paris termini. Not rolling stock only, but horse-drawn over four years old is registered, together with his type, owner and probable utility. The general staff could choose from some 120,000 horses.

There are in Paris 16,000 cabs, with three horses to a cab—48,000 mounts fairly suitable for cavalry. Add 20,000 cars and bus horses and 10,000 draught horses—the balance may be taken as in private hands.

The pneumatic transit system in vogue in the French metropolis offers unique advantages for military purposes.

The military stores of Paris are boundless. In a day she could clothe and arm 450,000 fighting men, with 70,000,000 rounds of melleinte cartridges.

At the army bakeries she reserves large stores of grain.

In case of siege the general staff has a complete set of plans, ready in the Paris municipality, which at all times fixes the price of bread and would do so of other staples.

Paris has an invisible defense—the submarine boats that patrol the Seine from Asnières and Ivry.

Presumably a foreign army might get into Paris again, as one did in 1870-71, but the process would be burdened with some fatigue and annoyance.

ART IN THE SHAVING MUG

The False Economy of Trying to Use One Article Too Many Ways.

Out in one of Cleveland's eastern suburbs lives an ancient dame of Pennsylvania Dutch persuasion. In addition to this she is an acknowledged mistress of the art of housekeeping, and the evidences of her neatness are worth going miles on a suburban car to inspect.

Some time ago she determined to paint the woodwork in her kitchen. She didn't want a man musing around, and so she determined to wield the brush herself. She went so far as to purchase a quart can of ready-mixed paint of a light blue tint. This she took home and laid aside to await an opportunity.

When the opportunity finally came one cool July afternoon, she had no brush. But time was precious, the nearest brush store was a long distance away, and necessity is the mother of expedients.

Then the can was cut open and she spread on the blue mixture in a great hurry. The brush from the shaving mug didn't hold much at a time, but with frequent dipping it worked fairly well. But when it came to portions of the job where she had to reach high she presently found that almost as much paint ran down her hand and wrist and arm as went on the wall. But finally the job was completed.

In a hurried way she washed out the brush and replaced it, and then set about preparing the evening meal. Her finger had returned from his daily toil presently, but it was too dark to call his attention to the improvement. Besides, she meant to go over it again and touch up the thin places.

After supper the husband went upstairs to shave and the old lady sat down in her favorite rocker in the living room to look over the evening paper.

Presently there was an agonizing cry from the upper regions. "Amelia! Amelia! Come quick! I had de blue sickness!"

The startled old lady hastily climbed the stairs, and there stood the old gentleman before the looking glass on the bureau, his eyes popping from his head in terror as he stared at his own countenance.

"Vat it ees, Heinrich?" she tremulously cried.

"Look, look, Amelia," he almost shrieked. "Don't you see dot mortification was setting in? My blood vas all conchessing in my veins. Look at my face vonce!"

And he turned his agonizing countenance toward her. It was completely covered, ears and all, with a light blue tint.

The old lady stared at it, and she stared at the shaving-brush, and then she dropped into a chair and threw her apron over her head and shrieked with merriment.

"Vat it ees, Amelia?" cried her astonished partner.

"It ees the paint brush—I mean the latter brush," she cried. "I bainted de kitchen mit it." And she went on with her hilarity.

The husband was a good-natured man and, besides, he felt greatly relieved. "Vell," he said, with an effort to be sarcastic, "I s'pose ven you use my latter brush to paint kitchens mit, you will use my razor to open lobster cans mit it."

Then he stared again at his ghastly reflection.

"Vell," he slowly added, "ven I used blue paint for latering my face I should use a putty knife to save me mit."

And he laughed as he said it—Cleveland Plaindealer.
