FUNERAL OF THE MEN KILLED AT KRUPP WORKS WAS FIVE MILES LONG

Seven workmen of the Ruhr—2000 of them—formed a line of honor nearly five miles long for the funeral procession of the German employees of the Krupp Works who were killed on March 21st in a clash with French troops.

The entire roadway leading from the Krupp plant, where the first services were held, to the cemetery, was lined on both sides by Krupp employees, miners and factory workers of Bochum, Recklinghausen, Dortmund and other industrial centres, who came to participate in the funeral ceremonies.

From early in the morning thousands of the curious took their stand

RUPERT SANDFORD ACCIDENTALLY DROWNED

Swept to Death in Annapolis River Despite Heroic Attempts at Rescue by Aubrey Boehner.

Rupert Sandford, a respected resident of West Paradise, was drowned on Tuesday while crossing the Annapolis river in company with his brother-in-law, Henry Guest, and Aubrey Boehner.

The three men entered the boat returning to West Paradise. When some distance out in the swollen current the craft capsized and according to information received, Sandford, who could not swim, grasped his brother-in-law and both went down together.

Aubrey Boehner, who is a good swimmer, located and separated them. Guest, on arising to the surface, got on to a floating log, while Boehner got Sandford to the boat. The latter appeared very much excited and scarcely realized conditions soon slipping from the craft.

This happened a second time but Boehner, though getting chilled in cold waters, managed a third time to get Sandford to the boat which was floating upriver. He got up on it but went over the other side and disappeared. Boehner was so exhausted that he could no longer continue the fruitless task.

The boat drifted down catching on a point of land exposed and Boehner was able to get ashore from here. The victim of the accident was about thirty years of age, married, but without children. He leaves also to mourn the loss, a mother, Mrs. Marshall, of Inglisville, and a brother, Truman Sandford, formerly clerk at the old St. James Hotel, Bridgetown, but now proprietor of the Royal Hotel, Wolfville.

Efforts have been made to locate and secure the body by grappling but at time of writing without success.

LAW CABINET

Newspapers Issue Warnings and Denunciations.

London.—The most important part of the present parliamentary session begins today, when the House of Commons reassembles after a short vacation.

It is universally admitted that there are critical times ahead of the government. Scarcely has there been an administration that has drawn more criticism from the press because of its alleged shortcomings.

The Times in no wise generally hostile to the government, emphasizes the strength of the parliamentary forces arrayed against the cabinet, whose position, it says, "without being actually dangerous, demands constant vigilance."

The newspaper, however, believes that if "the ministers have courage they will lack neither the inspiration nor the reward of achievement."

The Post, the government's strongest supporter, asserts that despite "the malediction of foes open and veiled," the government has the great majority of the country behind it.

Most of the other newspapers sound warnings and denunciations. The Daily Mail, extremely hostile, says the ministers meet parliament "secretly conscious that they have completely lost the confidence of the country, and almost bankrupt in reputations."

"Every one versed in politics," the newspaper continues, "knows that as constituted at present the government cannot last much longer and that there must be sweeping changes within a very few weeks. What is wanted is a change of policy to the restoration of common sense and a dismissal of blunderers."

The Westminster Gazette, voicing the views of moderate Liberalism, asserts that the critical circumstances of the moment may easily bring the ministry to shipwreck.

"Bonar Law might be able to govern if he had colleagues of ability, but even a prime minister of genius could not win through with the existing material," the newspaper says.

Westfield, Mass.—Mrs. Albert E. Fowler, newly elected President of the Westfield Women's Club, told the members that girls are divided into two classes, "home makers" and "home wreckers".

GLAD SHE TOOK FRIEND'S ADVICE

Mrs. Hartley States Tanlac, Taken On Mrs. Brathwaite's Recommendation, Restored Her Fully.

"It certainly is remarkable how quickly Tanlac restores a person's health. When I had taken my second bottle, my indigestion was gone and I gained eleven pounds. No home should be without Tanlac." This statement was made the other day by Mrs. Alma Hartley, 13 Bright St., Toronto, Ont.

"Stomach trouble, sleeplessness and a badly run-down condition kept me in misery two years and I was just a nervous wreck. When I took back new I wonder how I lived on the little I ate, my appetite was so poor. My food soured, gas bloated me and caused terrible pains, and I was dreadfully nauseated. I almost forgot what a good night's sleep was, and became alarmingly thin and weak."

"It was Mrs. Brathwaite, my neighbor, who advised me to try the Tanlac treatment, and I am surely thankful. My appetite is so ravenous now I can't wait for meal time. My nerves are calm, I sleep like a child and always feel strong and refreshed. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 25-million bottles sold.

BLAMES "DRUM TALK" FOR AFRICAN UNREST

Agitation Goes On In Many Quarters.

London.—"Broadcasting," a system of communication without wires which preceded radio transmission by many years on the dark continent, is held largely responsible for the ever-increasing agitation among the negroes in Africa.

My "drum talk" news of the approaching visit of American notables to Marshal Lyantey in Morocco was learned on the Upper Volta about three hours after it was published in Paris.

News of the death of great chiefs and warnings of approaching danger are sent in this way, and also the native propaganda which is said to be promoting unrest in eastern, western and southern Africa.

Agitation in a form resembling bolshevism has appeared in East Africa and sentiment favorable to the Nationalist movement started by Marcus Garvey, is rampant in Liberia, while the troubles in French West Africa recently required military suppression. Much of this agitation is said to be due to inflammatory reports spread among the tribes by drum talk.
