

is to be a Review for the needed elaboration and interchange of the thought of the Church on the various questions of doctrine and duty, work and life, we must extend the circulation. The editors will spare no pains to maintain the standard and improve the character of its contents, and therefore ask the hearty and earnest co-operation of all our readers in aiding us to provide a Review worthy the intelligence and liberality of our people. Brethren, give us your help, and enter at once upon an active canvass for new subscribers for 1890. The Annual Conferences gave us an unusually large number of new subscribers, but we need five hundred more to make the year come out right. We must keep the QUARTERLY upon a sound, financial basis.

Owing to the illness of Dr. Workman, he was unable to prepare his article on "Messianic Prophecy" in time for the July number, but it will appear in full in the October issue. If, as we have often been told, every number of the QUARTERLY is worth the subscription price, then our friends have an extra canvassing number with which to work. Push the canvass at once, and report by end of September.

"How is the QUARTERLY doing?" we are often asked.

First rate. But if all who have not paid their subscriptions for 1889 and 1890 would at once "pay up," we could do several hundred dollars better. We pay about three hundred dollars for issuing each number, besides other incidental expenses; hence, you know we need your subscriptions, as the Methodist Book Room works for money.

"How is the QUARTERLY doing?"

Doing well. It is proving that the Methodist Church in Canada and Newfoundland can sustain a "high-class" Review, but it would be doing twice as well if each present subscriber would add another to the list. You can make it do better and best by showing the QUARTERLY to others, talking it up, and sending in new names for either 1889 or 1890. We will supply the bound volume for 1889 to any subscriber for 1890 for $1.25. Boom the QUARTERLY in the interest of the Theological Union Bible Study undertaking.

The Theological Union has affiliated with The American Institute of Sacred Literature, for the promotion of the systematic study of the Bible. A course of study for "Fellow in Theological Literature" has been selected
