

The Ontario Science Centre was designed for curious young people. Eighty per cent of its exhibits concern science, and young visitors can be directly involved in most of them. They can operate pumps; generate electricity by riding a stationary bicycle; play tic-tac-toe on a computer; zoom, pan and focus a remote-control TV camera; and stack cubes with mechanical hands.

