Left London in 1917 and Reported Missing One Year Later by Authorities.

Information has been received by Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Horwood, 332 Ridout street, from Mrs. Horwood's sister, Mrs. W. Burrows, London, England, that the body of her son, Herbert Horwood, had been found, identified and interred in the British military cemetery at Roye.

Mr. Horwood went overseas with the C. A. M. C. on August 7, 1917, and was reported missing on August 16, 1918, while stationed on the Roye-Fresneye line near the French lines. He was 20 years of age. As his body was not found at the time, it was thought probable that it had been buried by the French, and since the end of the war Mrs. Burrows on behalf of his bereaved parents, sought the aid of the British Graves Commission in the hope that the place where the body was interred could be found.

Harry Randolph, automobile mechanic, and Harry Raphael, salesman, confessed, the police say, that they had "stolen" 12 automobiles in Brooklyn with the consent of the owners and sold them to garage owners after all identification marks had been removed. Fees were paid for "stealing" the cars and an agreement was made with the owners that in event of arrest the owner would testify he had given permission to the "thief" to drive the car.

ROLLO GIVES ASSURANCE

Labor Minister Declares That Immediate Relief Be Afforded.

Toronto, Dec. 8 .- About 1,000 unemployed veterans of Toronto gathered in Queen's Park shortly before noon today as a protest against the labor situation as it exists in the city, and to press for relief both from the provincial and municipal governments. They met with a measure of success at the Parliament Buildings, obtaining assurances from the cabinet and Mr. Rollo, minister of labor, in particular, that some sort of immediate relief would be afforded them.

No definite proposals were given, however.

An unusual case was tried in police court today, when the C. S. Hyman Company was charged with having five deer skins in its possession without a proper license or permission. After the case had been tried on technicalities and after long arguments had taken place concerning the interpretation of the act, the company was found not guilty.

The charge was laid by Hugh Brown, game warden, as the result of a search which he made on the premises on December 2. Beneath a pile of sheep skins and cowhides he found five deerhides, salted. The skins had tags attached.

Ashton R. Douglas, who conducted the prosecution, claimed that although there might not have been any intention to break the act, the firm was none the less guilty. Even though the C. S. Hyman Company had no intention of dressing and tanning the hides, they had no right to keep them in their possession for any purpose whatsoever.

Continuing, Mr. Rolio said that the Government was not in a position to employ very many men. The only way open was through the public works department. The Government was preparing to open up employment there as speedily as possible.

Several voices then cried out: "Hun-gry!" Hungry!" and again Harry Flynn stepped in to keep order. When order had been restored Mr. Flynn said: "I would like to ask Mr. Rolio one question."

2. The installation of a signal system to keep constables in touch with head-quarters.

3. The paving and lighting of lanes in the business district.

4. Mounted or motorcycle police for the outlying districts.

Sub-Station Needed.

Mayor Little, who by virtue of his office, is a member of the police commission, is prepared to urge both more men for the force and a sub-station in East London.

"No matter what other action is taken we need more men," he declared today. "I believe our present police force is one of the best on the continent, but we can't expect them to maintain that record unless they have enough men and proper equipment. A sub-station in East London would lessen the number of extra men who are needed. The section of the force using that as headquarters would save much valuable time which is now lost traveling from the downtown station to the eastern parts of the city.

"I suggested some time ago that the East London Hall might be used temporarily as a police station, but further."

The police commission, also is in favor of an increased force. "We certainly should have more police than we have at present," he said. He did not consider a branch station a necessity.

Aldermen are enthusiastically behind a campaign to bring about improved conditions, At least two motions in tegard to the matter will be brought up at the next meeting of the city council, and it is likely they will be discussed at committee meetings previously to that.

Light the Lanes.

Ald. G. B. Drake will move that the board of health be recommended to consider regulations requiring lights at the rear of stores, banks and other institutions down town. These two measures, he believes, would greatly assist the police in combatting the petty burglaries which are reported frequenting the streets, and seeing that the Continued On Page Three.

Action to provide adequate police protection for the city will be taken by the city council at once. It is too late in the year for any expenditures for this purpose to be made, but plans will be made now for tackling the problem early in January.

Ald. F. R. Watkinson will move at the next meeting of the city council that recommendations regarding increasing the efficiency of the department to get new men without seriously affecting and have plans and estimates prepared for the 1921 council.

The consessus of opinion is that as soon as funds are available, a recruiting campaign should be opened and a lerge addition of capable men made to the force. This is the one point on which all agree.

Among other suggestions made helping the force to increase the efficiency are:

1. The establishment of a branch police station in East London.

2. The installation of a signal system to keep constables in touch with head-counters.

No definite proposals were given, however.

The men who composed the parade were for the most part well dressed, but numbers of them seemed to be suffering from lack of nourishment.

Good nature was prevalent among the crowd, and only occasional outbursts of anger were observed.

Wild cheering greeted the announcement that Mr. Rollo would speak directly.

Mr. Rollo's arrival was no signal for cheering, the crowd remaining silent.

Washington, D. C.. Dec. 9.—Immediate revision of the tax laws of the United States on the basis of an annual levy of four billions of dollars for a period of four years, and including an increase of two per cent in the taxes on income up to $5,000, is urged by Secretary Houston of the treasury department in his annual report sent today to Congress.
