“STAKE” MILK IS QUICKLY EATEN

New Dealers' Association Agrees to Pay Producers' Demands—“Combine” Charge Wilts Before Magistrate.

Milk is flowing freely this morning from York County cows to Toronto consumers under the auspices of the Milk Producers' Association and the Toronto Milk Dealers' Association.

In the evening at East Toronto Town Hall the summons against the president and secretary of the Producers' Association was dealt with.

A meeting of the executive of the Toronto Milk Producers' Association was held at the Albion Hotel in the morning to discuss the situation.

This association agreed to all the requests of the milk producers with regard to the prices of milk.

No intention to offend. Mr. Baird pointed out that it was not the intention of his clients to do anything illegal, but merely to establish uniform prices.

Mr. Drayton then withdrew the case against A. J. Reynolds, and called him as a witness. Mr. Reynolds as secretary described the methods of the association and produced the minutes and roll books.

Mrs. Gould Denies Too Much Liquor

Replying to Husband's Allegations, Gives Particulars as to Her Daily Use of Wines.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2.—That $2000 had been offered an employee of the Hotel St. Regis to give false testimony against Mrs. Howard Gould was the substance of an affidavit purporting to have been made by the Rev. Jos. C. Murray, which was presented to Justice Gleicher in the supreme court to-day.

The Murray affidavit declares that Michael H. Doody had told the priest that while he was employed at the Hotel St. Regis where Mrs. Gould lived, a detective attached to the hotel went to him with the proposition that he “give a proper report of Mrs. Gould's comings and goings at the hotel, the amount of wine she drank and the names of her visitors, notably those of them that were men.”

Doody is alleged to have said that the detective told him there would be $5000 for the detective, too, if Doody carried out his contract.

An affidavit was submitted by Mrs. Gould in reply to allegations of her husband that she is addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors.

When living in the country and spending most of my time in the open air I have drunk a cocktail on sitting down to luncheon and generally a glass of white wine with luncheon.

She accuses Mr. Gould of being jealous of her when she was driving with the prince while he went in a carriage with another woman who was a guest at the luncheon.

The premier will address a public meeting in Ottawa before election day.

YOUNG OPERATOR HIDING FROM ARREST

Lorne McTaggart, Aged 19, and Barely in Railway Work, Had Been Given Too Big a Job to Attend To.

A warrant has been sworn out for the arrest of young McTaggart, the operator who neglected to close the switch at Mimico, which let the C.P.R. express crash into a Grand Trunk transfer engine on a siding here last, resulting in the death of Engineer Quinn and injury to two other men.

McTaggart, who is only 19, has not been heard of in Mimico since the accident. His uncle, W. O. McTaggart, real estate and insurance broker, spent yesterday telephoning and telegraphing to all points where the young man might be likely to go, but to no avail.

While half believing that his nephew, who was last seen Thursday night making toward the lake, may have made away with himself in the stress of emotion consequent upon the accident, Mr. McTaggart is nourishing a hope that he will yet turn up among relatives in Western Ontario.

The fugitive is an orphan, and his uncle thinks that probably on this account he fears to brave an investigation, thinking that nobody would concern himself in his behalf.

McTaggart's Christian name is Lorne. The report that his father was a G.T.R. station agent is incorrect. He has a cousin, who is agent at Bythe, but his father was a doctor in Detroit, and has been dead for some years.

McTaggart is a full-fledged operator, from where he was assigned to Mimico, the night before the tragedy to fill a vacancy caused by the illness of the regular day operator and station agent.

Mr. McTaggart says his nephew was overloaded with work, and that enquiry will show that too many responsibilities were thrust upon him.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP IS SUPPORTED BY NORFOLK NOMINEE

Alex. McCall Says It's the Only Protection the People Have Against Extortion—Big Crowd to Hear Borden.

SIMCOE, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—The largest meeting outside of Toronto of the tour of the Conservative leader was that held here to-night.

Mr. Borden came to town at noon from Durham and spent the afternoon in company with the party to stave towards viewing the points of interest.

Mr. McCall, the candidate, made a straight out declaration in favor of public ownership. He said he was squarely behind Mr. Borden, who was the first leader of a political party to come out in favor of reforms for the country had been waiting for for years.

Col. Tisdale indulged in reminiscences. He is retiring after a long public career. He said he had been in politics since five years before he was old enough to vote, and he had seen the country change its alliances until at present it was represented in both houses by Conservatives only.

Sensational Hazing

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 2.—This sensational story told here by a small boy, it is regarded certain that Willie C. Smith, who disappeared from the State University on Tuesday night of last week, was overpowered and gagged during the course of a hazing at the university, placed in a Queen and Crescent box car, the door closed and Smith shipped away.

BOMBAY, Oct. 2.—The correspondent of a local newspaper who has reached Hyderabad, the capital of the flooded district, describes that city as a vast grave.

BOURASSA'S BIG PROGRAM

Wants to Build Up a True National Sentiment to Replace Partisan Spirit.

MONTREAL, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Henri Bourassa, M.L.A., announced this evening at a crowded meeting at the Monument National, that he would not take an active part in the federal campaign, although he had gladly signed A.D. Groulx' nomination paper in St. James' against the Government candidate.

The member for St. James held up Sir George Cartier and Honoré Mercier as men who had got nearer the hearts of their countrymen than any one else, and both had sold their people that Quebec should be first attended to. He left Ottawa because he saw his people being carried away by party feeling and he thought that the evil must be first attacked at the seat of provincial government.

Before, however, the French Canadians could claim to be able to govern they must learn how to be patriotic, rather than to be partisan. His great aim was to create a healthy public opinion such as that in England, where no men are called traitors, and stoned if they happen to vote against the party and the government of the day.

Then Mr. Bourassa told of his intention to have clubs founded all over the province for the purpose of propagating the doctrine of reform, and also a newspaper to be published daily. He would also have their lectures and addresses translated into English, so that the British people would come to understand the true intentions of the nationalist movement.

He asked the freshmen to avail themselves of gymnasium instruction under Dr. Barton, and in athletics to remember that the university had ideals not held outside. They had come primarily to study, but athletics was of immense value as a subsidiary training. He commended the Rifle Association to the students. There was no drill and no uniform, but a Chance for Some Old Boy to Become Famous—President Falconer's Address to the Students.

President's Day is evidently to be an institution at Varsity, and the attendance at Dr. Falconer's address yesterday afternoon in Convocation Hall was such a contrast with last year's that it was evident the fame of last year's address had gone abroad.

Nor was anyone disappointed in the splendid utterance in which Dr. Falconer discussed the bearings of authority in relation to the student, to the individual, the nation, as derived from tradition, example, society or conscience. The heartiest applause broke out as the president closed with an appeal for the adjustment of the freedom of which he spoke last year with the ideals of authority which are imposed on humanity by natural law.

Before the faculty entered the hall the students had a royal time for half an hour. The galleries were filled and the ground floor also and the din was amazing, while frequently above the general tumult there broke out the faculty yells like thunder crashes above the warring elements. Wagnerian effects as from the Gotterdammerung followed the efforts of the rival years.

Science fell as the president and faculty entered, all rioting and then the Varsity yell was given in salutation and with good effect. Principal Galbraith, entering late, had an ovation all by himself, and after this all the students behaved like perfect ladies.

“Colleagues and students,” Dr. Falconer addressed the assembly, and then his prepared speech with a review of the growth and the future developments of the university. In two years the arts attendance has increased by 32 per cent, the medicals by 36 per cent, the sciences men by 36 per cent, and education and forestry faculties were added.

Difficulties of housing were emphasized. Every department was under pressure, and the rear of the Convocation Hall applied students were being accommodated, and space in the physics building was also given them. A laboratory for thermo-dynamics, and hydraulics was needed and a new building to the east of the main building. The faculty of medicine especially in the anatomical department, required more room.

The most pressing needs were for the faculty of education, and the library. The university must have her own observation and practice schools. A site had been procured, but the means to build were wanting. The library was the heart of the university, and was for an extension had been drawn for which $200,000 was needed. Where it was to come from he could not say, but he suggested that there was an opportunity for a well wisher to the university to engrave his name on its records.

Buildings did not count primarily, however, and it was in the quality of the staff and its extent, in the education given and their capacity to advance all by themselves, and research that their primary value lay.

SEASON TO GET SILK HAT.

Dineen's Are Sole Canadian Agents for Most Famous Makers.

The leading styles in silk hats are Heath's, London, and Dunlap's, New York. For these two famous makers, Dineen's, at Yonge and Temperance streets, are sole Canadian agents. The Heath silk hat is eight dollars. The Dunlap is ten dollars.

There is the Dineen special silk hat on the blocks of the principal makers at five dollars and six dollars. Care should be exercised in buying a silk hat, so remember that Dineen's is the most reliable place you can go to for any kind of an honest hat. The store will be open till 10 o'clock to-night.

CONDITIONS OF TRADE STEADY IMPROVE

Manufacturers Find That Business is Bettering by About Ten Per Cent. a Month.

Almost every manufacturing concern connected with the Employers' Association reports an increase of 10 per cent. in business for the month of September, according to a statement made by Secretary Jas. G. Merrick yesterday.

Mr. Merrick predicted a steady, if not a proportionate increase from now until Christmas. After New Year's trade should hold its own and the various industries be kept fairly busy until spring, when indications point to a big boom in trade.

According to the various manufacturers' business had fallen away from 30 to 60 per cent. all along the line. By the first of January, at an increase of 10 per cent. per month, conditions should be very different to those existing in the winter of 1906.

While labor conditions were bound to improve with the return of trade, Mr. Merrick said the percentage of unemployed taken back to the benches and wheels is still a heavy one.

At the same time a determined effort will be made by opposing interests to get more light on the company's affairs than the directors have seen fit to make public in the annual report just issued.

SMOKER WAS POSTPONED.

Called by Mistake During the Progress of an Election.

The West Toronto smoker called for last night at Sheridan Hall was postponed until Oct. 29. The association, in calling the smoker, overlooked the fact that the free distribution of pipes and tobacco during an election could render the validity of E. B. Oster's election in doubt.

ITALIAN'S JOURNEY STOPPED

Arrested at Montreal for Alleged Fraud in Toronto.

Vincent Constantino, an Italian fruit dealer of Toronto, 40 years of age, was arrested at Montreal, while on his way to Italy, last night, charged with disposing of his stock for the purpose of defrauding his creditors.

Constantino was arrested on the arrival of the Toronto train on a warrant served out yesterday noon by Easton McWilliam of McWilliam & Everist, wholesale fruiterers, 25 Church-street, involving an account of $100.

A HEARTLESS SCOUNDREL

(Canadian Associated Press Cable.) LONDON, Oct. 2.—Upon discovering that Ernest Gray, who went to Canada three weeks ago, with the aid of money he lent him, was also engaged to another woman, Ethel Bowbrick, a housemaid, he was arrested.

It was stated that three other women were also making enquiries about him, and a jurymen said that Gray was a heartless scoundrel.
