NOTES AND COMMENTS

JAPANESE-AMERICAN TRADE.

That a large and mutually profitable trade might be built up between Canada and Japan is the belief of Mr. Seizaburo Shimizu, Japanese consul-general in Canada, resident at Ottawa.

Writing in the Monetary Times, Mr. Shimizu discusses in an intelligent way the possibilities of such a trade. He points out that both countries have, during the past few years, been enjoying a large foreign commerce, that of Japan having increased in ten years from $200,000,000 to $500,000,000. Canada's exports of agricultural products (excluding animal products) amount in value to between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000 annually, while Japan imports each year cereals valued at upwards of $27,000,000. Canada exports $40,000,000 worth of mineral products; Japan at the same time imports upwards of $25,000,000 worth of metals and manufactures thereof. Canada has the goods and Japan offers the market.

The Japanese consul-general makes the prediction that "when the Canadian West is more thickly populated and the ever-increasing crops are harvested; when the enormous mineral resources of Canada are developed more fully; when trains run daily over the Transcontinental line between the two oceans side by side with those of the great Canadian Pacific Railway, and when steamers of up-to-date accommodation are placed between the northern point of the British Columbia coast and the Orient, then the markets for Canadian farm, mine and forest products will have to be sought in the Orient." On the importance of a good working arrangement in that event it is needless to dwell.

Japanese trade returns quoted by Mr. Shimizu show that there are several other things among Japanese imports which Canadians have to sell, and that they should be willing to buy many things which Japan exports. Trade between the two countries, he says, is as yet in its infancy, and needs the same care which has fostered Japanese trade with Britain and the United States. He points out that since the advent of the Ceylon and India teas the export of Japan teas to Canada has fallen off greatly, and that this trade has been largely replaced by the increased volume of Japanese imports of rice, silks, rugs, matings, porcelain, camphor, etc. Ten years ago Canada's exports to Japan totalled but a little over $100,000; today they amount to upwards of $700,000. Though the figures themselves are not large, the seven-fold increase is of significance.

The possibility of development of Japane-Canadian trade, though at present it is not large, are, in the opinion of Mr. Shimizu, immense. While the agricultural products of the Dominion are practically limitless, the Japanese demand for foodstuffs is enormous and increasing year by year. Canada's boundless wheat lands in the Northwest could not only serve as the granary for the British Isles and European countries, but could feed millions in the Orient. And what is true of its wheat fields is likewise true of the products of its forest, mines and fisheries. In exchange Japan is in a position to send to Canada silk, tea, rice, porcelain wares and various kinds of fine arts that cannot be profitably produced in Canada. Mr. Shimizu, therefore, believes it would be well to have these possibilities always in view in the consideration of trade and other relations between Canada and Japan.

ONE YEAR OF THE LAYMEN'S MOVEMENT.

What was projected one year ago by a hundred Toronto laymen in the school room of St. James' Cathedral was reported on, on Saturday last, as accepted by the laymen of the Churches of Canada: the men have undertaken the task and are putting their shoulders to the wheel. This one year's experience of the Laymen's Missionary Movement is among the most significant and most far-reaching features in present-day life in Canada. In its scope and purpose and challenge it measures up to, if indeed it does not far excel, any political campaign. It has to do, not merely with the institutions of Canadian life and the external manifestations of Canadian activity, but also, and far more penetratingly, it touches the very life of all our institutions, social, commercial, political, and it enters into the power that works through and sustains and makes effective the various activities and enterprises of both the individual and the nation. The missionary movement has to do with the character of our people and with the quality and ideals of our civilization. And this movement of the laymen of the Churches has to do not only with Canada and Canadian life, but it carries in its sweep the impress of Canada on the nations of the world. In the very highest sense it deals with world-politics. It conceives of the evangelization of Canada as a step in the emancipation and evangelization of all the world. An enterprise of such size and moment makes little lives great, and both in its objective and in its reflex influence it becomes a force making for righteousness, gathering up and giving purpose to every other undertaking. And it is good to be told that from Cape Breton to Victoria the men of Canada have in them to rise to so great an occasion.

CANADA'S THANKSGIVING.

Monday next, Nov. 9th, the birthday of Our Gracious King, will also be Canada's Thanksgiving Day. As people and individuals we have much to be thankful for. The sentiment that should prevail among all our people is fittingly expressed in the Toronto Sunday World as follows: "Goodness has come to our countrymen in such varied ways that only the contrite heart, full of true devotion to the Supreme Power, can send up the prayer of thankfulness that will symbolize the best appreciation. If we look back over the waning year, the thought of a bountiful harvest, of a contented people, of a flourishing trade, of an expanding nationhood and a united people will come to us. These are blessings. They demand the sincerest thanks, but they are not all. It is meet that we should rejoice, at times, over what we have not. Pestilence, famine, widespread disaster, war, the inborn disposition for cruelty, such as are to be found in Russia and Turkey, have not disturbed our peace. We are free from most of the burdens that other lands must carry, while enriched by nearly every good that freedom, progress, advanced education and national happiness can give."

LORD STRATHCONA'S TITLE.

(Ottawa Free Press.)
The announcement that the King has created Lord Strathcona a Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order makes apropos the repudiation of a recent statement by His Lordship in reference to his title: "After my death the title will not be continued exactly in its present form. As a matter of fact, there have been two letters patent in regard to it. The first, which was issued by the late Queen Victoria, gave me the title of Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal of Glenoe, in the county of Argyll, and of Montreal, in the Province of Quebec and Dominion of Canada. The second letter's patent, which was issued by the present king, gave me the title of Baron Mount Royal and Strathcona. It is this last named form of the title which will be handed down to my successors, the Canadian part of the title coming first, you see, and the Scottish part second."

Lord Strathcona has only one child—a daughter, who is married to Dr. Bliss Howard, a Montreal doctor now settled in London. The title will descend to her and to her heirs male. So that as a matter of fact his real name is Lord Mount Royal and Strathcona, instead of, as generally used, Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal.

KING'S BIRTHDAY.

King Spends Day With Family at Sandringham Palace.

London, Nov. 10.—The King spent his 67th birthday with the family privately at Sandringham, where he is entertaining a large house party, including the Queen of Norway, the Prince and Princess of Wales and the Russian and Austrian ambassadors. The King occupied the morning in receiving a great number of telegrams of congratulations. He received many handsome gifts.

Later the King and Queen and their guests attended the meet of the Royal Norfolk Hunt, which made a picturesque scene in glorious weather at Bayton Hall, the Earl of Romney's seat. In the evening there was the customary birthday dinner and party, with a cinematograph entertainment for the royal children.

The King's birthday was celebrated in London and at all the naval ports with the customary salutes and illuminations.
