To-morrow Will Be The Shortest Day In The Year

Waists of Rare Beauty for the Festive Season

Whether for yourself or a very near friend, you will be captivated by the grace and prettiness of these waist treasures.

Which do you prefer—the dainty, diaphanous materials or the charming crepe de chenes, charmeuse or simple silk?

Is it for dressy or tailored wear? Note the grace and style distinction of these soft-chiffons and crepes, many of them with color tones that harmonize or stand out in vivid contrast. Here's one with touches of white brocade and tiny vest of shadow net; another, all frilly with lace—the quintessence of femininity.

Perhaps you would like a crepe de chene in plain shirt style with soft layover collar and cuffs, its only adornment being handsome pearl stud buttons in self-color. You can get this style in white, champagne or old blue.

Another style, also crepe de chene, comes Silk and wool crepes, cream and Copen-hagen, with collar of contrasting Bulgarian net $3.75.

Chiffons, plain and checked, alone or contrasted with colors that suggest the dominance of the East, - - $4.50 upwards.

Little groups of tucking in unexpected places, odd little frills, the prettiest possible buttons and pipings contrive to make this Christmas group irresistible.

In Anticipation of Christmas Morning

much yet remains to be done; THE MORNING HOURS are the acceptable time. Here is what one little clerk said to a customer yesterday:-We were so tired when we came to work this morning that all the girls were "Were you working late last night?" enquired the customer, kindly.

"Only till a quarter past ten," was the reply; "but we were kept SO busy-and that is nothing to what it will be from now till Christmas Eve. O, dear! I wish Christmas was over!" The crowd had to be served, and it stayed and stayed, all regardless of how tired were the girls behind the counters.
