

BULGARIA WAVING, DECISION SOON

CALLED FOR RECRUITS AT GREATEST DEMONSTRATION IN HISTORY OF LOYALIST CITY

A large marquee had been erected on the north side of King Square where men received information respecting conditions of service with the colors. Although the number of those offering was not so large as some had anticipated, it is thought, with good reason, that the incidents of the day will result in many more men coming forward at an early date.

From the platform erected on the triangular plot on the north side of King Square, with flags of the allies depending from the rail, and amidst large and small flags, including the Union Jack, of course, earnest addresses were given by selected speakers, and their remarks were listened to with an eagerness that left no doubt on the minds of those present that there is an urgent need for recruits amongst the men of the Maritime Provinces to frustrate the diabolical schemes of the Teutonic military hosts who strive to subject honest people to intolerable conditions.

Speeches were given by Mayor Frink, Rev. T. Harrison, of St. George, Major Gray, Rev. M. E. Connon and Lieutenant Brooks. Many prominent citizens, including Lieut.-Col. E. T. Sturdee, who had a seat on the platform, were attentive listeners to the remarks of those who had come to give their views on the situation, and to impress upon the younger men, their wives and sweethearts the urgent need for donning the uniform of the King.

The Proceedings.

E. A. Schofield, after the 62nd Fusiliers Regimental Band had played "God Save the King," and three mighty cheers had been given for His Majesty, stated that he wished to correct an error published in one of the evening papers, that the 64th as well as the 65th were recruited up to strength. With the 64th it was true, but the 64th Battalion at five o'clock today had only 738 men and 1150 were needed. He made this statement in order to correct any misapprehension which might run in the minds of the public, and all recruits signed on during the evening would go to the 64th Maritime Province Battalion.

Mayor Frink.

The chairman then introduced His Worship the Mayor as the first speaker.

Mayor Frink said in part:

"It seems hardly necessary for me to explain this affair as the conditions which exist in the present world struggle, and the carrying on of the campaign have been well brought out in the city press. I was exceedingly glad when the chairman announced that the 64th Battalion had not yet been recruited to strength, as was erroneously stated in one of the evening papers. The 64th requires 400 additional men and there can be no doubt in my mind that the regiment will be filled, if I am a good judge, as I look over this vast assembly. I will not enter into the plans of this campaign as due notice will be given in the newspapers. No doubt you know that these meetings were called for one express reason, that of a known feeling which pervaded the minds of the people as regards recruiting. The men of the committee thought it was their duty, their real duty and their whole duty, not only to remove that feeling but to do their part in the conservation of those ideals which have been entrusted to us, and I feel confident that they will do it. (Cheers.)

"To the men in the rear, those who have by chance fallen below that which is expected of them, this is not the time to talk but the time to do. The people who made this spot history, who built this fair city, were not shocked at adversity but smiled at it with a sense of security that was only obtained by sacrifice. The men who are responsible for the Empire of ours, who for the past one thousand years have sacrificed their lives for the name of England, did it so that we could enjoy it, and we will enjoy it another thousand years if you young men enlist. This is not a dream, but a reality." (Loud applause.)

E. A. Schofield, the chairman, then said a few words with regard to the object of the meeting. He said the fact that New Brunswick and St. John were not supplying the required number of men that they should, was the months against the power of Hell. In less than twenty minutes that famous old regiment had stormed the heights and held the British line. Such tales of heroism should stir the hearts of our young men to a breaking point.

Three Appeals

"I wish to make three appeals, first to the young men. When the cry came across the water, your country needs you, Canada everywhere was seized with a spirit of patriotism. However, there is something greater than honor. The highest form of patriotism today is the call of your country. When international peace exists, when the bugles cease to blow, and when the guns cease to roar, then we may have greater expansion and development, but now common civilization calls you tonight to enlist. We have been building a civilization for years past. Are we going to sacrifice it to the mad Hun? Common liberty calls you. What would it mean to have German culture and ideals for the liberty long nourished and cherished by our forefathers? That would tear one bough from the old British oak. The King of Heaven calls you. Am I making an unworthy statement if I say God calls you, as he marshals the souls of men around His throne? As His Son died to make men more holy, we will die to make men free. The call comes direct to you young men. Answer the call.

The Mothers and Sisters

"Appealing to the mothers and sisters, I wonder if they realize what the call means. Do they realize that fair Belgium, with its beautiful femininity, has been instructors to the world, teaching other nations higher and better sociality. Quoting an American author, 'In one week the position of women was reduced to that of a shoddy. Although pitiful, it is absolutely true.'

"When your sons are called to don the khaki, to defend the virtue of Belgium, I call on you in the name of the sorrowing sisters that ravaged land, to send your boys to protect their honor and virtue.

To Citizens Generally

"In appealing to the citizens at large, I wish to say that it grieved me to learn through the press of the unjust criticism which was heaped upon the 25th Battalion during their stay in your city. I have gone through the scenes of warfare and battle and I have seen suffering in its worst forms and I say keep your criticism until the war is over. Taking Tommy Atkins man for man and head for head he will compare with any other gathering of men in the world. Let us take him as we have him. Although an absent-minded beggar and full of faults, he is a man, and he is left to do something and he has his little one beyond him.

Major Day.

"When I was at a university in Berlin," said Major Day, "it was made clear to me that a predominant idea of the German people was that, for colonization purposes, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick must be had. They still want to extend their influence in this way. See how the Australians and New Zealanders have left their homes to uphold the honor of the Empire, see how our own Canadians have fallen in line for this same purpose. We are now called upon to fight for Canada and the Empire, our homes, our loved ones. When we think of the treatment received by the women and children in St. Julien at the hands of the German soldiers, the violation of all that is dear to home life, of the time when six Canadians wiped out these men in the interest of what we call cleanliness, are we now going to let the German sway prevail?

"We are now called upon to fight for all that is worth while and must not forget that this is a war in which we Canadians are preeminently interested, in a way that admits of no question as to the duty of all Canadians to respond to the call for more men. I may tell you that there is nothing that will frighten the Germans so much as to let them know that more of us are coming. When they know that they will have the 65th Battalion, and the 64th after them there will be panic in the hearts of the Germans. There is no clothing more fit to wear than

BULGARIA BARGAINING WITH TURKEY AND GOVERNMENT'S POSITION EMBARRASSING

Majority of Statesmen Favor Going in With Allies, but Government Undecided Which Side's Terms Will be Most Advantageous—Won't be Satisfied With Less than Whole of Macedonia.

Geneva, Sept. 3, via Paris.—Information reaching here from Bucharest, by way of Zurich, represents the situation in Bulgaria as becoming more unsatisfactory, owing to the indecision of the government, which is attempting to conserve the country's neutrality and at the same time satisfy its national ambitions. A majority of Bulgarian statesmen favor a rapprochement with the Quadruple Entente, Serbia and Greece. In view of the state of public feeling, and the news from Nis, that Serbia is willing to make territorial concessions, the Bulgarian government finds it embarrassing to continue its policy of neutrality.

It is not forth that German diplomatic agents have been unable to give Bulgaria sufficiently satisfactory guarantees concerning the furnishing of ammunition and other supplies. Relations between Bucharest and Sofia are strained.

Still Bargaining With Turkey

Sofia, Sept. 1, via London, Sept. 3.—Despite the fact that a decision of the Bulgarian government regarding the Macedonian question is generally considered imminent, as it is realized on all sides that the time is not far distant when this issue must culminate in more than diplomatic conversation, there are no signs of excitement here, the capital remaining in its usual quiet state. At the foreign office this afternoon the following statement was made to the Associated Press correspondent:

"The Bulgarian government is engaged in formulating its reply to the Serbian government, although Serbia's statement has not yet been received, being given in this by an intimation recently given by the Quadruple Entente. Meanwhile the Bulgarian government is continuing its negotiations with the Turkish government concerning the cessation of the Lykometz-Adrianople-Dedagitch railroad line and certain adjacent territories of great strategic importance. The prospects of a quick and satisfactory settlement are good although hitherto the Turkish government has required much time in reaching decisions on matters contributory to the main issue.

"The Bulgarian government is not inclined to enter into any hasty adjustments. Statements to the contrary, purporting to come from Bulgarian sources, are made by political opponents of the government, who are using them among the people for internal political reasons. Now, as

Grace Cunard and Francis Ford, the Great Favorites, in Our Brand New Serial Drama

IMPERIAL—"The Broken Coin"

THE ADVENTURES OF KITTY GREY IN THE KINGDOM OF GRETZHOFFEN

ALTHOUGH "The Grey O' Hearts," "The Master Key" and "The Black Box" were immensely successful serial stories in Imperial Theatre, even more successful things are presently assured for "The Broken Coin" which commences this week. It is truly amazing the popularity obtained by this story already in the larger cities, particularly because Francis Ford and Grace Cunard, the favorite players in the "Facile Love" series once again assume the stellar roles. Week-end continued stories have been very popular in our theatre and it has been deemed advisable to continue them in spite of the fact that we are using the highly literary Viagraph serial "The Goddess" each Monday and Tuesday. "The Broken Coin" has no scientific complications or deep, confusing sub-plots, but is a clear, understandable and very engaging narrative that will appeal to everybody, both old and young.

FORTY-TWO SUBMARINES SUNK BY BRITISH NAVY

New York, Sept. 4.—A special to the Times from Washington says:

"Up to three weeks ago the British navy alone, without regard to the navies of France and Italy, have sunk or captured forty-two German submarines. This information is contained in a personal letter from Field Marshal Sir John French, commander-in-chief of the British army in Flanders to one of the best known men in America, who is an old friend of Sir John. It indicates that Germany has lost at least half a hundred submarines since the war began. French destroyers are known to have sunk several submarines, and Italy may have accounted for one or two.

"The number mentioned in Sir John French's letter is only two short of the full number of German submarines built and building on July 1, 1914, as officially announced by the American bureau of naval intelligence. But it is estimated that by using new shifts of men every three hours, a boat can be finished in nine months. Even this minimum may have been reduced. It is regarded here as certain that Germany has launched many submarines since the war began.

"News that about fifty German submarines have been sunk goes far toward explaining the complete change in the German attitude toward this phase of the war. Recently editorials have appeared in German papers warning the people that too much must not be expected from the submarine campaign. These editorials seemed to pave the way in the public mind for the concessions decided on toward the United States. But it seems now that they were also intended to soften the shock to be expected when German submarine losses were finally announced."

khaki. You, of young blood, do your duty!"

Rev. M. E. Connon.

"You will all agree with me that we should go where the call of duty is greatest. There is a call now; now is the day; now is the hour. I am myself going away. For what reason? I will tell you. First, because I love my home; secondly, because I believe Christianity invites me; thirdly, because I fear the Germans might catch us unawares. So, I will do all in my power to prevent the accomplishment of the plans of those who would take from us all that we love. I think there are many who, did they realize what the present conditions mean, will fall in and uphold all those things that are dear to home and Empire."

Lieutenant Brooks.

"It is our duty to fight for country in the circumstances now before us. Germany is trying to get the upper hand of us. She has already conquered Belgium. Why are we called upon to fight? Because we are a part of the British Empire. Surely everyone must realize that the Empire is worth fighting for. I was glad to hear the news some time ago that Australia, New Zealand and South Africa and India had taken a hand in this conflict. Every young man should now engage to do his part in upholding the honor and welfare of the Empire."

Massey Bands.

The proceedings, which began at 8 o'clock, ended soon after ten, when the combined bands played the National Anthem and the crowd dispersed in an orderly fashion. E. A. Schofield, with the aid of a megaphone, addressed the speakers. Ice cream was supplied the bandmen by the People's Dairy without charge, a treat which the musicians desire to acknowledge with thanks.
