From Yesterday's Second Edition.
THE OLIVER TRIAL.
The Prisoner Sentenced.
The case of the prisoner sentenced to the Penitentiary for a term of six months for a crime committed in the month of August, 1872, was called on for the second time on Thursday afternoon, at 4 p. m. he was on his way to his cell, having previously insured his life, which has become of some value to him now that sickle fortune had made him a millionaire.
Mr. Peniston is 45, tall and slim, and rather stylish. He bears his good fortune with modesty, and stationarily avoids any display. Yesterday morning he presented himself and his lucky ticket at the office of the firm expecting to draw the cash for the ticket. He was much disappointed to learn that the payment could not be made until the receipt of the official drawings, which will come by the Havana steamer on Wednesday next. After inquiries as to the best means of drawing the cash on his ticket he was informed that the firm had no office in St. John, and that he must go to the office of the firm at Wall Street in the effort to find an obliging banker.
THE LARGEST PRIZE ON RECORD.
The drawing of April 22 contained the largest prize ever awarded by the Havana Lottery, and was looked upon as a very lucky one. It aggregated $1,200,000, and was divided into 100 prizes of $20,000, $10,000, $5,000, and so on down to $1,000. Mr. Peniston had drawn the largest prize ever drawn in America. Two years ago ticket $444 drew a $200,000 prize, but it was divided up into what are termed double combinations, that is, the number 444 was drawn in 1871, 1872, and 1873. Mr. Peniston's ticket was drawn on a roll and was divided into 100 prizes of $20,000 each. Mr. Peniston's ticket was drawn on a roll and was divided into 100 prizes of $20,000 each. Mr. Peniston's ticket was drawn on a roll and was divided into 100 prizes of $20,000 each.
