

church, the new light and strength brought to our members, all combine to make the series one of the most remarkable experiences in our history.

At the same time two facts show that it was not as deep as at first expected :—

1 Our Missionary contributions have, on the whole, diminished. 2. Our members have not been stirred to that earnestness in seeking souls which ought to characterize a real revival. These defects must be remedied at once, if this movement is to result in as real an advance of God's kingdom as we desire.

The Cottage prayer-meetings have not been held as regularly as we expected, chiefly on account of the difficulty in getting suitable places for them. On the second line west, and at Elder Jas. McClure's they have been more successful than elsewhere. They will be carried on in the coming year as opportunity offers.

Of our different organizations the reports will say all that is necessary. In general, they are in good condition. But they all need a more practical interest and sympathy from the membership of the church.

Now as to the future :—

1. It is desirable to take measures to secure more regular Bible study in our home.

2. The Century Fund will call for earnest attention. The great blessings we have received should inspire us to make a great effort to wipe out our own debt and to give substantial aid to the common Fund.

3 We should aim at greater results both in numbers won to Christ, and in the consecration of our members to God for active service. Everywhere there are signs of a coming revival. When it breaks over the church we must be among the first to receive the blessing.
