CUTS manager fired

The Canadian University Travel Service (CUTS) office in SUB is looking for a new manager.

Sharon Rempel, who was hired to manage the new Edmonton office less than a month ago, has been released according to Trenor Tilly of Vancouver, who is the Edmonton manager's immediate superior. No reason was given for the decision, which Tilly claimed came from his boss in Toronto.

Rempel claims that she was not told why she lost her job.

"I was booted out of there in a flash for no reason as far as I can see," she said.

Deanna Hurd, from the Toronto office of CUTS, has been brought in to run the operation until a permanent manager is hired.

B of G reps intimidated

VANCOUVER (CUP) — UBC administrator President Doug Kenny is trying to intimidate newly-elected student board of governors members Glenn Wong and Bruce Armstrong, former student board representative Paul Sandhu charged Monday.

All board members except Wong and Armstrong received a complete information packet Thursday dealing with the agenda of both the open and closed session of the Feb. 6 board meeting.

The two student board members were not supplied with any information on the closed session of today's meeting until Monday at a meeting with Kenny and Board chairman Ian Greenwood.

Wong and Armstrong said Feb. 12 that although it was never officially stated at the private meeting, it could be "speculated that the incident was a result of Sandhu's expulsion from a board meeting in December.

Sandhu was expelled from the closed finance section of a board meeting after discussing allegedly confidential information about the financing of UBC's Asian centre with the Ubyseye.

Sandhu said when he was elected to the board last year, he was given his complete package along with everyone else.

"This is going to make it difficult to provide effective representation," Wong said. "It will be hard to read all information in the packet in time."

Wong said the incident was an inconvenience and Armstrong said it did not make them feel welcome on the board.

Armstrong added the incident could have more far-reaching implications.

Bad baby food boycotted

HALIFAX (CUP) — Several Halifax organizations are boycotting Nestle food products for promoting the use of its infant formula in place of breast feeding in developing countries.

The Sisters of Charity, OXFAM, 10 Days for World Development and the other groups who met Feb. 6 will urge their members to stop buying Nestle products and to write letters of protest to the company's Canadian headquarters in Toronto. They will also contact another 50 Halifax area organizations about participating in the boycott, according to Nadine McNamara of 10 Days for World Development.

The boycott was first organized in 1977 in the United States by the Infant Formula Action Coalition to publicize the dangers posed by the use of infant formula in developing nations.

Mothers who have been persuaded to buy the expensive formula often dilute it with water to make it last a week or longer. The lack of clean water or proper sterilizing facilities, means that infant deaths due to infection and malnutrition have risen significantly, according to Eleanor MacLean of OXFAM.

Don't give reactors away

VANCOUVER (CUP) — Canada should not supply underdeveloped nations with nuclear technology or fuel, said Progressive Conservative MP Bob Wenman.

"We should not at this time export technology or supplies because we can't be sure it won't be used for nuclear proliferation," Wenman told 30 people at the University of British Columbia.

"For example, India is using Canadian technology and fuel for purposes other than energy use," he said. India developed its first nuclear weapon with Canadian-supplied technology a few years ago.

Wenman said Canada should have a moral obligation to have an international concern about nuclear supplies it releases.

"We have a tendency to cover our eyes and ears after we supply (nuclear) reactors and fuel and say it's gone, we don't have to worry about it anymore."

He said he thought it deplorable that previous ministers of the Environment and of External Affairs have said that Canada has no responsibility for nuclear supplies after they leave the country.

There is a great need and demand for energy in the world today and Canada should perhaps be willing to supply nations who want nuclear energy, Wenman said. But he insisted some kind of control be established.

Dirty 30's again

"The Dirty Thirties in Prairie Canada" is a free public conference being held at the University of Calgary to explore some of the ways in which the depression years have left their mark.

The conference, being held Friday and Saturday, February 23 and 24, is the 11th Annual Western Canadian Studies Conference, organized by the U of C department of history.

"Many of our current concerns, attitudes and policies originated in the 1930's," notes Dr. D. Francis, one of the conference organizers.

The conference will offer first-hand recountings of life in the 30's, as well as a session of folk songs from the 30's featuring Rika Ruebsaat and John Bartlett, a folksinger from Vancouver.

Although conference sessions are open, a registration fee of $35 is charged for banquet, two luncheons, and dinner and a reception. For registration details, contact Francis in the U of C department of history, phone 284-7293 or 284-6420.
