Smiles

"John," asked the lawyer's wife, who had recently taken up the health-culture fad, "is it best to lie on the right side or the left side?"

"My dear," replied the legal luminary, "if one is on the right side, it isn't usually necessary to lie at all!"

An Irish woman once had twin boys who looked so very much alike that the people who knew the family often wondered how their parents told them apart.

After church one day the minister was admiring the boys.

"But, sister," was his objection, "I don't see how you can tell them apart."

"Ah," answered the mother proudly, "that's easy. I just whip Mulligan, and if he cries, it's Hooligan."—National Monthly.

Abraham Lincoln was exceedingly astonished one day as he was inspecting the prison in Washington by a prisoner exclaiming, "How are you, Mr. President? I am glad to see you. I believe that you and I have been in every goal in the Union."

"This and the goal in Springfield are the only ones I was ever in in my life," replied Lincoln.

"Very likely," responded the "jail bird," "but I've been in all the rest."

Walter Christie, with his racing car, the Blue Flyer, was talking to a French chauffeur on the Cape May beach.

"Eet makes warm," said the Frenchman, wiping his brow.

"You mean, it is warm—not it makes warm," said Mr. Christie, laughing. "You remind me of the Frenchman at the English Alpine Club."

"This Frenchman said, enthusiastically, to a red-faced, stout Englishman, with calves as big as barrels:

"Ah, you have climb ge Matterhorn? It is a foot to be proud of."

"Pardon me," the Englishman returned. "You don't mean foot. You mean feat."

"Ah," said the Frenchman, 'you have climb her more zen often, hein?'—Epworth Herald
