

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., AUG. 10, 1892.

The New School Building.

The adjourned special meeting of the ratepayers of the Wolfville school section, on Tuesday evening, was well attended—every seat in the room being occupied. After some remarks from different gentlemen present, a resolution favoring the adopting of the Fuller & Warren system of heating and ventilating for the new school building was unanimously adopted.

Summer Hotels.

There is a report that a rich syndicate has been formed in New York for the purpose of erecting a number of large summer hotels in the Province. According to the Halifax papers, a representative of the syndicate was in this city recently, and intended visiting different parts of Nova Scotia for the purpose of selecting sites and making other arrangements. Among the places selected we are glad to notice Wolfville. We are of the opinion that no better place in the Province could be selected for a summer hotel.

The Crop Prospects.

The harvest of the hay crop in this county has been disappointing, and the promise of the early spring has been fully realized. No such growth of grass as in the present season has been known here for many years, and the average yield over last year has been variously estimated at from fifteen to twenty-five per cent. Not only has the growth been excessive, but the opportunities for harvesting it over the average, so that a much greater quantity of hay has been produced than in any year during the last decade.

Vegetables of all kinds are unusually promising. The growth of the potato tops, notwithstanding the ravages of the beetle, are fully up to the average, and if the blight keeps off for two or three weeks longer, a heavy crop will doubtless be harvested. Cabbages, turnips, mangles, beets, squashes, cucumbers, etc., are exceptionally promising and average crops fully assured.

Conditions Fairly Contrasted.

We have not in Canada the vast population, the great cities, nor yet the enormous fortunes that are found in the United States. But, on the other hand, it cannot be denied that the masses of the people with us are more contented and truly prosperous than in the adjoining republic. Wealth is more evenly distributed in Canada. There is not to be found in our large cities anything approaching the abject poverty which can be seen in New York or Boston, nor have we the overgrown crop of millionaires that flourishes in the United States. Here the happy mean has been struck; there is neither degrading poverty nor corrupting riches, but the average wealth per head is greater in the Dominion than in any state in the world save Australia. We have escaped too, the great tide of ignorant foreign immigration that has come in as a flood upon our shores, and which constitutes so serious a menace to popular government with them.

For the few, there are certainly opportunities on the other side of the line such as Canada, with her smaller population, cannot possibly offer. But we say again that to anyone who looks beneath the surface and who is concerned for the masses who toil rather than the few who revel in luxury, there is but one conclusion—that conditions in Canada give promise of greater permanence than in the United States, and that our people in the main are happier and enjoy more genuine prosperity than do the Americans.

In addition to the president the other officers are as follows: Vice-president, G. J. C. White, Hampton, N. B., and Rev. F. D. Davidson, North River, P. E. I. Secy., 1891-94, Prof. E. M. Keirstead, Wolfville, N. S. Assistant Secy., Rev. W. C. Goncher, St. Stephen, N. B. Treas., J. S. Tritter, Sussex, N. B.

The proceedings of convention will open with a religious service, followed by the election of officers, calling the roll of delegates, and the appointment of a committee of arrangements, after which reports will be received concerning the state of the denomination, the annual report of home mission work, and the report of the Grand Lique mission, followed by a public service, at which home missions will probably be the theme.

On Sunday a Convention sermon will be preached, the preacher this year being Rev. W. B. Hinson, or his alternate, Rev. S. Welton. If last year's order be followed, there will be further discussion of the Grand Lique mission on Monday, followed by the reading of the Convention Fund report by Rev. Dr. Day, Treas., and further discussion of missionary reports, giving special emphasis to foreign mission work, to be followed by a mass missionary meeting on the evening of Monday. If the same order be observed this year, Tuesday's session will be occupied by a consideration of the report of the publication committee, a report from the treasurer of the Foreign Mission board, and also the report of the board of government.

A large crayon portrait of "Joe" Edwards, grand master of the Oddfellows lodge, is on exhibition at McLaughlin's store. The picture is exceptionally fine, and shows off the grand master's collar, with jewels attached, to good advantage. It is the work of Lewis Rice, whose photo car arrived here again for a short stay last Wednesday.—Digby Correspondent of Yarmouth Times.

Temperance Hints.

Take the temperance pledge yourself. Never flinch from a right course, or from a personal application of any truth.

Remember that the drunkards of twenty years hence are the unpugged young people of to-day.

Remember, and teach, that one has no more right to injure himself than he has to injure another.

Do not limit temperance to abstinence from intoxicating liquor, but include right living of every sort.

A Farmer's Pledge.

"Hello, Bub, who are you?" exclaimed one of Tom Marther's reapers, as a seven year-old boy one noon appeared among them.

"I am papa's temperance pledge, aren't I, papa?" piped out the jolly little chap.

"You are! Well then I have a good mind to pitch you into the middle of next week, if its you who are keeping us, from having a comfortin' drop of whiskey and water," said a reaper.

"Yes it is me!" laughed little Dick in a high plea; "and if you want to know what papa signed me, I'll show you," and as proud as any soldier displaying his scars the little boy pulled down the collar of his calico shirt, and showed a queer, white scar on his shoulder, reaching up to his throat, then saying a loud oath.

"That's a good start for the barn he spud off for a ride.

"Yes, boy," said Tom, "that little fellow is my pledge, and I signed him though he does not know what it really means. You know it isn't meanness that makes me refuse you the liquor which other farmers deal out, for I agree to pay you more wages. Its my hatred for the accursed stuff, and my regard for your real good. When I bought this farm ten years ago I did not know the taste of rum or whiskey. Everybody took a little, as I found in harvest times, and when work is pressing, so I fell into the same way; a drop if the weather is very hot; and a little if it was very cold; a long drink noons if I was hard at work. Once in a while of a Sunday, in the old meeting-house, when the choir was singing a hymn my mother used to sing, I had an uneasy feeling that I was slipping down hill. I allways kept hard liquor in my cellar; all my work-hands had it, and somehow the farm began to run down.

Summer before last it was pretty hot, and I was not very well; had been having chills. When they came I thought nothing helped them more than a little rum, a good deal whiskey. One noon in the field I was rather hungry; the dinner horn was not sounded, and I picked up my jug and took a long pull. With the heat and taking it on an empty stomach, the whiskey flew to my head as never before. I cut the grain every way, the ground rising up and going down under me, and the farm shifted till the points of the compass were all wrong. You just say that boy of mine! He is my only one; his mother's idol, and, well I would die for the boy any day. The little chap had taken his puppy and wandered off when I was working. It was hot. He was only five years old.

When did he do that?—but he tumbled down where the tall grain would shade him, and go to sleep with the puppy curled up and doing the same. Well, the dizziness I got the more recklessly I swung around, and suddenly I slashed out with that sharp steel—and good heaven, boys! Just you fancy it? The poor little puppy never yelped, his throat was cut so clean; and that boy of mine!

That great gash down his soft white flesh right across his tender little throat, but he escaped, for the puppy nuzzled there!

I don't know much about the rest of the day nor the time when I all Dr Kinley wouldn't die. But when he came home he might live, I just don't know. Lord, is my temperance pledge! I never touch one drop of liquor while I live, and this boy, whose life has been wasted, never shall either, if prayers and only example and teaching can prevent it.

So, boys, I can't treat you any more, my pledge is blood.

Sale of Firearms to Minors.

The provisions of the new criminal code with respect to the sale of firearms to minors are far more severe than most people imagine.

Every one is guilty of an offence, liable, on summary conviction, to a penalty not exceeding three months imprisonment, or any amount of money, or both, if he sells or gives any pistol or air-gun, or any ammunition therefor, to a minor, under the age of sixteen years, unless he satisfies the justice before whom he is charged that he had good cause for so doing, or that he had good cause to believe that the minor was not under the age of sixteen.

Can Dyspepsia be Cured. This is a question often asked by those who suffer from the effects of this disease. The question usually arises after the miserable sufferer has tried nearly all the remedies recommended and has failed to derive any permanent relief from them or from physicians. To such the testimony of a well-known and highly respectable young man of Picton may be of interest.

Mr Wm. Adamson, under date of March 15th, 1892, writes:—"I am very glad to add my testimony to the marvelous efficacy of your St Lawrence Dyspepsia Powders and Bitters. Mine was a very bad case of dyspepsia, and though I had tried nearly all the popular remedies recommended or guaranteed as cures for that disease, I received little or no benefit, and almost began to think there was no cure for me.

It was then that I was induced to give your remedies a trial though I must confess I was not at all sanguine as to the result. But the results were such that I was induced to give your remedies a trial though I must confess I was not at all sanguine as to the result.
