CHAPTER II.

To the Gentlemen of P. E. Island, Greeting: GENTLEMEN.

TIME and Tide wait for no man, and in order to keep pace with time, we must travel a railroad speed if we expect to posses ourselves of the tide there is nour affairs. Time passes very slow with the youthful mind. But with the middle aged man, how swift! Swifter than a weavers shuttle, we are told. Yes, gentlemen, the world is growing wiser and weaker—weaker in superstition and idolatry—wiser in training up the mind to perfect manhood—keeping sell our appetites and passions under subjection—clothing the body with the finest, nestest, and most fashionable productions of the NEW YORK CLOTENING STORES, until you become like the filly of the vality, which neither toils nor spins, yet Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of these. Gentlemen, as
