similarity of the bills was merely a coincidence.

When Colonel Burleigh was asked if he wished to question the witness the first real flurry of the enquiry occurred. He said he had no questions to ask.

After a conference by the members of the Court, the President informed Colonel Burleigh that responsibility lay on him entirely for expenditure of all funds as he was commanding officer. He would have to show the disposal of the field allowance kept from the men totalling $7,515 and the difference between the subsistence allowance of 75 cents per day per man claimed from the government for the first 5 1-2 days, and the 40 cents paid on contract to Bradley and Sons. It was his place as commanding officer to produce receipts showing disposal of these funds.

"Then I might just as well give up now," said Colonel Burleigh helplessly. "I can't produce the receipts. I haven't them."

"That is the Court's ruling," said President Cruikshank.

Colonel Burleigh went on to say he had to be out and around at the different posts and consequently had to delegate to others work such as purchase of supplies. He added that Lt. Greenwood, the quartermaster would go to the market and buy car loads of vegetables, sausage, etc., for which money he could not possibly get receipts from farmers.

"To protect yourself you should have seen this was done, however," said Col. Young.

Sergeant V. S. Moyer joined the 19th Aug. 5th, 1914, and was stationed at Niagara Falls under Major Scott. The rations were good. He made up the muster room. One woman, Mrs. McKinnon, was on the payroll. She was cooking. Her husband, Daniel McKinnon was on the force. He identified E. MacKinnon on the payroll as her signature.

He didn't remember the incident of Capt. Rothwell discharging one woman.

Lt. A. J. Hubbert, formerly the manager of Davies, here, contracted to ration the second contingent of the 19th for overseas at 50 cents a day. He had another contract subsequently at 45 cents.

Mr. Hodgins here by records showed the subsistence allowance for the men was 75 cents a day, but Lieut. Hubbert could not say where the difference in the money went or if the men received it or not.

He made contracts with Captain Gardiner and Captain Gander. He couldn't say if the paymaster drew the full subsistence of 75 cents per man.

Lt. Hubbert was in charge of the Machine gun section and the field allowance for these men was withheld for a considerable time. Colonel Burleigh was appealed to and the men were paid in lump sums.

Journalment Take As Nobody Wa Captain Borland ing Fund For Ex

The military enquiry into the 1919 reconstruction finances has been adjourned until Monday at 2.30, when it is likely that Col. Burleigh, who was in command of the frontier force at the beginning of the war, will be examined. There are indications that the enquiry is near an end, and it is possible that it may end with Colonel Burleigh's evidence. This is merely conjecture. Some officers who served in the frontier force have not yet been examined, but it may not be the intention of General Cruikshank to examine

The two outstanding features of the enquiry so far are that some officers who served in the frontier force have not yet been examined, and that the absence of receipts in connection with the thousands of dollars held by the men for extra rations.

Colonel C. O. Dodge, the officer in charge of the Transport and Supplies, was examined yesterday afternoon. The rations allowed by the government to soldiers.

It was asked if there ever had been any order allowing substitutions—for instance, lamb for beef—or such, but he said he knew of no such order. At Christmas the men were exchanged for turkeys, but by special permission.

Captain David Borland, who was in command of the canal force in February 1915, was called next. He afterwards joined the 51st Battalion. He was adjutant in the 19th.

It was asked about returns from the stoppages of pay of the men and he said that prior to his going into office these returns from the posts had not been made. He remedied this.

It was said the neglect seemed to be all over the canal force, the stoppages not having been made with the pay sheets.

Captain Borland said that in the case of a man breaking his rifle, for instance, the man should be brought before a court and his stoppage reduced and the amount deducted from question—which is sure to create a controversy—has been raised by the circulation of the following resolution, passed at a meeting of the clergymen and one layman, Thomas Church (known as the Church), and confirmed by the clergymen and 64 laymen at a recent meeting:

Resolved, That while disclaiming absolutely any intention of forming Protestant bodies of the same name due to them for their work, and while longing to pray for peace and unity among the clergy and laity of the Church of England, we feel we must not only protest against the formation of England being classed as one of "The Five Protestant Churches" of Canada, in the sense of the Inter-Church Movement. Furthermore, we feel that we must not only assert the fact that the Church of England in Canada is an integral part of the Church of England whose faith she has confessed. We found our reason in the solemn declaration of the General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, which says
