A number of the people of this locality had a four days' hunt last week, the object of search being a middle-aged, unmarried woman named Kitty Finlayson who had become insane. She was residing temporarily with Mrs. Lexy Mc-Kenzie, and on Wednesday evening, taking advantage of a moment when that good woman's eye was not upon her, slipped away, and nothwithstanding the most vigilant search of a large number of the neighbors, was not found till Sunday evening, having been with-out food for four days. We understand that it is the intention of her friends to have her sent to an asylum.

OBITUARY.—The subject of this brief memoir, Sarah Dougherty, was born in Ashfield in the year 1851. She was an earnest and dayseld memoir and dayseld memoir of young ladies from Dungarnon were on a pleasure jaunt to this village on Tuesday. They spent a very happy time boating, croquet pleasure earnest and devoted member of the church of Edgland, for many years. She was an efficient worker in the Sabbath school. In her long sickness she bore her sufferings with Christian resignation. She calmly fell asleep in the arms of her ed Redeemer, July 14th, 1885, Her remains were interred in the Goderich cemetery followed by a large concourse of mourning friends and sympathizing neighbors. She is the third person in the family who has gone to the spirit land in a few years. The family have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire com-munity, in their sad bereavement. But what has been their loss will be her gain. She was a great favorite with both old and young and will be greatly missed in carrie, Episcopal minister, preached a very impressive sermon last Sabbath in connection with her death.

Now that the North

have returned to the

Some of the anti-Scot

families, and have one down to the breadwing life, we would like to contemporaries banish th as applied to them, from That the men who went west and did their dut due credit for their loya willing to admit, but the sity for glorifying the After all, there was no powder smelt, and the men never saw a shot fir were, we presume, a chance. Just as good were left on the home g lieve that ten times th have been found if the to do just what the N ent did, or were willing far we have been looki west "battles" with the of the telescope. If t business be persisted in examine them with the doing so will discover t was not nearly so lar first. Lieut.-Greeley plorers were "heroes" afterwards dropped in mation. In this stran there are ebbs as well lar sentiment.
