FEW OFFERINGS AT MONDAY'S MARKET

Demand for Wheat and Oats Good, But Supply Is Small.

The market this morning was quiet, with very little offering. There was only a small demand for hay, owing to the large supplies that have been received during the last few The demand for wheat and oats was good, with a limited supply on hand.

Butter and egg prices remain steady.
It was reported that on Saturday a good deal of the fruit and vegetables remained unsold, the inclement weather probably having something to do with this.

Developed Water Power Benefits the Nation

1. Through the development of our Forest Resources

Many of our greatest timber limits are so far removed from our Industrial Centres that they can only be developed economically by the use of Hydro-Electric Power.

The great Pulp and Paper Mills that are such vital factors in our growing export trade could never produce efficiently by using Steam Power. The long haul of coal would render the cost prohibitive, and the advent of Hydro-Electric Power Plants has solved their problem by giving them dependable and cheap power.

It has been our privilege to assist in the development of many of these great pioneer Power Plants that are doing their large part in exploiting economically the untold wealth of our forests and mines.
