The parfound it, too, in affairs of business as well able of the good Samaritan implies that as in war; in monopolies, in the race to every son of Adam is our brother, from acquire wealth by speculation, and in the Greenland to India, and from Chine to eagerness of each one to acquire it for him- Peru. But it is by no means clear that we self, regardless of what the consequences to his brother man might be. Let us note here from the Globe's report :

quote here from the Globe's report:

"Am I my brother's keeperi" So spoke the fratricide. So spoke the ancient Greek, regardless of the welfare of his fellow-man. So spoke the warrior nation rushing with ten thousand soldiers to conquer or humiliate a neighboring state. So asks the wealthy monopolist who sits in his mansion feasting on the delicacies of his well-stocked larder, when a poor laborer begs at his door for bread. Nor is the laborer guiltless as he envies and hates his richer neighbor, or conspires to boycott or assassinate him. In business affairs was there not much the same spirit? Was there not on the part of many a man an effort to keep up appearances regardless of the interests of others? Ware there not men who by some means controlled articles of commerce and thus benefitted themselves, or who built up their own interests by ruining others? Had not tariffs been framed and legislators corrupted merely to secure privileges for persons or corporations? Having secured these privileges, did not the men holding them put their prices beyond the reach of the poor, careless for others so long as they themselves were hoarding money, shutting their eyes to the want about them, for no other purpose, apparently, than that men might say they died rich? Were there not business men who made money by under-paying employes, by rich? Were there not business men who made money by under-paying employes, by ruining their neighbors, men who would re-frain from no traffic so long as they were made

The idea that commercial greed and selfishness is condemned in the scriptures If half the factory operatives in England is a very old one: but the extension of it so as to include protective tariffs in the this continent, but only within a few years moral and a physical benefit. And this is condemnation is comparatively new. On past, Henry Ward Beecher has come out as a free trade champion on religious grounds, and has maintained with great vigour the doctrine that protection is at variance with the spirit of the new testa. this ground alone—that of diffusing factory ment, and that it is our christian duty to throw down our tariff walls and buy freely fairly be held that it is not free trade, but of imported merchandise, in order to give protection, which is most in accord with employment to the poor of other lands. In this very city of Toronto we have several clerical apostles of the same doctrine, notably Rev. Dr. Wild of the Bond street congregational church, and Rev. Mr. Mc. Leod of the Central presbyterian. The issue presented is therefore a live and pertinent one-that of the relation of scripture teaching to commercial protection as existing in our own time, if any such rela-

The World of this city is the only Toronto daily not favorable to the adoption of the Scott act, and its anti-views are given forth in a very half-hearted manner.

The rumor is that a small Toronto daily suspended a few weeks ago because of financial embarrassments, has been aided by funds from the same source, and is to be the medium of anti-Scott matter hereafter. The fact that a good deal of that class of literature is now appearing in its columns appears to confirm these rumors. rumors.

days of Moses to the captivity, the nation's policy was protectionist to a degree, in such commerce and traffic as it had with ontside peoples, as well as in the conduct of government generally. Everything was for the nation, for the people of Israel alone, and for none other. The most intensified form of national policy ever knows was that of the Hebrews, the chosen people of God. In all history, only that of China can be compared with it. They were under command to seek the prosperity of Israel only; whether other nations prospered or not was a matter of no account to them.

We may ask here—are protestant ministers prepared to maintain that Coleridge's view of the old testament as a guide to the political conduct of nations is an erroneous one, and without the sanction of scriptures. Hardly, we should say. But they may reply that the old dispensation has passed away, and that now we are to be guided by the teaching of the new testament. acted very differently.

One milk and water reciter of stale poetry and stale jokes, who does duty in one of the big churches of the city, and who gave utterance to a most lugubrious whine last Sunday morning, because some of his hearers dared to complain of their "inability" to entertain as many people as they had billeted upon them, had actually arranged to send his family away to escape the cost and trouble of doing his share, and although this very consistent (?) gentleman is in receipt of a stipend and perquisites of about $3500 a year, it is said that he intends to "board around" among his friends during the summer months, and while conference is in session help them to entertain his brethren from elsewhere.

Such conduct seems strange in the light of the scriptural utterance: "The childer of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light."

Why, there isn't a 2½ per cent a month man on his official board who could do better than that. Of course he has a perfect right to send his family away on a holiday if he chooses, but surely it is out of character with the dignity of a preacher of righteousness to snarl ill-naturedly from the pulpit at the people who provide the funds to send his family away, because they happen to be unable to do as he dictates in performance of a duty which he shirks so cleverly.

SIR: The Globe's correspondent, S.S.F., The respectable members of the trade must recognize that its worst enemies are the men who habitually violate the laws for the protection of the minor and the dipsomaniacal. They (the members of the trade) must set themselves right with the public by plainly declaring that they will welcome any course, whether of increased penalties or otherwise, which will procure their observance.

and expected to get a Manitoba judgeship from Sir John Macdonald. I should hesitate to believe this of a gentleman with Mr. McMahon's political record but for the fact of its being publicly announced that he proceeds to England as a coadjutor of Mr. Dalton McCarthy to argue the dominion, i.e. the Manitoba case before the privy council in re the disputed boundary.

In this connection I would like to ask a question, the answer to which may throw some light on the choice of Mr. McMahon for this duty. Is it true that when the "prowling brood of bribers" made sure of Dowling's vacating the seat for Renfrew they had arranged that Mr. McMahon should run for the constituency as an Irish eatholic, and that on his return, which was assumed to be a certainty, he was to become the Irish catholic representative in Mr. Meredith's cabinet?

If Mr. McMahon sought a judgeship at

If Mr. McMahon sought a judgeship at the hands of Sir John Macdonald it was an intimation that he had renounced his allegiance to the liberal party, and we all know that Sir John is always willing to know that Sir John is always willing to take to his bosom any man from the ranks of his opponents likely to be of service to him. If the new convert or pervert was not made a judge it was probably because enterprising newspaper in Canada should be issued from the best equipped and most enterprising newspaper in Canada should be issued from the best equipped and most in the saw in the saw is most probably because the saw in the saw is most probably because the saw in the saw is most probably because the saw is most probably failing in doing that, it is not all unlikely that he will be kept in government employ of some sort until an opportunity does occur, or until he discovers once more that he can "have no confidence in the breed"—quite a possible contingency to Mr. McMahon's case.

As regards his selection to argue the boundary case from the Dominion-Manitoba standpoint, it is hardly likely that either Mr. Mowat or Mr. Mills will be exercised thereby. Mr. McMahon, it will be rethereby. Mr. McMahon, it will be re membered, had charge of the dominion case before the arbitrators, and his treat ment of it then did not inspire confidence that he had made it a subject of profound study. It is more than doubtful that he has ever thought out the question since to the extent of being able to render any as-sistance to Messrs. Robinson or Miller.
