

This was the reply made by Æneas to Queen Dido when commanded by that monarch to relate to her the story of the siege and capture of Troy and translated means: "Thou biddest me, Oh Master, to renew a story of unutterable grief."

For a second or two after Kennedy's ready reply there was dead silence, then the whole form saw and applauded the wit and burst into a roar of laughter in which Mr. Wedd joined most heartily and cordially.

There was no fault-finding that afternoon, the translating was fairly well done, rules in grammar were generally quoted correctly, and where a boy did stumble in his syntax or made false quantities Mr. Wedd helped him with the former or made excuses for him as regards the latter. The bell rang out at 4 p.m., and we all filed out for the prayer-room telling each other how cleverly Kennedy had replied and also expressing our belief that "Billy," meaning Mr. Wedd, was a downright good fellow and that we would not torment him again, a resolve that we kept most conscientiously until—the next day.

(To be continued.)

Star light, star bright, very first star I've seen to-night,
Tell me, tell me, all I wish to know,
Will Jones ever get another shave?
Will Crap wear the same old look to his grave?
Tell me, tell me, all I wish to know.
"Oh! do you wish to argue!"

For cheap hair-cuts go to Barber and get Sheard.

College fire brigade: chief, Patton; assistant chief, Higgins; firemen, Laird, Rogers, Cooper, Leach. M. A. Sc—tt is the monkey.

"Hello, Cork! How's Bottle?"

"Taffy" needed a hair-cut—

An awful thing it were—

So the barber shaved his "nut,"

And only left a burr.

The well-known "Thistle, Rose, and Shamrock" of the Fourth Form are ably represented by Mackenzie, Bayly, and Kerr.

Why wasn't "Chicken" Banta in the feather-weight class at the Boxing Tournament?