

Alert Service Correspondence with R.C.M.P. and it was answered on January 30, 1963, as found on page 3253 of Hansard. The question was as follows:

Has the R.C.M.P. any knowledge of the objectives of the Alert Service, P.O. Box 173, Station Q, Toronto, and, if so, has the R.C.M.P. co-operated in any way with the service, either with advice or funds?

This was the answer:

The R.C.M.P. has knowledge of the objectives of the Alert Service and has co-operated with this service as it does with any reputable news media. It has not co-operated with funds.

In other words, this is an acknowledgment that the R.C.M.P. knows about the Alert Service, that it has co-operated with it and that it considers it is a reputable news medium. This is an important point in my argument that I should have given to me the information I have requested.

I should like to turn to another publication of the Alert Service to indicate the scope of its operations. This publication is dated August 1, 1963 and at the top it has the words "Replacing all previous lists". The heading is "Some Organizations and Publications in Canada Which Follow the Communist Line". The organizations are as follows: Communist party of Canada; young communist league of Canada; congress of Canadian women; Canadian peace congress; B.C. peace council; Edmonton peace council; Manitoba peace council; Toronto association for peace; Canada-U.S.S.R. association; Canadian-Chinese friendship society; league for democratic rights; workers' benevolent association; youth friendship league; association of Carpatho Russian Canadians; association of united Ukrainian Canadians; Bulgarian Canadian peoples league; Canadian council of national groups; Canadian language press club; Canadian Slav committee; Chinese Canadian welfare association, Toronto; Chinese youth association, Vancouver; cultural recreational association of Chinese Canadian youth, Edmonton; east wind association, Montreal; federation of Russian Canadians; federation of Yugoslav Canadians; Finnish organization of Canada; independent mutual benefit federation; Kossuth sick benefit society; Lithuanian literary society; Macedonian Canadian peoples league; maple leaf mutual; Polish-Canadian mutual benefit society; Polish Canadian thousand year committee; Polish democratic association; Russian Canadian youth organization; Slovak benefit society; sons and daughters of the Canadian Lithuanian mutual benefit society.

Then, there are these publications:

In addition the Alert Service on this same date came forward with a list of communist front organizations in Canada that worked closely with their parent international organizations. These international front organizations are listed as follows:

Women's International Democratic Federation
World Federation of Democratic Youth
World Council of Peace
International Institute for Peace
World Federation of Trade Unions

The affiliates in Canada are listed as follows:

Congress of Canadian Women
Young Communist League
Canadian Peace Congress
B.C. Peace Council
Edmonton Peace Council
Manitoba Peace Council
Toronto Association for Peace

Then, this publication reads as follows:

While official affiliation may not be formally acknowledged, some unions in Canada undoubtedly come within the orbit of influence of the World Federation of Trade Unions. The following unions are considered to be under communist dominated leadership.

International union of mine, mill and smelter workers; united electrical, radio and machine workers of America; Canadian textile council; united fisherman and allied workers' union; marine and boiler makers' union; Vancouver outside civic workers union.

Then, there is a list of some other communist international front organizations, and they are as follows:

International association of democratic lawyers; international organization of journalists; international radio and television organization; international union of students; world federation of teachers unions; world federation of scientific workers; Afro-Asian people's solidarity organization.
