occupation of the Turkish fort at Turba by Indian troops, assisted by the British cruiser Duke of Edinburgh. The Turkish fort of Turba, says the dmiralt? report, is situated on the Turkish territory and the Aden Protectorate. PARIS, Nov. 15, 11.31 p.m.—An excellent impression was created here by today's official communication announcing that the German troops had been driven to the right bank of the Yser Canal, after they had firmly resisted for several days all efforts to dislodge them from the left bank. It was officially announced that the German attack in the vicinity of Ypres with powerful compact bodies of men who displayed great energy in pushing home their futile attempts resulted in great casualties among them. One detachment of 120 Germans captured is declared to have been all that remained of 1000 men who had started to fight in the morning. Some of the prisoners, it is said, declared that companies of the Prussian Guard and of the Second Bavarian Corps, which had been brought up to their full warstrength of 250 men early in November, now numbered only from 50 to 100 man in Great Britain would have re-ceived military training. LONDON, Nov. 15.—Finding the pressure exerted by the allies more than the Germans could withstand, the kaiser's troops blew up today all the culverts on the Leopold and Schipdonck canals in Belgium, flooding a large area and temporarily halting the advance of the Franco-British soldiers. The allies have assumed the offensive in that section with fresh attacks.

Despatches from Paris relate that the Germans were forced to retreat east of Arras because the allies succeeded in driving a wedge into the kaiser's battle line. A large detachment of Germans were isolated by the manoeuvre. It is further reported that the Franco-British forces captured positions on a plateau, where they mounted heavy artillery, and dominate the roads leading toward the north.

Latest advices from the French capital add that the attacks made by the Germans were repulsed at every point of conflict from the North Sea to the Vosges Mountains.

ANOTHER LARGE ARMY

Couriers from the battlefields near Verdun reported that another large German army is being concentrated north of that place for a supposed attack on the Verdun fortifications.

A large French field army is guarding the fortress, and it is said all onslaughts of the Germans in that region have been defeated.

Despite the clamor for official confirmation or denial of the reported sinking of the British super-dreadnought Audacious off the Irish coast, the British admiralty still declines to make a statement on the subject. It is unofficially reported, however, that an investigation will be ordered to determine whether the battleship was sunk by a torpedo, by a mine, or by an interior explosion.

PLISSIANS STILL GO ON

RUSSIANS STILL GO ON.

According to despatches from Petrograd, the Russians are continuing their offensive movement in West Prussia. Danzig, a seaport and railroad terminus of the greatest military importance, appears to be the objective of the czar's army. The place is defended by a large garrison, and has a population of about 150,000. It is said the German general staff is organizing a new offensive campaign against the Russians, with Thorn, in East Prussia, as the base of operations. It is believed that this movement is intended as an offset to the siege of Cracow by the Russians, who will soon make an investment of that powerful fortress. The Austrians are reported as continuing their precipitate retreat from Cracow under their own staff arrangements. The Austrians are exerting all possible strength to save the place from capture, despite the fact that the Germans attach more importance to the defensive of the roads to Breslau than to Cracow.

SOME GROUND GAINED.

The Franco-British armies, as a result of their offensive thruout France and Belgium, gained ground today at several points of strategic importance, especially in the region east of Arras, where the enemy had to give way on a wide front, a wedge being driven by the allies between two detachments of the kaiser's army.
