

- 2 Cor. iii. 14. Which vail is done away in Christ.
 Gal. iii. 17. Make the promise of none effect.
 „ v. 4. Christ is become of no effect unto you.
 „ v. 11. Then is the offence of the cross ceased.
 Eph. ii. 15. Having abolished in his flesh the enmity.
 2 Thess. ii. 8. And shall destroy [the Antichrist] with the brightness of His coming.
 2 Tim. i. 10. Christ, Who hath abolished death.
 Heb. ii. 14. He might destroy him that had the power of death.

λύω (luo),

to loosen, dissolve, undo. Occurs forty-three times in the New Testament, and is translated destroy in John ii. 19 (destroy this temple), and 1 John iii. 8 (that He might destroy the works of the devil).

ὀλοθρεύω (olothreuō).

Heb. xi. 28. Lest he that destroyed the firstborn. (ὀλοθρευτής, destroyer, occurs 1 Cor. x. 10; and ἐξολοθρεύομαι is used Acts iii. 23.)

πορθέω (porthēō), to lay waste, harass. Is used three times in the New Testament—viz., Acts ix. 21; Gal. i. 13 and 23.

φθείρω (phtheirō), to corrupt. Used eight times in the New Testament—viz., 1 Cor. iii. 17 (If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy); 1 Cor. xv. 33; 2 Cor. vii. 2, xi. 3; Eph. iv. 22; Jude 10; Rev. xix. 2.

φθορά (phthora), corruption. Occurs nine times in the New Testament—viz., Rom. viii. 21; 1 Cor. xv. 42, 50; Gal. vi. 8;