Was Found at a Big Store.

New York, Dec. 21.—Mrs. Simon Woiff of St. Louis went shopping yesterday, says a despatch to a New York paper, and lost her 8, months old baby, which she had taken with her. She did not notice it until she got home, so busy was she with the Christmas buying. A hot search was at once instituted. The mother went to the department stores, but none of the clerks had seen a baby on the counter. The woman was nearly distracted, but was forced to leave her address and go back home. When closing up time came at the store, Michael Clark, a porter, found the baby slumbering peacefully in a waste basket. It was sent home by special delivery, as requested.
