UNDECIDED!

Well, it's not such a hard matter to decide the Clothes question. A little shopping 'round and watching the advertisements will do the business. There is something wrong when a store is always advertising clothing bargains and blowing too much. The man you have confidence in is the quiet, dignified man—so is the store.

It may help you to know that we select our clothes ourselves—that every garment is then made to our special order by our regular makers, whom we have well tested and proved to be experts in this line. But come and see for yourself—remembering all the time that WOOL IS WOOL here.

You can get a good SPRING SUIT or OVERCOAT here for $10, $12, $15, $18 to $22, and every garment is honestly worth 25 per cent. more than the money we ask for it.

The Viper of Milan.

A ROMANCE OF LOMBARDY.
BY MARJORIE BOWEN.

"Heaven save Milan!" he gasped. "Verona has fallen!"

The shouts and the clatter from the courtyard had penetrated faintly to the languishing hall, and Visconti paused a moment, listening.

Valentine listened too, and thought of Conrad.

But she noise died away, and Visconti turned to the Duke of Orleans with a laugh.

"My soldiers revel in your honor," he said, "and we will drink my sister's health, my lord."

Valentine's breast heaved. Who was he, to dare to sacrifice her to his pride and greed? She would not suffer it. Was she not also a Visconti?

As a dream she heard her health drunk; as a dream she saw the Duke of Orleans' foolish look turned toward her in vacant admiration; then suddenly, with a start, she noticed Giannotto's crafty face.

Valentine's eyes blazed with sudden passion. She looked down toward the entrance, and saw, between the curtains, white faces peering and figures half-thrust forward.

"The Duke of Orleans!" cried Valentine, and the guests again rose. Valentine rose also, with inspired eyes and crimson cheeks.

"The Duke of Orleans!" she cried, lifting her glass, and at the first words she had spoken they stood silent, in an uneasy expectation. "Will the Duke of Orleans drink to my health?"

"No!" cried Giannotto, "listen!" and into the sudden hush within came the wild hubbub of the panic-stricken city.

"Verona has fallen!"

"A lie!" shrieked Visconti. "A lie! my sister has gone mad. Who says the word again shall die!"

"My lord," said Giannotto, "listen!" and into the sudden hush within came the wild hubbub of the panic-stricken city.

"Verona has fallen!" Della Scala marches fast on Milan!

CHAPTER FOURTEEN.
THE TUMULT IN THE WESTERN GATE.

Mastino Della Scala with his army lay at Sesto, a hamlet boasting a small enclosure crowned with a strongly built but insignificant castle. Some ten miles farther west was held by Julia Gonzaga's army.

Only a few weeks had passed since Della Scala, falling first on Verona, and taking it, had marched on Milan and almost unopposed had taken the city.

But the alarm given at Valentine's wedding-feast had come in time. With almost supernatural energy, in two hours' time Visconti armed the walls and put the city in defense. To surprise a victory was impossible. Still, the Duke of Verona's army was only five miles from the walls, and only by day drew nearer.

Visconti, from the height of proud security, was suddenly, by one more, placed in a position dangerous indeed. The towns and domains behind Milan, from that city to Turin, were still his, as were Pavia and Placenza, but from Brescia to Verona, and from Modena to Lombardy, save for a few scattered towns and forts held desperately by Visconti's men, the whole was in the hands of Della Scala and his allies. Still Milan was not in a state of siege; men and supplies hurried in from Novara, Verocelli, and other towns in the Visconti's dominions, and powerful aid was coming to the Duke of Milan's assistance from the Empire.

Yet in Valentine's eyes this aid, useful as it was, was dearly bought, for Charles, dearly bought, for Charles IV., though an ignominious ruler and laughed at by his subjects, was of an honorable, open disposition, and related by marriage to the Este, and the one condition on which he was dispatching to Visconti's service his soldiers stationed in Switzerland and on the borders, was that Isotta d'Este should be untouched.

In the bitterness of his rage, Visconti wished he had already slain her; now, in truth, he dare not. It was no question now of gratifying an ambition, it was a question of being his own throne, fear of being in his turn reduced to what he feared Della Scala, that made him respect the Empress, and the feeling of the French who thronged his court.

And the thought that he could not play the best card tyrant ever held, was rendered doubly bitter by the fact that Della Scala knew him to be helpless and Isotta safe.

Scheming in his crafty soul for means to outwit Mastino, Visconti thought of Giacomo Carrara, who held Padua, Treviso, Cremona, Vicenza. He was Della Scala's ally, but a man of no upright soul.

"Could I gain him," thought Visconti, in his mind, without could strain against the Empire, without France, and use my captive as I please and not as they dictate."

To the Este and Julia Gonzaga he gave no thought; well he knew they were not likely to desert Mastino—but Carrara—

Meanwhile, he threw his whole strength against the opposing army, keeping it at bay, gaining time—and planning.

But Mastino Della Scala's object was not to lose time in idle skirmishes. Brilliant success had fallen to his share, not one reverse had marred his short campaign, and it is not the policy of the victor to dally with time, rather to seize the chances each day offers, while yet fortune smiles on him.

But well Della Scala knew that neither honor, nor pity, nor shame, but fear alone would restrain Gian Maria Visconti from venting his hatred on Isotta d'Este.

Still he kept up a stout heart. Visconti dare not! To make assurance doubly sure, he used all his influence at the court of Rome to procure the aid of the Church against the Duke of Milan.

Many a time had he rendered powerful help to the Pope, and, as his present position stood, might do so yet again; and the result of his appeal was a grave embassy from the Pope to Visconti, threatening him with excommunication and the sword of the Church should he dare to touch Isotta d'Este.

For the first, Visconti cared little; twice had the Church thrown him out, and each time he had laughed at it and emerged triumphant; but now his position was more perilous than it had ever been. Since he mounted the throne of Milan, and he dared not treat this mandate of the Church as he had done the others.

The Pope's temporal power too was great; were that once turned against him, even with the Empire's aid he could hardly stand; so Visconti answered them with fair words, pledging his honor for the Duke of Milan's life.

One bright summer morning, Visconti sat at the open window of his palace, thinking.

THE KIMONO EVENING WRAP.

It needs no second glance at the mode of the spring to follow the Japanese tendency in the predictions of one and all designers and makers. The sleeve, as we all know, is the feature of the kimono, and so it is that the sleeve is that part of our costumes, separate waists, coats and jackets, which give the garments their style value in the current fashions. The most extreme form of the Japanese idea is a kimono evening wrap showing little variation from the national dress of the Japanese woman. Its length is curtailed to several inches above the knees, and the slashing at the side over the garment over the full skirt beneath. These wraps are made of exquisite soft, dark satins, heavily embroidered in true Japanese designs, have the wide, square sleeves, are collarless, and fasten in double-breasted fashion, with tiny metal or crocheted buttons and cord loops. In fact, many of them are importations from the Orient itself, and bear prices which restrict their possession only to a favored few.

d'Orleans and Tizio were playing at chess; between these two, during the Duke's enforced stay in Milan, a friendship had sprung up, and Visconti, weary of his foolish guest, was well pleased a foolish brother should take him off his hands.

The Frenchman was prepared at once to carry out the contract, marry Valentine, and depart for France, but Visconti's pride would not permit. The Duke of Orleans had witnessed a reverse, he should behold a triumph. Valentine should leave Italy as betrothed to his sister, not by force of arms.

In the bitterness of his rage, Visconti wished he had already slain her; now, in truth, he dare not. It was no question now of gratifying an ambition, it was a question of being his own throne, fear of being in his turn reduced to what he feared Della Scala, that made him respect the Empress, and the feeling of the French who thronged his court.

WHY GIRLS ARE PALE

They Need the Rich Red Blood
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Three years ago Miss Ellen Roberts, who holds the position of saleslady in one of the leading stores in Halifax, N. S., was a pale, delicate looking young woman, who then lived at home with her parents at Amherst, N. S. She complained of general weakness and loss of appetite. Her blood was thin and watery and she grew thinner day by day until she looked almost a shadow. Her cheeks were sunken, all trace of color had left her face and her friends feared she was going into a decline. "I had no energy," says Miss Roberts, "and suffered so much from the headaches and dizziness and other symptoms of anemia that I felt I did not care whether I lived or died. One day, however, when reading our local paper I read a testimonial given by a young girl in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as her symptoms were almost identical with my own I determined to try this medicine. Before I had used the second box I began to find benefit, and I continued taking the pills until I had used seven or eight boxes, by which time I was fully restored to health." Today Miss Roberts looks as though she had never been ill in her life, and she has no hesitation in saying she owes her present energy and health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Bad blood is the cause of all common diseases like anemia, headach, paleness, general weakness, heart palpitation, neuritis, indigestion, and the special ailments that only womenfolk know. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure these common ailments, giving blood, making the complexion glowing, bright, and giving strength to every organ in the body. Do not take any pills without the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail for $2.00 a box or six boxes for $10.00 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Rockville, Ont.

He is survived by his wife, in Trenton, his father and mother and two sisters, Mrs. Geo. S. Shaw, of this city, and Mrs. W. F. Hatch, of Sacramento (Cal.).

THE RAILROAD PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, April 1.—There is an official disposition among many federal agencies to minimize the effects flowing from stock-market conditions and to overvalue the influence that may be exerted upon general business conditions throughout the country by what happens in Wall street. This indifference is made more glaring by the inclination to overvalue the influence of the state legislatures and to put too low a valuation upon the character of some of the work done by congress and of the policies pursued in a number of directions not immediately connected with the railway problem.

Upon opening a carload of grain which arrived from the far west C. F. Gleason, of Oakland, Me., found a large tiger cat in the car. The stowaway was none the worse for its long ride.

A LIVING GHOST!

That is What Her Friends Said About Her

Read how Mrs. James Steele, Waterville, Que., was cured by the use of MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS

she writes: "For the past fourteen months I was nervous all the time, and became so run down I was unable to walk across the house without getting dizzy. My friends told me I looked like a living ghost and advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I got two boxes and within two weeks I had improved wonderfully and after finishing the fourth box I was completely cured. They are the greatest pills I ever used and I can recommend them to all sufferers."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills act directly on the disordered heart and nerves, and restore them to healthy action. They have no equal for reviving and strengthening the heart beat, invigorating the nervous system, and acting as a food for the blood, improving its quality, making it rich and red.

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
