During the meeting 61 heats were trotted or paced, 33 or over one-half of them were in 2:20 or better. The fastest mile of the meeting was 2:18½, by the Fredericton gelding, James K. Newby, driven by Tommy Raymond. Only one record was broken, by Mayor Todd, who, driven by Frank Bottiller, lowered the trotting stallion record for the province to 2:16½. Marshall M. Jr., driven by Peter Carroll, was the only new-comer to the 2:30 trotting list, taking a new race record of 2:22½. Jessie H., by Richard Earl, was the only pacer who was a new-comer, entering the 2:20 list, taking a win-race record of 2:18½. Reduced records were:
Rex Heart (p), b s, by Great Heat, 2:18½ to 2:14.

Claudia C (p), b m, by Will-Be-Sure, 2:27 to 2:29½.
The free-for-all has been looked upon as one of the greatest events of the meeting, and it proved such. It went five heats and was won by Mayor Todd, the champion trotting stallion of the maritime provinces, who not only won the race, but lowered the stallion record to 2:16½, and trotted the fastest fifth heat in the maritime provinces. According to outside watches the mile was even faster, many of them registering 2:15½ and 2:15¾.

Red Sox and Brooklyn Win In Championship Races

Giants Get Another

Phillies Defeat Pirates; Chicago
White Sox Best Yankees; Cleveland Drops to Sixth Place

Both the Red Sox and Brooklyn Dodgers won their games yesterday and continue to lead their respective leagues by good margins, considering that the seasons rapidly drawing to a close. The Red Sox have ten more games to play, Chicago seven and the Tigers six. This means that if the Chicago and Detroit teams won all their remaining games the Red Sox could drop three and beat out the White Sox, lose four and still beat the Tigers. In the National League the Dodgers have thirteen and the Phillies fourteen games to play. As the former are leading by only two games and a half there is still a good chance that the latter will repeat, although the Dodgers are conceded the edge by prominent critics.

The Giants continue to play sensational ball and they may set a new mark for consecutive victories before the season closes. Benny Kauff has been instrumental in their recent success, his home runs and extra base hitting clinching many of the games. He is beginning to live up to his former reputation and is considered one of the star players in the National League. The team has now won seventeen straight and equalled their record of last May. They will have to win three more to create a new record.

The Phillies defeated the Pirates by a wide margin. The latter are now in the world's series. The Giants continued their sensational pitching the Quakers may yet figure in the world's series.

Chicago bested New York and retained second place in the American League standings. They defeated the Yankees, Cleveland failed to stop the champion's onward rush and dropped to sixth place.

Frank Baker Regains
Title of Home Run King

Famous Hitter Has Made Ten
Circuit Clouts This Season

St. Louis, Sept. 21.—Baker is at it again. Just when the fans were concluding that Walter Pipp was to be the home-run king of the American League this season the noted fence buster from Trappe, Md., has pulled himself back into the race for the honors which he monopolized for several campaigns, or until he and Connie Mack parted company. The eminent Franklin came through here yesterday with his tenth circuit drive of the year, the clout automatically serving notice on Pipp that he must grab off at least one more home run to be the 1916 king.

Baker has scattered his home runs over more parks than has Pipp, and it is pretty generally recognized now that he can "bust 'em" as well and as hard as he did in his days with the Mackmen. He is credited with the two drives which have been hit out of the Washington Park this year; he hit one out of Shibe Park and one over the forty-five foot wall at Cleveland. His clout yesterday, which sank high in the right field bleachers at Sportsman's Park, was his fourth of the year away from the Polo Grounds. Six times he has hit into the right field stands on the winning streak. Pipp has collected two home runs at Cleveland, one at Detroit, two that went all the way to the outfield bleachers at the Polo Grounds and five that nestled in the stands.

With thirteen games to go the big guns of Bill Donovan's artillery are tied for the lead. Without taking away any credit from Pipp, whose record for home runs and three-baggers stamps him as one of the greatest hitters in baseball today, it cannot be denied that Baker undoubtedly would be out in front but for the injuries which kept him out of six games. On the other hand Pipp has been pounding triples all season and Baker has not made one three-base hit to date.

ATHLETIC.
Critics' Goulding's Style.

New York Sun.—It is not generally known that George Goulding, the world's greatest and fastest walker, received two cautions from one of the three judges who were on the job at the national championships. The cautions, I understand, were put on by Billy Purdy, who was the only person out of the 80,000 present who thought Goulding was going unfair at any part of the three mile journey.

If George Goulding's heel-and-toe is unfair, then it is about time for the A. A. U. to toss the game of walking from the list of events.

Goulding has the endorsement of being one of the fastest walkers we have ever had, by such experts as Sam Austin, Frank P. Murray and Al. Copland. The judges at the last Olympic games pronounced Goulding's style flawless. The English experts also admitted after Goulding defeated their best entry at Stockholm that the Canadian style was absolutely perfect.

Columbus Grad Circuit.
Pittsburg won first money in the 2:00 class trot at the American Grand Circuit yesterday, taking the first, second and fifth heats, and a best time of 2:08½. Young Todd captured the 2:18 class pace, taking three out of four heats; best time 2:09½. The 2:06 class pace went five heats, but did not finish owing to rain putting the track in a dangerous condition.

BERNHARDT SAILS SEPT. 30.
She Will Play at the Knickerbocker—Principals in Her Support.

New York, Sept. 28.—William F. Connor, American manager for Sarah Bernhardt, has received a cable from the French actress stating that the scenery and costumes for twenty plays in which she will be seen here this season were shipped from Bordeaux this week.

Bernhardt gave the following list of principals who will appear with her: Messrs. Angely, Desnoyers, Favieres, Maxudian, Guide, Prelier, Desnoyers, and Mesdames Mea, Costa, Banjalut, Lydie, and Frothingham. Several of these players have appeared here before with the star.

Bernhardt will sail for America on Sept. 30 on the Espagne. She will not stop in London as originally planned, and her engagement in New York will be that of David Warfield at the Knickerbocker.

BAMBOO FOR WOOD PULP.
Experiments Have Proved Successful Says Man Who Predicts Change in Twenty Years.

Bamboo will be used for making wood pulp paper twenty years from now, in the opinion of F. A. Quayle, of Powell River, B. C., formerly a resident of Minneapolis, says the Minneapolis Tribune. Diminishing supplies of spruce and hemlock, from which the best wood pulp paper is made today, are causing manufacturers to hunt for substitutes, he said. Bamboo experimentally is a success and grows rapidly, he stated.

Western Canada is not feeling the "pinch" in the paper supply as he said, but the Western Canadian supply is not large enough to relieve the Eastern and Middle Western needs.

Never In History of Baseball Have Their
Been Such Close Finishes as This Year

Outcome in Both National and American Leagues Still Fraught
With Uncertainty as Close Calculation of
The Pros and Cons Shows

(By Joe Page.)

Never in the history of baseball has there been such close finishes as those now coming to a close in the American and National Leagues.

At the present moment the Red Sox stand ahead of the White Sox because the latter have played three more games and these credited to the lost side column, not only give Carrigan's crew a lead of twelve points in the race, but in addition give them a far better than even chance to beat out the old Roman Conkey's aggregation.

For by breaking even on games won and lost from now on, it would still leave Boston with three games to play and by winning, tying or even should rain interfere with the playing of only one of these three remaining games the wind up, it would show the Red Sox at the top of the percentage column on Oct. 8th next. With one game left at Detroit, four with Cleveland on the road, Boston will wind up with seven games at home and three with the Athletics, while Chicago at home have one more game to play.

For four games, winding up their season Oct. 1st. So one must necessarily see at a glance that after today, the White and Red Sox leads not only meet the same teams, but also that Boston has the edge by reason of having Athletics still to play.

Need Only Win Seven.
With twelve games still to play, in order for Boston to hold their present percentage of .284 it would only be necessary for them to win seven of the next twelve games leaving them with four wins and 64 losses. While the Red Sox with a percentage of .284 at present of .272 with 88 games won and 82 lost, would have to win seven of their remaining nine games in order to tie the Red Sox in games won and lost, to have the same percentage.

Unexpected Must Happen.
Looking at the above, unless the unexpected happens and the leaders go utterly to pieces there is nothing to it but the Red Sox. That they have made a wonderful showing on their present western trip goes without saying. They have beaten their nearest adversaries on their own grounds decisively, taking two out of three from Chicago and two straight so far from the Tigers.

The White Sox's Chances.
There is only one hope for the White Sox to win the pennant, that is to win at least seven of their remaining games while Cleveland and New York take two and three games each out of their remaining four games with the Red Sox. At that, should the Athletics take one game and the White Sox win seven of their remaining nine games, the White Sox would have a better chance than the Red Sox to win the pennant.

The National League.
In the older organizations the battle is even closer, and they have further to go in games to play. While Boston is in third place, three and a half games from the lead, they still have an outside chance to pull through. But in their present condition, and being without the services of Trojan Ivers, the chances are very slim for them to get their nose under the wire first. So one must, of necessity, figure on the chances of the present champion Phillies to overhaul the Brooklyn Trolley-Dodgers in the final dash down the stretch past the Judge's stand.

Just a game and a half behind, what have Pat Moran's Pets to do. With ten games at home, two with Pittsburgh, four each with Cincinnati and Boston, the hot ones at Brooklyn, they have thirteen games still to go. With their present showing to date, 52 won, 56 lost for an average of .294, out of their remaining scheduled games they must win nine, which would leave them 61 won and 60 lost for a percentage of .508, with still three postponed games to play.

On the other hand, Brooklyn with a standing at present of 54 won and 55 lost with an average of .500, would, as near as it can be figured, have an average of .500 if they only win eight of their next thirteen regular schedule games with two postponed games on hand.

So one can see what an important bearing these postponed games may possibly have on the deciding of the present National League race. One can still go further in this race and take in Boston, for with 78 won and 56 lost for a percentage of .582, they have the same number of regular schedule games, thirteen, to go, in order to stand on an equal footing as the leaders at present. They would have to win eleven of their remaining thirteen games, which would leave them with 89 won and 56 lost for

Plan Series At Braves Field

Arranging Prices, Etc. For World's Series if Red Sox Win Pennant

World series games in Boston, if the Boston Americans again win the right to represent their league in the post-season series, probably will be played at Braves Field, with seat prices the same as those of last year. Business Manager T. W. Lannin made this announcement Thursday after the victory of the Red Sox over Detroit had increased the probability of Boston's retaining the American League championship.

The fact that final determination of the pennant race probably will not be made until a few days before the season closes, will result in a change in the plans for ticket distribution he said. "First come, first served," will necessarily govern the allotment as tickets will be placed on sale at the club ticket office a few days before the series opens. Thousands of applications for reservations which have flooded Red Sox headquarters, according to Manager Lannin, will be unavailing. He said that on a ticket office sale, mail orders could have no standing.

Prices for the series were fixed by the National Commission Thursday in a telegram authorizing the Boston Club to proceed with plans for printing tickets. Box seats were set at $5 each, grand stand seats at $3, pavilion seats at $2, all these being reserved. As in previous years these reservations will be sold only for the entire series Oct. 2 to 8. General admissions will be one dollar and will be available only on the day of the game.

Should both Boston teams win in their respective leagues, Business Manager Lannin said the games might alternate between Braves Field and Fenway Park. National League grounds will seat approximately 45,000 persons, while Sox seats will remain the same, at 35,000, the capacity of the American park.

More if Brooklyn Wins.
The cost of witnessing world's series baseball will go up if Brooklyn wins the National League title. It was thought Thursday by Charles H. Ebbetts, president of the Brooklyn Club.

The National Commission having authorized the three contenders in both the National and American Leagues to prepare world series tickets and set prices, the admission fees announced by Mr. Ebbetts disclose increases, for some of the seats, of 500 per cent. over prices which prevailed for last year's championship games in Boston. Box seats will remain the same, at $5, but many of the reserved seats behind the boxes will sell for $9 instead of $3; and prices of unserved bleacher seats will jump from fifty cents to $1 and $2.

Printing Their Tickets.
The three leading clubs in both National and American Leagues were Friday notified by Chairman August Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission, that they are privileged to have reserved seat tickets for the next world's series printed at once, if they desire to do so.

Owing to the possibility of a close race in both leagues which might continue until within a day or two of the final game in either league, it was thought best by the commission to allow the printing of the reserved seat tickets in order to avoid delay that was almost certain to be caused by waiting for these tickets to be printed at the last moment.

The clubs notified Friday are Boston, Chicago and Detroit in the American League, and Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Boston in the National.

"How did you come out?" asked his friend. "Why the hell have you?"
"Her answer," replied the diplomatic, "is a partially satisfactory. Enough so to continue negotiations. She says if she ever does marry it will be a man of good looks, courage and ability."

A percentage of .505, with eight postponed games still to be heard from. So one can naturally see that with Boston in as good playing condition as the first two in the race, and all postponed games pulled off, which each of the three leaders will undoubtedly try to do, weather permitting, that it is going to be a much harder task to dope out the winner than in the American League.

One thing is sure, the Red Sox have got to break to pick up while Chicago will have to play a perfect string, not so much if Boston breaks as to keep Detroit, who are still a factor, from pressing ahead if the leaders do falter.

On the other hand, it need surprise no one to see the postponed games figure in the making of a pennant winner out of the two leaders, with a possible look in for the Braves.
