HANDS LOST IN WAR BUT WRITES LETTER

Miss McMurrich and Miss Warner at Wedding of Maimed French Soldier

A letter received by Miss Helen McMurrich, a young Toronto lady, who has recently returned from the front, where she was a nursing sister, is of special interest because it was written by a French soldier who had lost both hands in action, and whom she had aided in nursing back to health. The letter was written with the soldier's artificial hand, and shows how remarkable are the results of the French reconstruction work. M. Felicien, the writer, thanks Miss McMurrich for a nice little service sent as a wedding present and

Says Churches Must Help

Lady Hearst Calls Upon Ministers to Help In Food Campaign

LADY HEARST, WIFE OF THE PREMIER OF ONTARIO.

"A great deal has been accomplished in food saving during the last year, but we haven't begun to feel the pinch yet. We have a long road to travel before we can begin to boast of what we have done. There is still a terrible loss that there is only the one thing to do, and that is for each of us to save all we can and produce all we can, talking humbly how little it is and how inadequate, as compared with the sacrifice of our kin in Britain and our allies on the continent."

"IN FLANDERS FIELDS"

Missouri Senator Rewrites the Famous Poem of Col. McCrea.

Senator Mark A. McGruder of Kansas City has sent to the Toronto Globe the following poem on the death in Flanders of Lieut.-Col. John McCrea, author of the famous poem, "In Flanders Fields":

In Flanders fields, where poppies grow
Between the crosses, row on row,
One marks your place, and in the sky
The stars in silence standing by
Will sing your praises while they glow
And all of those who died
In Flanders fields
For us.

You're not the dead who days ago
Lived, loved, felt dawn, saw sunset's glow,
Loved and were loved, and now you lie
In Flanders fields.

This age and each succeeding day
Proclaim you patriot—well they may,
And all of those who died
In Flanders fields
For us.

Yours is our quarrel with the foe.
To us your mighty hands did throw
The torch. And we will hold it high,
And faith will keep; since you did die
Rest on in peace, where poppies blow,
Rest all of those who died
In Flanders fields
For us.

In Flanders fields for us you died.
Time and its changes will not hide,
Nor dim the glory you have won;
But every age 'till time is done
Will sound the praise of you and yours,
And all of those who died
In Flanders fields
For us.

MARK A. McGRUDER.

hopes that she has made a good voyage home. His wife also joins in sending most sincere thanks.

Miss McMurrich and Miss Warner of St. John, N. B., while visiting in Paris, were invited to and attended the wedding.

The bridegroom had no hands and his best man had no legs, but a very cheery wedding party was moving up the aisle when the bridegroom caught sight of his special "sisters" smiling her congratulations. The little procession halted at once and the bride had to be introduced to the two Canadian nurses and news given and received, till the

A colored Baptist was exhorting. "Now brethren and sisters, come up to de altar and have yo' sins washed away."

"I came up but one man, "Why, Brudder Jones, don't yo' want yo' sins washed away?"

"I done had my sins washed away." "Yo' has? Where yo' had yo' sins washed away?"

"Over at the Methodist church." "Ah, Brudder Jones, yo' ain't been washed; yo' jes' been dry cleaned."—A San Francisco Argonaut.

W. Sargeant, V.D.M., of the Associated Bible Students, St. John, by request, gives the above lecture. Many of those who heard him on "The End of the World" in January, expressed appreciation of his unusual method of handling that subject.

This is purely a Bible lecture to be presented in a spiritual way. It is not sensational. It will also touch on "Religious Intolerance a Bar to Progress."

Real Economy in Your Lighting

THE truly economical electric lamp is a good lamp—bought with discrimination because of its quality. Let us tell you why are superior—why they are essentially "quality" lamps, and therefore, an economical investment.

Laco Lamps were the first to have flexible supports for the filament (the hair-like wire that produces light), so that it may expand when hot, with a consequent lessening of breakage.

Laco filaments are absolutely accurate so as to give greatest light without waste of energy, and their "high resistance" qualities also check excessive flow of current. In addition, they are uniformly set within the glass bulb, for if they were irregularly placed as in cheaply-made lamps, they could not give a uniform light.

The tungsten is to the carbon lamp what the carbon was to wick and oil. So equally superior to the "cheap" tungsten is the Laco.

Poor lamps cost less individually, but their bulk cost is vastly greater than Laco Lamps, for many more of them are needed. It is real economy to discard every lamp that does not measure up to the Laco standard.

Plan to visit your nearest electrical dealer today and equip every socket in your home with LACO Tungsten Lamps.
