

DISTRESSING FATALITY ON THE INTERCOLONIAL.

One Man Mangled to Death Near Chatham Junction and Another is in Critical Condition.

CHATHAM, N. B., Oct. 22.—At an early hour this (Sunday) morning, shortly after midnight, a terrible fatality occurred on the main line of the I. C. R. at a point between Chatham Junction and Barnaby River, by which Martin Foley of Chatham lost his life, and John Quilty of Barnaby River was seriously, if not fatally injured. Martin Foley, who was a member of the Chatham police force, was on his way to Barnaby River to visit his family, who reside at that place. He took the train from Chatham, which connects with the eastbound maritime express and at the Junction met Mr. Quilty, who is station agent at Barnaby River, to which they were to proceed on what is known as a speedy, a light weight handcar. As the maritime was reported twenty minutes late leaving Moncton, the unfortunate men decided that they would have ample time to reach Barnaby River before the train arrived there, and so started to their doom. At the time of sending this despatch, all the particulars are not known, and indeed all may never be known, but when the train reached Chatham Junction the driver having observed something which gave him the idea that he had struck something, made an investigation of the front of his engine, where he discovered undoubted evidence of a fatality in the shape of pieces of clothing and blood. A party was sent out to investigate, and a short distance down the line the fragments of poor Foley's body were discovered, the legs, arms and other portions of his body being strewn on either side and on the track, his heart having been found between the rails. Quilty was picked up alongside the track at the scene of the disaster, and it has not yet been ascertained how badly he has been injured. It is reported here that the express was running without a headlight, which would easily account for the tragedy, as it would be the only warning the unfortunate men would be likely to receive of the approach of the belated express, which would be moving at the rate of sixty miles an hour. Poor Foley, or Martin, as he was usually designated, had been on the police here for about seven years. He was even tempered, and was a general favorite with everybody. He leaves a wife and two children, who at present reside at Barnaby River, and for whom the most genuine sympathy is felt. Later reports are to the effect that Quilty, though badly injured, will recover, notwithstanding a rumor which was circulated that he was dead.

ANNIVERSARY OF TRAFALGAR AND DEATH OF NELSON GENERALLY OBSERVED.

(From Monday's Daily Sun.) The one hundredth anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar and the death of Nelson was fittingly observed in St. John. The dinner by Marlborough Lodge at White's on Friday evening was the first event on the programme, and this was followed on Saturday by a general display of bunting. Mayor White's request to citizens to hoist their flags was complied with by everyone, and the city looked quite gay. On Saturday evening St. George's Society held a smoker in the York Assembly Rooms, and on Sunday forenoon Marlborough Lodge attended service at St. Mary's Church. In addition, many of the city clergymen yesterday made references to the event, the anniversary of which was being observed, while several based their sermons on the results of the battle of Trafalgar.

Charlotte street, to the church via Coburg, Garden street and City road. On return their route lay along Brunswick, Union, Sydney and the north side of King square. They were marshaled by Richard Carlous, and headed by the 62nd Band, which disbanded at the hall, after playing a selection, as the band was suspended from duty beneath their banner into the lodge room. The service was an impressive one. From the pillars, and walls of the church were suspended many banners over the font was draped a huge Union Jack. The singing was hearty and responsive. The scripture lessons were read by J. N. Rogers, past chaplain of Marlborough Lodge. During the offertory the band played the Angelic Choir in a finished manner. The collection was devoted to foreign missions. The prayer book, the national anthem was sung, to the accompaniment of the band. A large congregation was present, the church being packed to the doors, and even the extra seats were occupied. Rev. Dr. Raymond's address was an able effort, full of historic facts, and applications of the moral effects of the battle of Trafalgar upon present-day history and life. The text was from Psalm 107: 1-2, and the sermon was in part as follows: The preacher briefly outlined the salient features of the Battle of Trafalgar and spoke of its far-reaching effects. England at that time was fighting for the cause of freedom and humanity. Nelson felt the truth of the predominant feature in the British fleet. For myself, individually, I commit my life to Him who made me, and may His blessing light upon my endeavors for serving my country faithfully. Him I resign myself and the just cause which is entrusted to me to defend. From the time of Nelson, England's supremacy by sea has been practically undisputed. This is a fact most potent in the establishment of our world-wide empire. After all, the greatness of our country depends not so much on the historic past as upon the men and women who are producing today. The preacher then alluded to the Song of England to stand for all that is noble and good. The country needs true men whose lives are stainless, who have the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty. He offered words to remind them that as Christian people it was their duty to disseminate the blessings of the Christian religion.

EDRAL. Yesterday morning in the cathedral Bishop Casey before his sermon on the gospel of the day made the following reference to the anniversary being observed: The centennial anniversary which we celebrated yesterday naturally raises in the minds of the children of Great Britain and her colonies thoughts and sentiments of patriotism. We are justified in being proud of the fact that the inquiry what patriotism is, man is social in his nature. He owes his existence to a family, nor can the development of his faculties and the enjoyment of life be separated from the larger social circle around him. This larger circle constitutes what is for him the state, or his country. Thus to nature he depends on his country for the enjoyment of life, for the development of his powers and resources, and for security in his possession. The law of justice founded in nature obliges him to give his country in return. Hence arises the duty of patriotism. It is founded in nature and has its sanction in justice. No country can exist and prosper without a proper form of government. As this is the natural order established in nature, it is clear that it must have God for its author. Whatever form this government may take the regard due to the authority is not affected, since this authority comes from the author of nature. "There is no power but from God." This gives the devotion due to our country the sanction of religion. Is not the divine sanction too often ignored in these times of boasted enlightenment? Is not there a sentiment quite generally prevailing today that there is no further reverence and obedience due to the powers that be than what is required by their suffrages on election day? The apostle of the Gentiles taught that this should be otherwise. Once the government be lawfully constituted, it has sanction for its authority from the Most High. "There is no power but from God." Hence the sublimity of the virtue of patriotism. It

TRURO LAD FOUND IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—Sidney Aston, the 14-year-old Truro (N. S.) boy who disappeared from his home Sept. 25, and for whom the police have since been looking, was found in East Boston yesterday. He was living at a boarding house on Summer street, and had obtained employment as office boy in the office of E. C. Emerson, 394 Atlantic avenue, under the name of Sidney Moore. The lad is the son of W. A. Aston, a prominent jeweler of Truro, and gives as his only explanation for running away that he was tired of Truro at this time of year and tired of going to school. He expressed anything but pleasure at the prospect of going home. He was located through the landlady with whom he was boarding. He notified the police, who in turn sent word to George B. Cross of 23 Hulbert street, Cambridge, who represents his father. Mr. Cross at once wired the lad's parents of his whereabouts, and his mother is expected to come to Boston and bring him home.

THE SAYRE CASE John Sayre Assigns and Goes Free—Andrew Doyle and His Wife United.

HAMPTON Kings Co., Oct. 21.—At noon today Commissioner G. O. Dickson Otty delivered his judgment in the case of John Sayre of Sussex, who has been making a disclosure of his affairs with a view to secure his discharge from jail, where he has been held since the 13th instant as a debtor under capias by Yassie & Co., Ltd., of St. John. Before delivery of judgment P. M. Sproul said that after consultation with the defendant's counsel, and after the defendant himself, they had agreed to make an assignment under the act to Sheriff F. W. Freeze of all John Sayre's estate and effects, for the benefit of all his creditors, provided it be entirely without cost to himself, he being entirely without money to meet the expense of drawing up and carrying out such assignment, and with the further consideration that he should be entirely free from arrest on account of his indebtedness to any other creditor. Charles Hanington of the firm of Hanington, Teed & Hanington, accepted the proposal on behalf of the plaintiffs, and within fifteen minutes the legal document was drawn up, signed and duly attested, and an order made for the young man's discharge from custody. This morning, Andrew Doyle, the man convicted of vagrancy and wife-beating, and committed to jail until he should pay the costs of the suits brought against him, managed to raise the requisite $15, and walked out of jail and down to his place of residence, accompanied by his wife, both looking as happy as two children going to a party.

BITTERNESS SHOWN.

ROME, Oct. 23.—The Vatican authorities today decided to instruct Monsignor Rinaldini, the Papal Nuncio at Madrid, not to participate in any official ceremonies incident to the visit of President Loubet. This decision is looked upon as still further emphasizing the bitterness felt by the Holy See over what it considers the persecution of the church in France. The three-masted schooner Wanola, Island City, R. D. Spear and Jessie Lena arrived in port yesterday.

CHURCH BURNED AT GRAND ANSE, Also the Presbytery, the Barns and Contents—Loss Estimated at $17,000.

BATHURST STATION, Oct. 23.—About 10.30 o'clock last night a Catholic church at Grand Anse was discovered to be on fire. At the time most of the people had retired and before assistance could be got the fire had spread to the Presbytery and barns, completely destroying them. Nothing was saved from the church and very little from the barn, and only the horse from the barn. The cause of the fire is unknown. Loss, seventeen thousand dollars; small insurance. The body of an unknown man was washed ashore at Grand Anse this morning. It is reported that the Morgans' carriage manufacturing concern of Fredericton may remove to St. John, or at least, establish a branch here.

DIVORCED, BUT LOVED HIM TILL DEATH CAME.

Former Toronto Woman Sent Death-bed Message to Divorced Husband. ONSET BAY, Oct. 21.—The death here of Mrs. Sarah Green LeMoynes of Boston, the former actress, divorced from William J. LeMoynes, the actor, nineteen years ago, has made public the love which she seemed to have held for the man with whom she found she could not live as a wife. In her will she leaves him $500 worth of paintings. But, in addition to that, she left in the custody of an intimate friend a death-bed message to Mr. LeMoynes, showing how the man to whom she gave her first love was ever in her mind to the last. The contents of the message have not been given out yet. But it is understood that she shed an illuminating light on the tender and loving nature of Mrs. LeMoynes and further reveal the regard she had for her former husband. Sarah Green LeMoynes was a woman of remarkable character. She was a Miss Sarah Green of Toronto, Can., where she was born seventy-three years ago. Her parents moved to St. Catharines, near Toronto. She developed a love for the stage and created the part of Mrs. St. Clair in Uncle Tom's Cabin. While playing this role she met LeMoynes, to whom she was married on tour. The two then appeared in several cities in the same play.

Completing Arrangements For Reception to Prince Louis.

St. Andrew's Rink Will be Very Prettily Decorated—The Reception to be Followed by a Dance—Artillery Band Engaged. Now that the Fair of Nations is over preparations will at once be made for the civic reception to Prince Louis of Battenburg, which is to be held in St. Andrew's rink on Thursday evening next. The civic committee in charge of the affair will meet today, and the ladies who are to assist will also hold a meeting. Most of the booths erected for the fair are to be left in position, and will be used during the reception, being fitted with chairs and sofas. The only booths to be removed are those in the centre of the rink. These include one fancy booth, Rebecca at the well, Santa Claus, and the paper flower table. In the middle of the rink a band stand is to be erected, while at the upper end there will be a slightly raised platform on which citizens and ladies will be received. Over the whole floor of the rink it is the intention to spread green linen. The dining rooms, which will be in charge of Frank White assisted by ladies of the committee, will be lavishly decorated, and in fact the whole building will receive attention in this line. The reception will begin at nine o'clock, and it is thought should not last for more than an hour and a half. Afterwards there will be dancing. An Artillery band will be present, and a programme of fourteen dances will be arranged. The affair will be brought to a close about half past one o'clock.

SURPRISED TO LEARN OF DAUGHTER'S MARRIAGE

BOSTON, Oct. 22.—When Mrs. George C. Waltham of No. 13 Bowdler street, Dorchester, opened her mail and found enclosed in one of the envelopes addressed to her a marriage certificate, showing that her daughter, Miss Alice M. Waltham, had changed her name to that of Mrs. Edwin Wright, she was very much surprised. The certificate had been made out in Montreal, where the wedding ceremony was performed Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. And thus ended a very pretty romance, which had its beginning at St. Mark's Episcopal church, Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester. The groom was formerly a well-known resident of the Dorchester district. He had been for several years organist at the church where he met his future wife. They met at a social for Miss Waltham was a regular attendant at St. Mark's and took part in all of the affairs of an entertaining kind, and in these she was usually a prominent figure. She was vivacious and pleasing, and in her Mr. Wright found his ideal. He was equally as attractive to her, so that their friendship soon ripened into something stronger. And yet neither the mother nor any of the immediate friends of either thought very seriously of this display of friendship. Last May Mr. Wright went to Montreal. There he remained. About a month ago Miss Waltham also went to Canada, returning after a short visit. This trip only caused a deeper love between the two. It was not until more recently, however, that Miss Waltham took the step which has temporarily, at least, made her a British subject. She left Boston on the late train for Montreal last Sunday night. She was met by Mr. Wright, and Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock they were married at St. Mark's Episcopal church there by the Rev. William J. Wood.

CANADA'S DEBT CONTINUES TO GROW

Special Despatch to Boston Transcript on Canadian Financial Affairs. (Boston Transcript.) OTTAWA, Oct. 14.—Unless the Canadian government finds new sources of revenue, or reduces the expenditure of the dominion, the public debt will increase to an almost alarming extent. It is not possible to economize in railway building, which will grow more costly until the transcontinental is built. But upon the militia, upon which millions have been spent lately, it is generally conceded that there is a chance for economy. Other departments can economize to a limited extent. The bounties are growing to an extraordinary degree, and they, too, will get heavier before they disappear. The financial statement just issued by the finance department shows over five millions was added to the public debt last year, when the finance minister only expected it to increase by a million and a quarter. The revenue increased over the figure predicted by the finance minister by more than a million dollars, so it was not the revenue that disappointed Minister Fielding, but the expenditure. On ordinary account the statement shows a surplus of very nearly eight millions, where Mr. Fielding anticipated nine, but the capital account swallowed up all this and five millions in addition. The revenue last year was $71,180,628, which is half a million greater than the amount quoted the year before. Mr. Fielding estimated the probable revenue at $71,250,000. The expenditures during the year were $63,309,905, against an estimate in the budget speech of $62,500,000, and an expenditure in the previous year of $55,612,822. The expenditure on capital account amounted to $15,441,403, which is $4,392,200 more than in the previous year. Mr. Fielding's estimate was for a capital expenditure of $12,500,000. The debt increased $3,349,112, against an estimate of $1,250,000. The customs revenues showed an increase of $71,037; the post office an increase of $478,047; public works an increase of $422,122; excise collections declined $372,223, and the miscellaneous account shrank $343,166. The principal items of interest in the expenditure on capital account are the public works, railways and canals, $9,840,028, an increase of $4,007,075. For railway subsidies the amount paid was $12,745,629, or $75,248 less than the year previous. There was an increase of $5,759,488 in the circulation of Dominion notes for the first three months of the present year. The revenue for this period has been $18,192,073, a complete increase of $1,033,338 over the same period last year, and the expenditure on revenue account has been $10,776,015, an increase of $1,789,071. For September the revenue account was $54,557,122, an increase of $285,192, and the expenditure was $55,468,789, an increase of $1,721,489. Expenditure on capital account for the first three months this year was $2,223,226, an increase of $27-134.

MILITIA MATTERS

Similarly, officers of higher rank than lieutenant will not be permitted to present themselves for examination for promotion until they have served not less than one year in their rank. Lieuts. W. B. Almon and S. A. Hewit, R. C. A., have been selected for the gunnery staff course, and will proceed to England forthwith.
