Brief History of the Russia Salve. About the year 1815, a Russian, who had served as a soldier in the Imperial army, during the disastrous com-paign of Napoleon, arrivel in Boston from Cronstadt, and shortly got work athes trade, (a currier) in Charlestown near Boston. He was soon after taken sick; and during his illness he was attended by a kind hearted ciergyman, of that town, who did all in his power for the reliet of the zoor. Russian. Though he grew worm even size to Institutes are was attended by a kilowise learned clergy man, of that town, who did all in his power for the reliet of the poor Russian. Thouch he grew worse every day, the beneroident clergyman did not abate his kindness, but was more and more attentive; and at last, when the Rus-sian felt that he was soon to die, he motioned his benefac-tor to his bedside, thanked him for his kindness, and as the only return he could make, presented him with the recipe of a remarkable Ointment, which had been used with great success by the surgeons of the Russian army-fhe olergyman prepared a small quantity, and was con-vinced of its great value, but dying soon after, his family disposed of the recipe to Mr., Kedding, who gave it the name of "Reputa's Russia Sairs" Such is the history of the introduction of Redding's Russia Salve to the American public.
