CW Games get $100 grand

The Western Canada Lottery turned over $100,000 to the Commonwealth Games Foundation last week, as its share of the proceeds from the first series.

The presentation, made at an Edmonton Oilers hockey game, was followed by the purchase of a ticket on the lottery in the name of the Houston Aeros Hockey Club.

The Commonwealth Games Foundation, the Edmonton Exhibition Association and the Calgary Stampede and Exhibition Board are partners in the four-province lottery.

Lottery revenues are divided according to the number of tickets sold in each province. In Alberta, sales exceeded $600,000 in the first series compared with a total of just over $2,000,000 in all of Western Canada.

After distribution of prize money, sales commissions, and all other expenses, Alberta's three participating partners showed a profit of $200,000. The Commonwealth Games Foundation picks up the major share, 50 per cent.

Mass transit spying

ENS - The British press is expressing some puzzlement over a recent revelation that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency has asked American executives in Britain to spy on technological development in mass transit in England, France, West Germany and Canada.

In a letter to several executives in Britain, the C.I.A. specifically asked them to pinpoint the institutions and individuals engaged in mass transit research and development in those countries. The letter suggested that the firms should apply for contract from the U.S. government to study foreign transportation technology.

The apparent reason for the CIA proposal is a concern that foreign technological developments might pose a threat to "important U.S. industrial sectors," such as General Motors or Boeing.

The CIA letter specifically called for information on European developments in the design of tracked hovercraft vehicles and magnetic levitation, as well as non-petroleum-fueled automobile engines.

But according to the British magazine New Scientist, the CIA is going to extreme lengths to gather information - that's already in the files of the U.S. Transportation Department and the Department of Commerce.

organizations in the province - earned $126,000 in commissions to be spent on community projects.

Figures for the lottery's second series, which operated from October until the closing date last week, are expected to be even greater. The draw for the second series will take place in Lethbridge on February 15, during the Canada Winter Games. The draw will be shown live on Western Canada television.

Meanwhile, tickets are now available on the third series and are usually available at booths in the Coliseum concourse. They are also on sale at Treasury Branches, most neighbourhood drug stores, trust companies, credit unions, sports groups, Canadian Legion members, and other community and service club organizations.

The Western Canada Lottery, which offers $850,000 in prize money and a quarter of a million dollars to the first place winner, consists of four draws each year. Closing date for the spring draw is mid-April.

The Commonwealth Games Foundation is looking to the Western Canada Lottery to provide a major share of the $6,000,000 it requires to plan, prepare and present the Games in 1978.

Bears battle for two more

by Cam Cole

Bears 8 - Huskies 4
Bears 3 - Huskies 2

World War Three it wasn't. The series that was supposed to make strong men cringe, turned out to be noticeably short on hitting. What it lacked in muscle, however, it made up in entertainment value.

Saskatchewan Huskies gave the Golden Bears hockey club more than a few tense moments this weekend and although they gained no points in the standings, they proved that, with a little discipline, they could be a very good hockey team, indeed.

Friday's 8-4 decision was largely due to a strong burst in the second period by the Bears, and on Saturday, Alberta had to overcome a 2-0 deficit to manage to win a squeaker.

Bruce Crawford scored three times (Bears' first hat trick of the season) Friday, to lead Alberta, with Brian Middleton, John Horcoff, Bryan Sosnowski, Clark Jantzie and Jim Ofrim, getting one each.

Crawford's second goal was rather on the mouldy side. Saskatoon had control of the puck when the referee raised his arm to signal what appeared to be a delayed slashing penalty. Huskies' netminder Kevan Migneault made a dash for the bench, in favor of an extra forward. Meanwhile, Bears gained possession, and the whistle should have been blown, but wasn't. So Dale Henwood left the net, reasoning that the infraction must be against Saskatchewan. The puck was passed to Crawford, who simply dumped it into the open goal.

Needless to say, a bit of discussion occurred on the spot, but the goal was allowed, and Bears never looked back. They poured in 4 goals in the middle period, and forechecked the Huskies into submission most of the game.

Saturday, it was the Huskies who pressed Bears in their end, and the strategy worked for more than two periods. Alberta was hemmed in much of the contest, and only good goaltending from Craig Gunther, and their own strong defensive play in the third period allowed them to make the breaks that won the game for them.

Saskatchewan held a 2-0 lead on tallies by Gary Slucinski and Rick Jackson until 14:51 of the second period, when Steve McKnight scored to put Bears on the scoresheet. In the final period, Alberta went ahead to stay on goals by Kevin Primeau and Clark Jantzie.

In the last two minutes, as Saskatchewan attempted to carry the puck into the Alberta end in order to pull the goaltender, Bears' tenacious forechecking kept play inside the Huskies blueline, and Migneault had no chance to get to the bench.

John Horcoff took the lead in the Canada West scoring race with 24 points on the strength of his goal and 3 assists this weekend. Huskies' Rick Jackson is breathing down his neck, one behind him at 23.

Ross Barros, in a scoring slump since Christmas, slipped from top spot to 3rd with 22 points.

Golden Bears have a sensational 17-3 win-loss record as a result of their two victories this weekend.

UBC Thunderbirds moved two giant steps closer to a second place (and playoff) position with 10-5 and 3-1 victories over the Calgary Dinosaurs in Vancouver this weekend. T-Birds now have a four point advantage over Dinos, with four games remaining in the schedule.

Bears' big gun - Bruce Crawford.
