

ODDS & ENDS.

—To a hungry fly, a bald orchestra is an oasis.

—Convulsed with Unnecessary Pain, infants writhe with colic, who might be speedily relieved with Milk of Magnesia.

—Most men love little women, and little women love most men.

—Early to ryes and late to bed—the toper.

—He that would put money in his bob, must do the work or boss the job.

—Any man who can swap horses, or catch fish and not lie about it, is just as pious as men ever get in this world.

—All those who have gray hair in the prime of life can remedy that unpleasantness and restore its natural color and beauty with Luby's Parisian Hair Renewer; wash the head clean, and, when perfectly dry, apply it as an ordinary dressing. It pleases every one who has occasion to use it. Sold by all chemists, only 50 cents a bottle.

—Man glories in his strength; woman glories in her hair; and boarding house butter sometimes glories in both.

—Where one youth depends on his mental ability for success in life, nine rest their hopes on the cut and gloss of their collars.

—Some genius proposes to introduce paper shirts. But a shirt made out of a story paper would have too many tales.

—THE STINGING SENSATION in the gullet, called heartburn, proceeds from acidity of the stomach, and is remedied by Milk of Magnesia.

—Jennie (looking in a milliner's window)—"Don't you think they are very pretty?" Lizzie (whose thoughts are on the other side of the street)—"Very, especially the one with the long black sidewiskers."

—Attending the funeral of his fourth wife, a cockney fainted at the grave. "What shall we do with him?" eagerly asked a bystander. "Leave him alone," said a sympathetic mourner, "he'll soon revive."

—In consequence of the large number of hotel clerks and bar-keepers out of employment this year, the rush of Italian counts, English lords and foreign noblemen generally, at the watering places this summer, was larger than ever before known.

—A Sensitive Plant.—(Herr Pumpernickel, having just played a composition of his own, bursts into tears.) Chorus of friends—"Oh, what is the matter? What can we do for you?" Herr Pumpernickel—"Aeh! Nossing! Nossing! Bot ven I hear really good music, zen must I always weep!"

—A country editor received the following: "Dear Sir,—I have looked carefully and patiently over your papers for months for the death of some individuals I was acquainted with, but as yet not a single soul I care anything about has dropped off; you will please to have my name erased."

—"Are there any woods about here?" asked the seeker for summer board of the proprietor of "a country house delightfully situated, ten minutes walk from the depot; large barn; horses and carriages can be had on reasonable terms; plenty of milk eggs, etc." "Well, yes; there's Jim Wood, he's postmaster, an' keeps the West Indy goods store; 'Siah Wood's the blacksmith, an' Thomas Benton Wood, he farms it up in the corners. Be you related to the Woods?"

—The great decline in the price of Sugar is attributed to the sweetness of the girls at this season, which renders the use of saccharine substances of less account than usual.

—Providence, jealous of the London Zoological Gardens, has resolved to have a menagerie of her own. In a recent number of the Providence Journal the Superintendent of Parks acknowledges the receipt of ten squirrels, two crows, and a Guinea pig.

—An English lady at Kingston-on-the-Thames, drives a four-in-hand as well as a man, says an English paper. If she drives the man as well as the four-in-hand, she must be a very uncommon woman.

—WHAT SAY THE DOCTORS about MILK OF MAGNESIA? That it is an excellent remedy for disorders of the stomach.

—A YOUNG American prima donna, who took lessons in Milan, a few years ago, and returned to this country disgusted with the tyranny of Italian music teachers, has been engaged as a substitute for a steam whistle in a Lowell boot factory.

—"My dear Amelia," said a dandy, "I have long wished for this opportunity, but hardly dare speak for fear you will reject me. But I love you; say you will be mine! Your smiles would shed"—and then he paused again.

"Never mind the wood shed," said Amelia; "go on with the pretty talk."

—Ladies need have no objection whatever in using Luby's Parisian Hair Renewer, as it will not soil the most delicate head-dress, on the contrary, it is a most favorite toilet dressing, imparting a pleasant perfume and gloss to the hair. No toilet table should be without it. Sold by all chemists.

—A man sentenced to be hung was offered his liberty if he would act as judge of a baby show. He said he preferred a less violent death, and told the sheriff to go on with the hanging.

"Ah, parson, I wish I could carry my gold with me," said a dying man to his pastor. "It might melt," was the consoling answer.

—A gentleman called on a bookseller for a finely-bound copy of the Scriptures. The dealer looked over the stock but could find nothing to suit the customer. Casting an abstracted look over the shelves, he finally said: "I don't see why it is there are so few here. We always keep an ugly number on hand."

—MILK OF MAGNESIA, a far superior article to the carbonates of soda and magnesia, or the calcined form of the latter.

—Piety and business are pleasingly blended in the following copy of a circular, which, it is said, has recently been issued by a commercial firm in Bombay:—"Gentlemen, we have the pleasure to inform you our respected father departed this life on the --- inst. His business will be conducted by his beloved sons, whose names are stated below. The opium market is quiet, and Malwa 1500rs. per chest. "O Grave where is thy sting? O death where is thy grave? We are, yours truly, —"

—He was praising her beautiful hair, and begging for one tiny curl, when her little brother said: "O, my! 'taint nothin' now. You just ought to have seen how long it hangs down when she hangs it on the side of the table to comb it." Then they laughed, and she called her brother a cute little angel, and when the young man was going away and heard that boy yelling, he thought the lad was taken suddenly and dangerously ill.
