"LONG GREEN" FARMING IS FINDING A PLACE IN CANADIAN AGRICULTURE
Tobacco culture, a comparatively new branch of agriculture in Canada, is making rapid headway in certain favored sections of the Dominion, notably in Essex and Kent counties of Ontario. Where the climate is favorable tobacco is the most profitable crop that can be grown, returns sometimes running into the hundreds of dollars an acre. And farmers have been quick to see the money making possibilities of the crop. Statistics show that since 1896 our production of tobacco in Canada has increased from 550,000 lbs. to over 5,000,000 lbs. in 1911. The illustration herewith shows a large tobacco field in Pelee Island, the most southerly point in Canada.
