"MUM IS THE WORD"

The Government is ruling now, although Parliament has not met, and the people should not have to wait for some knowledge of its policy, until Parliament meets. When Parliament is not sitting the people ask

One part of Council work has, however, come to light, and Orders-in-Council have full swing, and we do not propose to be 'mum' about it. With all the righteous indignation he could assume he damned such orders, on pre-election platforms and some of his Ministerial Satellites took the same course. No more Orders-in-Council for King and Company. Then he was seeking power, now he is in power; and the King of today, has lost his former features. His condemnation of Orders-in-Council was a well played farce, and a marked instance of political hypocrisy.

sy, all the more so' if we admit, that he must have known, that Orders-in-Councils, are a necessary part of the requirements of Constitutional Government, and their use, the only way by which Government can function when Parliament is not in Session. If he did not know such to be the case, for a man seeking the Premiership, his ignorance was colossal. That he at least knows it now, is evidenced by the fact that short time as his government has been in power, and even before his first Parliament has met, some hundreds of Orders-in-Council have been issued! Of course it was a terrible thing for Mr. Meighen to use such power; but it is all right for the benign Mr. King to exercise it. We must not condemn him. Oh no, mum is the word.

They are busy in another direction also. In the few weeks of their existence, faithful workers, hangers on; and patronage hunters of "the great Liberal party" have been placed in the haven of fat jobs. The axe has been used, to make way for the victors. Senatorships, Commissionerships and Judgeships, already were showered even the Soldiers Settlement Board, has had to lose one of its best solicitors, to make room—in Cumberland Co. N. S.—for another, to please the Liberal party, or its Representative in that County. All this notwithstanding the "holy horror" expressed by Mr. King in reference to party appointments, patronage and other Tory tricks of the terrible Conservative Party. Every reader of the Advocate knows, and every elector who happened to be—within hearing of Mr. Kings voice knows how during the campaign; his utmost indignation was hurled against Mr. Meighen for making similar appointments, and his promise to abolish all such tricks of the terrible Conservative party. Every reader of the Advocate knows, and every elector who happened to be within hearing of Mr. Kings voice knows how during the campaign; his utmost indignation was hurled against Mr. Meighen for making similar appointments, and his promise to abolish all such tricks of patronage, and usurpation, should he be returned to power. The Electors put him there, and now his fine promises, holy horror and indignant Oratory; all seem to have vanished. Like a morning dew on Parliament hill, when perhaps they are buried among the "silence and secrecy" of the Council Chamber. The Electors may know before long, just how far Premier King will go to prove the worthlessness of his election promises.

Government Appointments, and orders-in-Council, easily become public property. The deliberations of Council, the measures they adopt, and their every Governmental action; their policy, should be equally known to the public. We presume they will be known, during the session of Parliament, that is, if the wind is favorable. The present secrecy is all wrong, first knowledge of Government policy should not be confined to the assembled Parliament. The Electors, who are the makers of Parliament, take a deep interest in knowing just how their Government is moving. They want to express an opinion, to criticize, to examine proposed measures. It is their right, to know just where they are every time; and not to have measures spring upon them in the House of which they had no previous knowledge. It is plain such an honest open course does not suit Mr. King, and "the end is not yet. We notice too, that even the New Secretary of State, the Hon. A. B. Copp is under the spell, for on last Wednesday evening he had to inform a Monday Audience assembled to do him honor, that "he would have been delighted to give out the policy of the Administration to them, but was unable to do so, as the Hon. MacKenzie King had stated it must first be given to Parliament; through them, to the people." Whatever Mr. Copp may think about it, the general public view it as a humiliating position for a Minister of the crown to be placed in. It is something new and undesirable in Canadian Governmental practice.

"Mum" is a useful word. Two men—one has a secret to tell, or tells something as such, telling the other to keep mum. It is a name given to a certain toilet article, said to be useful in keeping down bodily odors, in the crowded concert hall, or ballroom. It might even be used in the Council rooms of Parliament, when the members perspire from brain-fog. But the Mum we refer to just now is an attribute of the King's Cabinet, which means "Keep it all to yourselves." Mum is the word. Such is Liberal rule in 1922.

FILES 14 CLAIMS FOR GOLD ON THE NORTH SHORE

Fredericton, N. B., March 8.—Harry McLaughlin of St. John, who spends the autumn and winter trapping on the Southwest Miramichi and its tributaries, this morning filed fourteen claims at the crown land office for the mining of gold on a tributary of the Taxis river, which runs into the Southwest Miramichi river a short distance above Boiestown.

McLaughlin is a middle-aged man who comes from Ontario. He says that he spent some years prospecting in Northern Ontario in the vicinity of mining camps. While hunting trapping and gubbing in the Miramichi country he also prospected and says that he discovered gold last autumn. He says he found gold-bearing quartz and also traces of the precious metal in the bed-rock of streams and in sand also in the stream beds. He intends to work his claims during the summer.

Officials of the Department of Lands and Mines are sceptical of the discovery of gold in the region named. Soil tests have been made there by the forest survey without any traces of gold being found. The Taxle lies entirely in the parish of Stanley, York County. The tungsten deposits at Burnt Hill, which were worked during the war, are to the north. Zinc and lead were discovered at Winding Hill, between Burnt Hill and the Taxle, several years ago by W. H. Griffin, of Stanley.
