

A Brief for "Beaver" Flour

"Beaver" Flour

1. Eat more bread made from BEAVER FLOUR and less meat, and you will be better nourished, at the same time reducing the cost of living.
2. No special pastry flour is needed, for BEAVER FLOUR makes the best pies, cakes, biscuits and rolls.
3. It contains the valuable gluten and protein constituents of Manitoba No. 1 Hard Wheat, but makes finer, whiter bread than if made from that alone.
4. It owes its delicacy and lightness to the carbo-hydrate constituents of Ontario Wheat in just the right proportions, but is more nourishing than if made from that alone.
5. It readily takes up water, and makes larger loaves and more of them.
6. It tickles the palate of the whole family, and does them good.
7. A few good reasons are as good as a thousand, so we will now, Your Honor, rest our case.

Be sure to note that the decision is for BEAVER FLOUR,— with the costs assessed to those who do not use it.

'I Have Caused Your Death.'

'Smiling in his sleep! He must have pleasant dreams. I hope it is a sign he is getting better. How nice he looks when he smiles; and how much that mousethatch does become him.'

'Faith, that's a candid declaration, thought Will. 'I wish to Heaven I could catch sight of her.'

As if in answer to his prayer, she moved toward the window. Will glanced through the curtains, and caught a full view of her in profile. She was small, not much taller than a well-grown child of thirteen, though she was evidently at least four years older; but her figure was perfect, slight, graceful and fairy-like. The bright golden hair was brushed back of the smooth white forehead, and confined in a knot behind. The sunlight fell upon her, showing the rose-tinted complexion to perfection. Her thin muslin dress, confined at the waist by a blue silk ribbon, showed to advantage the exquisitely-moulded little figure.

'Matchless! peerless! a perfect angel!' exclaimed Will, forgetting prudence in his admiration.

In a moment the fairy was standing at his bedside. Will lay with his eyes

Sluggish Liver Action

Cause indigestion, constipation and bilious headache—Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills the cure.

"Sluggish liver has been my trouble," writes Mrs. I. P. Smith, Paris, Ont. "and I have been greatly benefited by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I have taken medicines from several good doctors, but none ever did me the same amount of good as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I could not keep up and do my work if I did not use these pills when the bilious spells come on, and I have recommended them to many."

"Dr. Chase's medicines were about the only kind that came into my father's house 40 or 50 years ago, and they were always satisfactory."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are prompt, definite and direct in their action on the liver, kidneys and bowels, and are therefore the most effective treatment obtainable for biliousness, indigestion and constipation. 25 cents a box, 5 for $1.00, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

shut, a perfect picture of unconscious innocence.

'R'ving again, poor fellow!' said the little one, with a wistful sigh. 'Well, I must run now and help mamma, or she will think I am a tedious nurse.'

And away she tripped down stairs leaving Will to bless his lucky star that had given him so charming a little nurse.

Will waited and watched anxiously, during the whole of the next day for the reappearance of his angel. But he was doomed to disappointment; for in her stead came a pleasant motherly-looking, elderly lady, whom Will guessed to be the mamma. In this he was soon confirmed, when Mrs. O'Brien informed him that he had been thrown at her door, and had ever since been under the care of herself and daughter Nora.

Nora O'Brien—then that was the name of his angel. Most sincerely did the dragon wish some untoward accident would retain mamma in the lower regions, and force Miss Nora to attend him. Moreover he had not the slightest objection to another attack of fever, if her hands only lashed his brow.

Fate was for once propitious and pretty Nora became his nurse. Breezy and bright, she would sit into his room, with a brilliant bouquet, redolent of fragrance and summer—herself a brighter sunbeam than any that cast its shadow over the floor as it crept in through the open window. It was her low sweet voice that read to him dainty, musical poems, or sang softly some quaint love ballad of olden time. And he—like a true dragon—repaid her with tender glances, and sundry hand squeezes, that never failed to bring a deeper red to her oval cheeks.

And so the days passed on, and Will became convalescent. At his own request, they had sent no word of his whereabouts to his friends. He did not want to be bored with visitors, he said. Though if the truth were told, it was more from fear of letting Nora be seen by any of his brother officers.

He now sat in an easy-chair, by the window, gazing idly out, and wondering why Nora had not visited him all day. Of late she had grown shy and reserved; the rose hue faded from her cheeks, her step lost its brightness, her laugh no longer rang out merry and clear. She seemed anxious to shun him, and Will was trying to think how he could possibly have offended her, when suddenly he heard her well-known voice singing in the room below. It was a love song, one of his favorites, and he leaned forward breathlessly to listen.

'Weep for the love that fate forbids. Yet loves unhoping on,

Though every light that once illumed its early path be gone.

'Weep for the love that must resist: The soul's enchanted dream. And float like some neglected bark Adown life's lonely stream!'

'Weep for the love that cannot change— Like some unholby spell It hangs upon the life that loved So vainly and so well.'

'Weep for the weary heart condemned To one long, lonely sigh— Whose lot has been in this cold world To dream, despair and die!'

She sang the last verse over twice with a mournful pathos that showed that it came from the heart. Will leaned back in his chair with a sigh and passed his fingers thoughtfully through his dark, luxuriant locks. He scarcely noticed that the sun had set and that the shadows of night were falling fast. Suddenly his door was pushed gently open, and Nora entered.

He was sitting in the shadow and not noticing him, she approached the window softly, as if to close it. Her eyes fell upon him as she stood beside it, and for a moment she seemed inclined to retreat. Then concluding, from his immobility that he was asleep, she approached on tip-toe, and beat softly over him. Will scarcely breathed as she raised his dark, clustering hair off his forehead and bent over him until her breath fanned his cheek. Then, by a sudden impulse, he passed his arm around her waist, and drew her toward him.

She uttered a faint cry and strove to escape, but he held her fast. "Dear Nora!" he whispered, softly. Her head fell on his shoulder with a suppressed sob.

Here was a situation for a man

Neuralgia and Sciatica

Caused great suffering for 25 years. Nothing effective until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills were used.

"It affords me pleasure to speak favorably of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills," writes Mr. W. T. Collins, Morpeth, Ont. "I had been a sufferer for 25 years from sciatica, lumbago and neuralgia and tried nearly all the remedies advertised without one particle of benefit until I began the use of Dr. Chase's medicines. Before I had finished two boxes of the Nerve Food and Kidney-Liver Pills I noticed considerable benefits in my condition. I have so much confidence in these medicines that I have recommended them to dozens of my friends."

In severe cases of this nature the combined use of these medicines brings results which are both surprising and satisfactory. The Kidney-Liver Pills regulate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels, while the Nerve Food enriches the blood and builds up the nervous system Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto

'bout to be married to another! Will forgot Miss Stanley and her money in the consciousness that he was over head and ears in love with little Nora.

"Do you love me, Nora?" he said bending over the little golden head resting on his shoulder.

"Oh, yes ever, so much!" she whispered, between tears and blushes.

He did not reply; he knew not what to say; only a bitter feeling of self-contempt shot through his heart. What right had he to win so faithful a heart? He knew they must part; he was engaged to another. Still he had not the courage to tell her; how could he wring the gentle heart? A dragon, too, is only flesh and blood like other people; and he loved Nora, as a father before he had thought he could never love anyone so he only gathered her closer in his arms, where she laid like a tired child, all unconscious of the bitter feelings crowding through his heart.

"I must go now, mamma will want me," she said, softly, after a pause. Without a word he opened his arms and she flitted like a happy child down stairs. Morning's dawn found him still sitting by the window, where he had sat during the night; lost in his thoughts, the hours had flown by unheeded.

Next day, toward evening, Mrs. O'Brien came up stairs to announce that a gentleman in the parlor wished to see him. Wondering who it could be, he descended, when to his surprise, he found himself face to face with Jack Masters.

"Jack! by all that's glorious! how the deuce did you find me out?" exclaimed Will, in surprise.

"Faith! ye may well say that!" replied Jack: "I haven't left a corner in Dublin but I have hunted for you. I had a description of you, as large as life, stuck up at the corners of the street; and at last with the blessing of Providence, I hit upon you here. I was determined to find you, if you had gone to the devil."

At this moment, Nora came dancing in, with eyes and cheeks all aglow. Jack was partly screened from view by the door, and Will, who was sitting with his back toward her, did not observe her, until placing both hands on his shoulders, she looked up in his face with a merry laugh.

"Ahem!" said Will, coloring slightly; "let me make you acquainted with my friend, Mr. Masters, Miss Nora."

Jack bowed profoundly, as his eyes fell on the fairy-like figure before him, while Miss Nora, blushing, cast down her eyes, looking as demurely innocent as though she had never been kissed by a light dragon.

Fads and Fashions.

Waists are large. All Oriental effects are prominent. Waistlines are normal, or nearly so. Suit coats are finger-tip length, or shorter. Emerald green is often combined with white. Heavy as well as light laces are fashionable. Very low draperies characterize the newest skirts. Skirts are narrow and often with slashed effects. Every indication points to a strong revival of taffeta.

The use of antique fringes is a new phase of fringe fashions. After black and white the popular color in millinery is royal purple. White satin and white taffeta skirts are worn with white lace waists.

Trimming of all kinds are expected to be good for winter millinery. Supple silk beaver hats for fall are shown. They have very little trimming.

White and black algettes and white and black ostrich are still very fashionable. There is absolutely no evidence of the long suit coat in the leading Paris houses.

Large flat-brim hats with the brim folded or cut in wing effect is a new feature. Silk suits are still in the front ranks. The changeable silk suit is now the thing.

Complexion veils of white or tinted maline, with or without chenille dots are worn. Puff and scallop trimmings on many of the dresses suggest the early Victorian styles.

Silk and mouseline de sole gowns are trimmed with very thin silk and satin buttons.

Coloured felt hats have around the crown bands of ostrich plumes in contrasting colours.

Combinations of black and white lace and of black and champagne are very much seen.

Flounces of lace are placed on the newest afternoon gowns. They are placed quite flat.

In jewelry, emeralds are much worn, being perhaps the most popular of all colored stones.

A single rever of lace in place of a jabot is shown on a new model of a hand-embroidered blouse.

MAGISTRATE CURED OF PILES & ECZEMA

One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favour is Mr. C. E. Sanford of Weston, King's Co., N.S. Mr. Sanford is a Justice of the Peace for the County, and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also Deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected. Here is his opinion of Zam-Buk. He says:— "I never used anything that gave me such satisfaction as Zam-Buk. I had been there for over 20 years. Sometimes I had a severe attack of itching piles, and I had applied various ointments and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure, but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike everything else I had tried, proved highly satisfactory and cured the ailment. I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles, and it has cured them completely. For evening wear the only rival to it other sufferers to try it. I should be glad to see the suffering caused by Piles or Skin Disease as I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk." Zam-Buk cures ulcers, abscesses, blood-poison, eczema, itching sores, bed-legs, varicose ulcers, salt rheum, prairie itch, cuts, burns, frost-bites, etc. Fully tested, 50c box, drugists and stores. Refuse imitations.

Draped crowns are a strong feature of the new fall turbans models and are shown in various shapes.

A dark navy, blue serge suit for a young girl has a deep square collar and cuffs of coarse pink linen.

Large pearl buttons are used to trim the white serge suits and dresses that are so much in vogue.

Long coats accompany some of the elaborate afternoon dresses, but these are practically separate coats.

Long gloves are still in strong demand and will continue to be favored in a large way throughout the fall.

Fichu bodices of evert ydescrption are worn, white lace fichus being employed on dark silks and chiffons.

Embroidered volles are again to be featured in the high-class embroideries, some of which are done in colors.

For evening wear the only rival to lace are the broadcades, in metal, satin and velvet, and the printed silks and velvets.

Some of the new hats in simple style are trimmed with silk fringes. These surround the crown of small felt shapes or border the brim of large shapes.
