London, Sept. 6.—Anthony J. Mundella, M. But he advised Englishmen to remain quiet in regard to the measure. It would be absurd to retailate by taxing food products, especially when there was a prospect of a famine in Ireland. If the people only waited free trade would ultimately triumph, even in America.

ingmen were entitled to protection as others.

Mr. Choquette, Ottawa, of the Government Printing Bureau, entered an emphatic protest against the partisan spirit which, he said, had been brought into this congress. Professional politicians had been sent here by different Governments. The resolution was worded so as to hurt one Government more than another. He moved in amendment to the amendment for reference to a committee:

Mr. H. T. Benson, of the Builders' Laborers' Union, Toronto, opposed the expenditure of 1 cent for immigration. If an immigrating mechanic could not get employment at his trade he sought employment side by side with the unskilled laborer. For this he considered the Dominion Government responsible, and no one else. If immigrants came here of their own free will they would make good citizens, but for the Government or its agents to offer dishonest inducements was disgraceful. Why shouldn't the workingmen get a chance? He voted for the N. P., but his views were beginning to change. Where the manufacturers were protected, but were their wages protected? No, the Government looked after the manufacturers alone. This resolution could not be too strong. Put the blame where it belonged, without being afraid of treading on any-body's corns.

Mr. Jury took notice of an assertion that he was in the pay of the Ontario Government by saying that he had been in this country eighteen years and received pay from the Ontario Government for 28 days.

Mr. Lefevre testified that he had been in the company's employ for eighteen years. Mr. Bissell discharged him, but gave no reason, telling him he knew what for. He supposed that it was for being a Knight. He had never been reprimanded, suspended, accused of drunkenness or incapacity. Bowen Staley, another discharged employe, said no reason was given for his discharge. He had been employed on the same road for fourteen years. He had been reprimanded in January, 1889, for being the head of an organization, and had

The Dryl Earth System by Irrigation
Suggested as the Best Method for London-Report of the Modical Officer on City

A meeting of the Board of Health was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the sewage question, but for a long time it looked as if there would not be a quorum. After a long wait several members dropped in and the business was commenced with the following present: Aldermen Taylor (chairman), Wallace, Boyd Anderson and Moule, Col. Moffat, Dr. Gardiner, Health Officer Hutchinson and Scoretary Kingston. The first business taken up was the consideration of a report compiled from the discussion of the Sanitary Convention held recently in the town of Owen Sound. The report dealt with the various methods of treating sewage and was presented by Medical Health Officer Hutchinson substantially as follows:

One of the sewage systems now in use in London, England, is to carry the sewage twelve miles, by pipes. Tankage is provided for 61,000,000 gallons daily on a farm of eighteen acres. From this 17,000 acres are daily irrigated, employing 2,000 repolp. The same system is in operation in Boston. There is an fear, however, that supersaturation of the sewage is it is the casiest members of the content of the co otherwise, and the pipes being much smaller in consequence are easily kept clean and inodorous, an eighteen-inch pipe being sufficient for 18,000 people. This is the system adopted in the town of Brockville.

For the disposal of sewage by an irrigation farm one acre of ground is considered sufficient for 1,000 people. The consensus of opinion with reference to London was that we should enforce the dry-earth system and dispose of sewage by irrigation, with or without the separate system.

sewage by irrigation, with or without the separate system. On motion to file the report, Col. Mossat contended that something more than sliing it should be done. The system of irrigation at the Asylum, he said, did not prevent the drainage of sewage into the creek emptying into Carling's Creek.

Ald. Anderson held that the city had a low death-rate, and the citizens were not like those of Toronto, suffering from the effects of bad water or sewage. He thought it was not a live issue.

Col. Mossat contended that it was, and said that he was sure that the city would be placed under a load of obligation to the Government or anyone that would show what could be done with the sewage now that the city was prevented from draining into Carling's Creek and the river.

Inspector Hutchinson explained in connection with the recent epidemics in Torontc, that the workmen in driving piles had split one of the sewage pipes and that when this was remedied the effects of the malady was remedied the effects of the malady that the workmen in driving piles had split one of the sewage pipes and that when this was remedied the effects of the malady abated. At another time, when typhoid fever was raging in Toronto it was found that a man had dumped a scowload of night soil at the head of the city's water supply.

Secretary Kingston thought that London West could be purchased outright and the irrigation system in this way put in operation as cheap as any other.

Ald. Boyd suggested that a mill-race be built in the river and that it be floodes as otten as the river became polluted with sewage.

Dr. Gardiner—How long have the dogs been there?

Dr. Gardiner—How many inspectors have we in the city?
Ald. Wallace—There are three now, but the work has not been done as well as when there was but one.
Dr. Gardiner suggested that the city-officials had been negligent of their duty in not having the matter attended to.
Dr. Hutchinson contended that the Board of Health was at fault, as he had made a report to the Board some time ago stating that the culvert used for draining the water off had fallen down, but no action was taken.

On motion of Dr. Gardiner the owners of the properties on which the nuisances were located were ordered to have the land drained or filled up forthwith.

Ald. Moule moved that an invitation be extended to the Provincial Board of Health to hold its next session in this city. Carried.

The question of providing proper closeus on the market was introduced by Inspector Hutchinson, who stated that he had examined the market and decided that the best place for the closets would be in the base ment of the market building. The Engineer will be asked to make a report on the matten and submit it to the Hoard at the next meeting.

and submit it to the Board at the next meeting.

Dr. Hutchinson reported with reference to the complaints made that some stores and factories had not proper conveniences for female employes, that the complaints were well-founded in several instances. On account of a lack of room many of the closest pits were within a few feet of the windows or doors. They were a frequent cause of litigation between neighbors and were dangerous to health. It is also improper to have but one closet for both sexes as is found to be the case. Some of the employers would make the desired changes if they had the room. The only way to remedy the evil would be to take a certain depth along Dundas and Richmond streets and have closets with sewer connections.
