bearance with Austria was possible and wise for the victory had settled definitely an issue long in dispute and Austria should herself be inclined to accept the result. Forbearance with France would on the contrary have been useless, for France did not perceive and would not recognize the difference that a union of Germany had made in Europe. For centuries Germany, parcelled into small states, had been the victim of the reckless attacks of her Gallic neighbors, and, accustomed to easy victory over feeble enemies, France regarded the results of a great change only as the accident of a campaign. It is probable that in the coming centuries also the only remedy against Gallic assaults will be for Germany to keep her military force at such a point against Gaine assaults will be for detailed to keep her military force at such a point that that alone may always guarantee the safety of the country. The question of the protection of Berlin is not so important as that of guarding Germany against invasion.

which Mr. Fisher favored the House at a later stage of the debate.

A splendidly convincing and logical speech was that delivered by Mr. Mc-Millan, of South Huron, a farmer and a strong, clear debater. In exposing the injustice of the tariff, he showed that the taxes on cotton clothing in 1877 averaged 17½ per cent.; in 1888 the average was 30 per cent. and in 1889 and last year 35 per cent. The taxes on agricultural implements equaled 25 per cent. in 1890 and 35 per cent. in 1889. On the stoneware of the poor the tariff imposes 35 per cent. of taxation, and on the china and silver and gold plate of the rich 30 and 20 per cent. respectively. The tax upon jewelry is 20 per cent. on spades and shovels 46 per cent. and oa forks and hoes 53 per cent. A hay knife costs $3 15, the duty thereon is $2 59, equal to 79½ per cent.
