"The Quaker Girl," which comes to he Grand tomorrow evening and Wednesday evening for two performances, like all modern musical comedies has a waltz. This waltz is called "Come to the Ball," and has an irresistible re-frain, which is declared by many to be superior to any of the famous mu-sical comedy waitzes of the past few years, including "The Merry Widow,"
"The Pink Lady," and the Count of Luxembourgh waltz, Lionel Monckton wrote this waltz one evening in a London cafe, as the producer had asked him to write a number to cover up a bare spot in the second act. The range of the waltz is so wide that there are only about six baritones in America who can sing it. It was only after trying the voices of a great many famous singers that Phil J. Moore, who sings the number, was secured.

"The Light Eternal." On its three previous engagements in London, "The Light Eternal" was greeted by large and unusually re-sponsive audiences. The drama adapt-ed by Martin V. Merle from Cardinal Wiseman's "Fabiola," picturing the persecutions and martyrdom of the early Christians, is one of the strongest of its kind, stirring the depths of all that believers hold most dear and sacred. Possibly no more powerful climax than the shattering of the statue of Jupiter and the appearance of the flery cross in the third act has ever been put before a local audience.
"The Light Eternal" will play a return engagement at the Grand Opera House on Friday and Saturday night, and Saturday matinee. Seats Wed-

NOW---The Time to Plan Your Holiday

Early in the Day Early in the Week Early in the Month

Early holiday buying is to the advantage of the customer from every standpoint. Deferred Christmas shopping is more distressing to the customer than to the salespeople from every point of view. BEGIN NOW!

Many are already at it (who have begun in a systematic way) with a determination to complete their Christmas buying before December, first making out their lists of who to buy for, and what to get for each, then mapping out their shopping campaign. These wise shoppers have found out by past experience that gifts planned at leisure and bought without haste are the most satisfactory in every way. It costs no more, and perhaps you may find your choice in the lower-priced assortments now, as when assortments become broken the tendency is to pay more rather than select gifts of inferior quality.

Visit the store often now while we ourselves are planning and rearranging stocks to give additional space for the display of holiday merchandise for the convenience of our customers, and to avoid congestion on the aisles where Christmas novelties are shown, by keeping in touch with the expansions made and changes in location of stocks, even if you are not shopping will facilitate your plans later. BEGIN NOW.

Were You Ready to Face the Bluster This Morning?

Without warning winter has fallen upon us. Many have been caught unprepared, but our stocks are ready, and you will find this week, beginning today, many specially-priced lines of Winter Clothing and Bedding which have been just now specially priced.
