GERMANS BUILDING IMMENSE GUNS WITH WHICH TO ATTACK ENGLAND

(Special to The Advertiser,)

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—Adolph Gaul, a mechanical expert connected with the Edison works in East Orange, came back from Germany yesterday on the Scandinavian-American liner Hellig Olav, with stories of 50 and 55 centimetre guns, which, he said, the German gun-makers are constructing. Mr. Gaul not only confirmed the fact that the Germans have 42-centimetre guns, a fact of which military experts outside of Germany had expressed some doubt, but said that the Germans were planning to put guns of this type on their largest battleships in order to put their havy on a basis of equality with Britain. Mr. Gaul also said that Germany has a large number of Zeppelins. "Germany has more of these airships than the outside world thinks," said Mr. Gaul. "And more

A 42-centimetre gun is a 16.1-inch; 55 centimetres is over 21 inches.

Military experts who have expressed doubt that the Germans were able to use 42-centimetre guns in the field based their objections on the probable length and weight of such a gun and its consequent lack of mobility. One expert figured out that the 42-centimetre guns would be 51 feet long and weigh 34 tons, but admitted that he had reached this conclusion figuring on the generally accepted principles of gun construction. Although Mr. Gaul could give no details, it is possible that the Germans are construction that are guns on a new idea.

are constructing their new guns on a new idea.

"In a year's time the Germans hope to have 55-centimetre guns," said Gaul, "which will shoot from 20 to 25 miles. With this gun they hope to be able to command the English Channel at its narrowest point as soon as they have occupied the French and Belgian seacoast.

"Eventually the 42-centimetre guns are to be placed on the biggest German warships so that the German float with the British German warships so that the German fleet will be able to deal with the British. Germany will produce lots of surprises before the Officer Weir Declares There is More Here This Year Than Ever Before, That truancy in the public schools worse this year than in any previous year, was the statement made today by Truant Officer A. E. Weir. Mr. Weir can't account for this truancy unless it is moving pictures, and the encouragement which children get to stay out of school and loaf on the least provocation. A number of the truants have been haled into police court and Shelter, but such drastic measures cannot be taken in every case. "We ought to have more latitude in enforcing the truancy laws," said Mr. Weir. "In the country just outside of that many are ignorant of the very rudiments of A, B, C.
