TUESDAY EVENING, Dec. 11. the money rates. There is no stringency in rates. The prices of grain in Liverpool having been proportionately lower than a America, the export has been slow, so slow that to meet demands that would otherwise have been satisfied by grain shipments, gold had to be sent over. So the amount of gold that has been shipped from New York this season has been shipped from New York this season has been so much larger than during the same period in preceding years, that the money market is feeling it. This is evidenced by a reluctance to lock up money for any considerable length of time at low rates, and the desire of financial institution. she market, but the unusually large shipn

Britons: Hetd The Sea.

Wm. Alian in Newcastle Chronicle Nov. 21
Britons! Rouse, the war-clouds lour
See the men of every Power,
Arming for the battle hour,
Looming darkly nigh;
Soldier hosts in war array,
Ready wait the coming fray,
Britons! in that dreadful day Britons! in that dreadth day
Shall this be our cry?—
Britons! Hold the sea,
Britons! Hold the sea,
Our watchword now, and aye shall beBritons! Hold the sea

In the thunder shock of arms, in the crash of Ruin's storms, Streading wreck and death alarms Shall we then be strong? Yes! if every heart is stirred! Every man to Duty spurred! Every voice exuiting heard! Sounding for it this song—Britons! Hold the ses, &c.

The' the nations rise and fall,
We shall stand united all,
Never shall a conqueror's thrall
Dim our glorious isle;
Daring every Power alone!
Britain true to Britain's own!
All-defiant, fearing none!
We shall triumph while—
Britons! Hold the sea, &c.
