

when I see her face so white and mournful like, to what it used to be—”

Just then the bell was rung violently, and Brown hurried off to answer it, while the other servants, with sundry shakes of the head, dispersed to their different avocations.