Eddie Lowrey will likely figure on the Ottawa line again. He was coming along in fine style last winter when he dropped out, owing to the fact that the Ottawas were over their salary limit. An Ottawa despatch says: The fable of the old lady with the shoe may be applied to the pro. hockey clubs this coming winter, Torontos, Canadiens and Ottawas will surely not know what to do with all their puckchasers. Even without the boys who are returning from overseas, the Ottawas have within reach four goalkeepers, Benedict, Hague, Lindsay and McCullough; also Mooney, Gerard, Ritchie and Crawford for the defense, with George Boucher as a probable tryout at point. For the line they will have Denenny, Hyland, Darragh, Nighbor, Lowrey, Billy Boucher, Orville McCullough, Patsy Parker, Jack McKell and several others. Add Broadbent, Graham, Wilson and Bruce to this combination and then watch the scramble. Canadiens and Torontos will be similarly fortified.

Chief Justice Sir William Meredith of the First Divisional Court yesterday handed down the decision of himself and Justices McGee, Maclaren, Ferguson and Hodgins in the appeal of the Toronto Hockey Club. Ltd., against the Ottawa Hockey Association and other members of the National Hockey Association and the N. H. A. itself for squeezing it out of the last half of the league competition the winter of 1916. 17 last half of the league competition the winter of 1916-17, after the 228th Battalion team was ordered overseas, and so broke up the six-team schedule. The appeal was dismissed with costs.
