

Poetry.

LIEUTENANT LUFF.

All you that are fond of wine,
Or any other stuff,
Take warning by the dismal fate
Of one Lieutenant Luff.

A sober man he might have been Except his wine regard—He did not like soft water, So he took to drinking hard.

Said he, let others fancy slops,
And talk in praise of tea,
But I am no Bohemian,
So do not like Bohemia.

For want of cash he soon had pawned
One half his possessions;
And drinking showed him duplicitous Beforehand of the rest.

So now his creditors resolved
To seize on his assets,
For why they found that his half pay
Did not help pay his debts.

But Luff continued a novel mode
His creditors to chouse, For his own execution he Put into his own house.

A pistol, to the muzzle charged,
He took devoid of fear,
Said he "this barrel is my last,
So now for my last year."

Against his lungs he aimed the slugs,
And not against his brain;
So he blew out his lights, and none Could blow them in again!

A jury for the verdict met,
And gave it in these terms—
" We find as how as certain slugs Has sent him to the worms."

Anecdote of Dr. Johnson.—On the day of my introduction, he was asked to dinner at my father's house, in Soho-square, and the erudite savage came a full hour before his time. I happened to be with my father, who was beginning his toilette, when it was announced to him that the Doctor had arrived. My sire, being one of the tributary princes who did homage to this monarch, was somewhat flurried; and, having dressed himself hastily, took me with him into the drawing room. On our entrance we found Johnson sitting in a fustian of rose coloured satin, the arms and legs of which (of the chair, remember, not of the Doctor) were of burnished gold; and the contrast of the man with his seat was very striking;—an unwashed coal-heaver in a velvet suit could not be much more displaced than Johnson thus deposited. He was dressed in a rusty suit of brown cloth ditto, with black worsted stockings; his old yellow wig was of formidable dimensions, and the leopards head which sustained it rolled about in a seemingly paralytic motion; but, in the performance of its orbit, it inclined chiefly to one shoulder—whether to the right or left I cannot now remember. He desired me to rise on our entrance; and we stood before him while he and my father talked.
There was soon a pause in the colloquy; and my father, making his advantage of it, took me by the hand, and said, " Dr. Johnson, this is a little Colman." The Doctor bestowed a slight ungracious glance upon me, and, continuing the rotatory motion of his head, reviewed the previous conversation. Again there was a pause; again the anxious father, who had failed in his first effort, seized the opportunity for pushing his programme contempt for me was now raised to wrath; and, knitting his brows, he exclaimed in a voice of thunder,
" I see him, sir!" he then fell back in his rose-coloured satin fustian, as if giving himself up to meditation; implying that he would not be further plagued, either with an old fool, or a young one. The gigantic Johnson could not be easily thrown out at window, particularly by my under-sized sire; but he observed to be " quoted down stairs, like a shoe-grover's mill;" not exactly, perhaps, for his brutality to the boy, but for such an unprovoked insult to the father, of whose hospitality he was partaking. This, however, is only one among the numerous traits of grossness already promulgated, in which the Bolt-court philosopher completely falsified the principles of the Roman poet, Emollit mores, nec sinit esse ferus." After this rebuff from the Doctor, I had the additional facility to be placed next to him at dinner; he was as shylock says of Lancelot Gabbro, " a huge feeder;" and during the display of his voracity (which was worthy of Bolt-court) the perspiration fell in copious drops from his visage upon the table-cloth—the clamminess of the bulky animal, his strange costume, his uncouth gestures, yet the dominion which he usurped withal, rendered his presence a phenomenon among gentlemen; it was the incursion of a new species of barbarian, a learned Ailla, king of the Huns, come to subjugate polished society.—Colman's Random Records.
