Comment on a Woman Who Her Furs in Hot July - Certain principles of propriety, rock foundations of fitness, have dominated the costumes of civilization. The Greeks wore sheer fabrics because they lived in a warm climate. The Russians wore furs because they lived in a cold one. It seemed, and seems, reasonable and right that American women who have been baring their throats and chests to the blasts of winter and thus presenting an open invitation to every swathe themselves in fur under our fierce summer sun gives us good cause to wonder.

FUTURE OF THE BLACK FOX INDUSTRY

May Be Successful if Placed on a Legitimate Livestock Basis and Capital Reduced

(Financial Post of Canada) A well known Prince Edward Island fox raiser who is moving his foxes to Nova Scotia, informs the Financial Post that the day for fox business on the old lines has passed. Nevertheless, he believes that there is a future for the raising of foxes on a legitimate livestock basis, that is for the sale of skins and not for breeders as such. The authority, whose name cannot be given, said he gives preference to the raising of foxes on a legitimate livestock basis, that is for the sale of skins and not for breeders as such.
