WAYS THAT ARE DARK.

The Tigers Will Avoid Indian Buck Jumpers Hereafter.

Here is a story, current in the West, regarding the recent trip through that country of the Hamilton Tigers, who played the merry game of bucking the centre in various cities through that portion of the country. When jumping from one point to another the Tigers, of whom there was a good-sized party, were there was a good-sized party, were delayed by reason of a wreck ahead. The stop meant one of some hours, and time hung heavy on their hands. One member of the party finally discovered an Indian roaming about the little station, and entering into conversation, said son of the soil finally volunteered that he would ride a bucking horse for them for a consideration. The hat was handed round and $25 collected, and Mr. Indian went in quest of the horse. Half an hour later he was back with a dilapidated specimen of horsefiesh, upon there was a good-sized party, wer dated specimen of horseflesh, upon which sat jauntily enough a very fine saddle. Lo wanted some money in advance, and was finally given $12.50, being promised the remain-der of the $25 when he had finished his performance. However, it was at this point that the trouble began, for this point that the trouble began, for there wasn't a buck in that piece of horsefesh. There never had, apparently, been enough life in the brute to shake a child off its back, not to speak of the stalwart red man. Naturally enough the members of the Tiger team either wanted their money back or a real performance. But the Indian didn't see it that way. Finally one of the Tigers took the law in his one of the Tigers took the law in his own hands. He undid the saddle, which was a fine specimen, and not a all in accord with the horse, and told the Indian that when he produced a real bucking horse he could have the saddle, and in addition the remainder of the money collected for entertain-

The Indian murmured, turned and went his way, the saddle in the meantime remaining in the possession of the footballers. For an hour or so they waited, but no Indian appeared. However, in the course of time another man did appear. He wore a proced-brigmed hat, ton boots with another man did appear. He wore a broad-brimmed hat, top boots with spurs, a red coat and a pair of blue trousers, and on his shoulders were the magic letters, "R.N.W.M.P." He was business-like. He wanted to know the man who had taken a saddle, and he wanted the saddle, and he also wanted the man who had taken it. The Tigers, one and all, tried to explain. They were merely keeping the saddle as a ransom. But somehow saddle as a ransom. But somehow the fellow in the red coat was not appeased. The man who had taken that saddle was the receiver of stolen goods, and then came some light on the curious mix-up. The Indian in question didn't own a saddle, possibly never had owned one, and certainly had never owned so good a one as that now in possession of the Tigers. Poor Lo had, it seems, borrowed that saddle at a certain livery stable up the road when the owner was not about, and the lawful owner set the Northwest Mounted man on the trail to recover his property. The policethat saddle was the receiver of stoler Northwest Mounted man on the trail to recover his property. The policeman had traced it to the Indian in question, and from him to the Hamilton Tigers, hence the descent upon the train. Unnecessary to state, the Tigers gave the representative of the law back the stolen goods, and made all necessary apologies and explanations, and left that section of country less their $12.50, and wiser to the extent of not trusting an Indian nor monkeying with that arm of the law monkeying with that arm of the law known as the "R.N.W,M,P." Level of Prices Rises.

The Department of Labor index number of wholesale prices stood at 136.8 for October, 1913, as compared with 136.0 in September, 1913, and 135.0 for October last year, Corn, peas, Ontarlo barley, hay and bran were higher, but wheat, flaxseed, western oats and barley were lower. Cattle and beef were higher, but hogs and hog products continue to decline, all dairy products were 'higher except cheese. Fresh Canadian fruits and potatoes advanced, but imported fruits, beans, onions and canned regetables were lower. Record prices for jute and the highest price for cotton since 1911, raised the level of textiles. Copper, brass and lead were up, but steel, tin, quicksilver and silver were lower. Brooms were steeply up. Rope and raw rubber declined. In retail prices, meats, eggs, mik and butter were higher, but there was a general decline in potatoes as the crop came on the market. Beans, flour, rolled oats and sugar were upward. Level of Prices Rises.

Even so modern a city as Toronto has at least one landmark of dublous reputation. Paris has its Bastile, London its Tower, Oxford its St. Giles, Salem its Witch's Hill, and Toronto its pillory and stocks.

The punishment of lawbreakers by exposure to public scorn in the pillory and stocks goes back to early days. The law courts in Upper Canada

The law courts in Upper Canada a hundred years ago were surrounded with all the trappings and ceremonial of the highest courts in England. The population was but a mere handful, the court houses were rude log buildings, but the dignity of the courts must be respected, whatever or whoever else might suffer. There was a Vice-Chancellor and a Chief Justice in the court, one or both of whom was usually a knight or baronet, and Chief Justices and barristers galore, all direct importations from Lincoln's Inn, with an Attorney-General and Solicitor-General in the councils days. As far back as 1350 a statute was passed requiring the erection of stocks in every town in England for the punishment of persons convicted of fraud, perjury, libel, sedition and other infractions of the law, and for the correction of drunks and vagrants. More serious offences were treated with greater severity.

The stocks was at first used only for male offenders, and women were treated to the ducking-stool—a punishment which consisted in tying the culprit hand and foot to a stool, and either exposing her in some public place or ducking her in water. however, courtesans, common scolds and brawlers were put in the pillory and brawlers were put in the pillory and stocks.

In some cases the heads of the men were shaven and the hair of the women cut off, and the victims were left for hours or even days at a time to the tender mercies of the populace. # of punishment for women sentenced to Bridewell Jail. The pillory had many forms, but the design generally used in England consisted of a frame mounted on a wooden post fixed in a platform raised several feet above the ground, behind which the victim was compelled to stand, with his head and arms protruding through openings pelled to stand, with his head and arms protruding through openings made for them. The stocks was of a somewhat similar character, except that the legs were secured in the openings in the frame. In many places in England those two implements of punishment were combined with a whipping-post. As the pillory and stocks were the recognized forms of punishment in England until far into the eighteenth century, it was natural that they should be introduced into Upper Can-W. L. #### A Baby Bond as a Christmas Gift.

As a Christmas present for a child what could be better than a $100-6 p. c. Bond? We have prepared a table showing the swift and remarkable growth of $100 invested in this way for 21

You may see from this table how the habit of giving a boy each Christmas (commencing with the first) one of those socalled "Baby Bonds," and like-wise investing the proceeds, would result in the very comfort-able sum of $4,219.41 on his amount to assist him in starting for himself, but the fact of hav-ing received and wisely invested $100 every Christmas could not fail to inculcate in him an ap-preciation of the value of economy and thrift. For a little girl such a gift would be equally appropriate.

Would you like us to recommend (of course without obliga-tion) some suitable bonds for this purpose? If desired, they may be had on our convenient monthly ner.
