STOLE HIS DINNER.
This morning a lean, hungry looking dog started to inspect the new building which is being put up on Canterbury street by the Brown Paper concern. In his tour he discovered the place where the men place their lunch baskets. One of these he took and started, with it in his mouth. His flight was discovered and followed by a shower of bricks and language from the men on the building. One, to whom presumably the basket belonged, leaned away out over all the wall and shook his fist at the rapidly retreating animal, which was touching the roadway only here and there in its flight.

DEATH OF DR. BRIDGES' MOTHER.

The death of Mrs. Bridges, widow of the late H. Bridges of Sheffield, and mother of Dr. Bridges, superintendent of the St. John schools, occurred at Fredericton at 10 o'clock this morning. She had been ill for a considerable time of general debility, and a cold developed into congestion, causing death. Mrs. Bridges was 78 years old. Her husband died some twenty years ago. Besides Dr. Bridges of St. John she leaves another son, Inspector H. V. B. Bridges of Fredericton, and two daughters, Clark, who teaches in the primary department of the model school, and Besie, music teacher and organist in St. Paul's church. No arrangements have yet been made about the funeral, which will take place in Sheffield. Dr. Bridges goes up this evening.

The rain of yesterday did not extend above Grand Falls, and therefore will not help the lumbermen on the head waters of the St. John. Robert Alken has got 10,000,000 out of the Aroostook into the corporation limits above the falls, but there is not enough water to float them down over the falls, so they are practically hung up.

THE W. S. HARKINS CO.

A Great Play Last Night—The Little Minister This Evening—Very Successful Season.

At the Mechanics' Institute last evening, despite the heavy rain storm, a very large audience witnessed the admirable production by the W. S. Harkins Co. of Fedora, a Russian play of much force and interest. The roles were all carefully and naturally rendered, Miss Jessie Bonstelle excelling in the title role of Fedora. The part was specially adapted for her strong and soulful work, and as the plot unfolded itself, she entered more and more into the spirit of the play, carrying with her the entire interest and enthusiasm of the audience. In the last act the characters were particularly well taken, and many in the audience were moved to tears at the tragic ending. A large bouquet was presented to Miss Bonstelle, who has so completely won the admiration of St. John theatre goers that she will always receive a hearty welcome here. Emmet C. Kinn, as Boris Ipanoff, was particularly good, and his work in the last act was marked by great intensity and fervor. The bit of comedy in the play was very cleverly introduced by Miss Doris Cheever, who has a bright manner and charming stage presence. Her work was much appreciated, and won hearty applause. In fact all entered into this roles with such abandon that they were well worthy of the applause given.

Mr. Stuart, who made so very strong an impression in the play of Magda on Monday evening, as did in fact, every member of the company. The play Fedora, like Magda, is one involving very strong situations, and affording great opportunities for that display of varied emotions which is essential to the successful drama. Mr. Harkins has shown wisdom not only in his selection of a company, but in the choice of high class productions such as afford the greatest degree of pleasure to his audiences.

This afternoon Trilby was the bill, with crowded house, and this evening the season will close with that delightful drama, The Little Minister. It is to be hoped the company will soon return to St. John, for they are assured of a warm welcome.

INDIAN TOWN NOTES.

The high wind which has prevailed during the past few days has played havoc with the river fishing. It has been very poor at the best of times, but this morning scarcely any fish at all came down. Among the few who met with any success all in the right was Alfred Whelpley, of Carter's Point, who, today, brought to Indian town the two largest shad which have yet come down. They weighed over nine pounds each, and were bought by James Gales.

The G. D. Hunter today brought down a number of scow loads of lumber from Gibson's mill at Marysville. Several schooner loads of lumber have also arrived from different points.

The tug Fishburne, which with the Storm King, took Connolly's dredge to Port Mulgrave, reached Yarmouth last evening on return. She will probably arrive at Indian town tonight. The Storm King remains under the dredge.

The Lily E. Glasier is in the foot of the reach, where she was last night detained by the high winds. She is bringing down a raft from Springhill for Murray & Gregory, Bankers, St. John, and Billyard Brothers.

The Hercules this forenoon went up river to meet the tug Champion and Sea King, which are bringing down rats, and which are now wind bound in the reach.

A fine new dock boat, built for D. D. Glasier, by Shubel Carvel, was today sent adrift at Indian town.

The different steamers carried small freights and few passengers.

TOURIST MATTERS.

Mrs. Rupert E. Olive left on Tuesday to visit Moncton, Shediac, Newcastle, Chatham, Bathurst, Dalhousie and Campbellton, to interview hotel keepers and others in order to secure as full information as possible regarding resorts, fishing, accommodation, etc., to be placed on file at the tourist bureau shortly to be opened in the board of trade rooms, on Prince William street. On her return she will visit St. Martins for the same purpose. Hotels and boarding houses throughout the province, who have not yet replied to the call of the association, are requested to send in to the secretary as soon as possible any information respecting their houses, stating all the attractions they have to offer in the way of fishing, bathing, driving, boating, etc., all of which will be tabulated and made the best use of. Last week Mrs. Olive visited the valley and Halifax and met with a very hearty reception.

LOCKED OUT.

The New Brunswick Historical society was to have met last evening. When the members arrived they found the woman who has charge of the room sitting disconsolately on the steps eyeing a fragment of a latch key, which remained broken in the lock. A trial was made of the entire variety of keys in the possession of the members, but without success. It was decided to adjourn until a more convenient season, and next Tuesday evening was named.

THE LONDON BELLES.

Rose Rydell's London Belles will be at the Mechanics' Institute tomorrow evening and for the balance of the week. There is said to be a score of pretty girls and a number of vaudeville teams introducing very clever specialists. Among the specialists are the four Nelson sisters, famous acrobats; Hanley, McGowan and Hanley, comedians; the Esther sisters, Hart, Foster and Foster; Mitchell Campbell and Milledge; and LeClair, comedy juggler. A fine burlesque show is promised. The plan of seats is now open at R. J. Wilkins's store, Victoria Hotel block.

John E. Wilson, Keenan & Hatchford, Henry Crawford, H. S. Cosman, Elmer & Mitchell, and John Hamilton, stove dealers, have agreed to close their stores on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock in June, July and August.

STONE HOTEL ARRIVALS.

Four New Visitors—Another Settles and Leaves—Pitiful Ignorance.

Daniel O'Leary was arrested on the nineteenth for being drunk and assaulting his aged father in his house on North street. The father at that time was not able to appear in court owing to the injuries inflicted by his pitiful son and since his recovery, being unwilling to have Daniel punished very severely, has refrained from prosecuting. On account of this, Daniel was yesterday discharged from jail and immediately celebrated his good fortune in his usual manner. That is to say, he got drunk again. He was arrested and in court this morning showed evidence of his dissipation. The magistrate spoke to him in a very plain manner, and pointed out what a miserable creature he was to beat his father.

"Do you know the Ten Commandments?"

"A little."

"Do you know one which refers to one's parents, which speaks of the respect to be shown them?"

"I know it in Irish!"

"Well, tell it in Irish, we may understand it. What are you told to do in regard to honoring your parents?"

"Your honor, we are told 'ot to kill them, or beat them very badly.'"

For striking his father O'Leary was fined twenty dollars or two months, and for being a common drunk he got twenty or four months and in both cases took the months.

Regarding this case the magistrate spoke very strongly about those habitual drunkards, fellows who are absolutely no good, and who in future will, under the Dominion act, be treated as common vagrants and given the full penalty. The police were instructed to keep their eyes open for such characters and to report when any one of them was arrested.

William Dixon, colored, was given in charge by his wife, Emma Dixon, for assaulting and beating her in their house on Wentworth street. Mrs. Dixon's eyes were swollen and discolored and her face otherwise marked, but in spite of this ill-treatment, she begged that her husband be not severely punished, but only warned. He had struck her in the face in the afternoon and had beaten her again in the evening. Dixon stated that in so doing he was not purposely following the example lately set by a number of white people. He is employed on the waterworks in Carleton, but will not go back to work there for two months.

William Joyce, of Ireland, and Oscar Ekberg, of Sweden, came to the city on one of the steamers a few days ago and are registered at the central station. They were found on Sheffield street last night, laboring under an overdose of O. V. G., and the impression that they were going on board a ship. In the latter they were mistaken. They are not going on board their ship for three weeks.

Another drunk from Indian town, who is not in the habit of overdoing the thing, and who has never before appeared, paid his bill of two dollars and went home.

In the Cunningham-Hennessy assault case, another witness, John Collins, was examined, but failed to throw any additional light on the identity of the man. The police are looking for Kelly, Jim Kelly, James Kelly, Jimmy Kelly, and Mr. Kelly. The whole affair seems a farce, as no case has yet been made against anyone.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Between nine and ten o'clock last night a young man at present boarding on Duke street, attempted suicide by taking one of the most marvelous mixtures ever concocted. On account of the circumstances surrounding the incident, names are withheld from publication. It appears that the young fellow, who is a laborer, has lately been worried about a debt which occurred in his family, and this, together with other minor matters, prompted the deed which might have terminated fatally. He is not an educated man, otherwise the mixture taken might have included some more powerful drugs than those used, for on the shelf along with the other bottles were two with creosote and carbolic acid. The man was, however, unable to read the labels, and consequently missed the ones which would have proved most effective. The mixture he did take was made up of honey, baby's spring medicine, codlinal, castor oil, gin, castor oil, ammonia and menthol liniment. A doctor and clergyman were at once sent for, and with a dose of castor oil and very little trouble the young man soon recovered from the effects of his intended poison. He was this morning able to go to work and is now feeling quite well.

NOT DEAD YET.

William Roop, who was reported to have died suddenly yesterday, wishes to observe that he is still very much alive. In conversation with a Star reporter this morning Mr. Roop said "you may state that in spite of all rumors to the contrary, I am still living. Death often comes unexpectedly, without a moment's warning, but if I died yesterday I have not yet been made aware of the fact. For my age there is not a healthier nor heartier man in St. John, and I never felt better in my life than I do at present. I have much pleasure in stating that I did not die last night."

Mr. Roop cannot conjecture how the rumor started.

Paterson; a big bouquet of calla lilies tied with white ribbon, from the employees at Paterson's; a bouquet of lilies from Mr. Pauley, a pillow of pink and white roses and carnations from the pall bearers and a bouquet of roses and carnations from her girl friends in Paterson's.

BACK FROM WOLFVILLE.

Mayor Atkinson, Mrs. Atkinson and E. C. Cole and W. F. Ferguson of Moncton spent Sunday at Wolfville, says the Transcript. The visitors state that the outlook for the fruit crop this season is better than at any other time since 1888. The variety is one mass of blossoms. While absent Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson attended the regatta in Acadia college given by two New Brunswick ladies, Miss Lounsbury of Newcastle and Miss Cole of Dorchester. These ladies take leading rank as musical students.

THE FINE STANDS.

At Hampton recently thirty young men were fined by Magistrate Fiers for disturbing a Salvation Army meeting. R. LeB. Tweedie appealed to the supreme court for a writ of certiorari. This was opposed by F. and S. W. Palmer. Judge McLeod heard the arguments some days ago and has now dismissed the application. The fine of $5 and $4.50 costs against each defendant therefore stands. Two had already paid it and two had left the place.
