ST. JOHN STAR.

ST. JOHN, N. B., FEBRUARY 14, 1910.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY.

The fourteenth of February is widely observed as an occasion on which good wishes should be extended, and compliments passed to friends and acquaintances. Today the observation generally takes the form of a distribution of cards of greeting and, on the part of the rising generation of highly colored monstrosities conveying suggestions anything but complimentary to the recipients. The original meaning of the celebration has been lost to a large extent, and rarely is the found an adherence to the old custom of making useful gifts to one's acquaintances by friendly visit. Yet indeed the true nature of the observance of St. Valentine's Day has always been more or less uncertain. There were many saints by the name of Valentine, or Valentines. One, a teacher and martyr of Rome, was beheaded by Calpurnius on February 14th; another, Bishop of Terni, performed many miraculous cures and gave his life for his faith. He too died on February 14th, and from this martyrdom of one or both of these the observance of St. Valentine's Day now comes. There is a contention that our word Valentine is derived from the old French "valentinus," which this day, set apart by ancient custom for the exchange of vows of love, is obviously appropriate enough.

A NOTABLE SERVICE.

The evangelistic campaign could be regarded as a marked success if it accomplished nothing more than make possible such a meeting as was held in the Centenary Church on Saturday evening. Perhaps to those who are directing the services and who have shared in the enthusiasm of other cities there was nothing remarkable in a gathering of two thousand men and women for the purpose of singing gospel hymns. To St. John folk who know their town, the event was truly inspiring. In this city, where the love of music is general, congregational singing is deplorably poor. People who can sing, won't sing, as stand in stolid silence at their own church services, worshipping by proxy, by means of paid choirs. It is easier to build a fire of wet wood than to make the musical people of St. John open their mouths.

Yet on Saturday evening they got busy. Nearly all of them sang—those who did not were hard to find—and they sang not as an unmotivated crowd yelling any old way, but as one vast chorus under capable leadership. Such music, such subdued enthusiasm and such earnestness has never previously been heard or seen here. Verses after verses were sung with a hesitancy, and a depth of expression which, to those sadly cognizant of the muteness of the ordinary congregation, was indeed a revelation. And the people meant it, too. They were not out for fun, nor were they impelled by any passing religious fervor. There was everywhere strong evidence of a sincerity of purpose, a yielding to the power of music. The immense congregation responded as one voice to the demands of the conductor, old hymns became new, new ones grew familiar, and to the simplest melodies there was given a charm of expression which could not fail to impress even the most insensitive. It was in many respects the grandest musical event in the history of St. John—and better is still to come.

AN AWAKENING.

The action of the M.P.A.A. in suspending and professionalizing those hockey players who have openly violated the principal rule of amateurism will be commended by all true followers of sport. The only regret is that for various unfortunate causes, this action was not taken years ago. Had it been New Brunswick hockey might now be at a higher standard. This habit of engaging players on salary, and lying about the facts, has been going on far too long. It has not been the monopoly of any one team or league, but has been general throughout the province, and it might be added that those teams which offend least, have been the ones with the poorest backing. The number of professional players in most clubs have been limited only by the available cash. While there may have been some teams strictly amateur in so far as their own members were concerned, these have been so few that professionalism may be said to have been general.

Under previous administration the M.P.A.A. appeared to be an extremely uncertain organization. The new officers have taken a step which raises the status of the governing body to its proper place, and it is to be hoped that the sentiment which has led to this latest move will be sufficiently strong to insist on the exclusion of professionals from not only from hockey but from all other sports.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

Have you absolute repose of manner?
If you have you are one in a hundred.
Or maybe a thousand would be closer.
For it sometimes seems to me that repose of manner is a thing that is not to be had by the girls of today.

"More repose of manner, Ruthie, more repose of manner," an old aunt of mine used to say to me when I was a nervous little girl, appalled from haseok to high back chair and back again in her stiff old parlor.

And though I had but a vague idea of what the words meant at the time, I used to make up my mind that it must be something very objectionable if Aunt Julia urged it and that I would take care never to have it.

But I've changed my mind now.

I sat beside a girl in a car yesterday. She was a pretty girl, well dressed and refined-looking. She was talking vivaciously to her companion in a voice that for a wonder was fairly well modulated. To judge from the fragments that floated my way, she was saying, rather interesting things.

She sat well, way back in the seat, erect, and with her feet squarely on the floor instead of crossed in the undignified fashion so many of the young girls of the present day affect.

Her appearance and manner might have been perfect but for one thing. She wore a tiny locket on a little fold chain and continually as she talked she twisted and twirled it round and played with the chain and its trinket. Never for an instant did the restless motion cease.

Just a mannerism?
Yes, but it showed she did not have that final charm that would have been a crown for all the rest-repose of manner.

The other day I turned instinctively to look after a girl who had passed me on the street. For a moment I hardly knew what it was that had attracted my attention and made me look after her, and then all at once I realized that the thing that made her distinctive in the crowd was simply and solely the fact that she was not hurrying.

She was moving easily and gracefully. I do not mean sauntering nor even walking extremely slowly; just not rushing. And from her calm movements, made so noticeable by the scurry of the crowd, it seemed to me as if I could almost see peace and repose radiating.

How many minutes do you suppose those who rushed by her gained over her by their hurried movements?

Five minutes in an hour, perhaps.

And how much nerve force do you think they lost?

Well, I don't know whether to measure sure force by inches or pounds or volts or bushels, so I can't tell you exactly, but I'm pretty sure that it was entirely disproportionate to the time gained.

Now do you understand me, and do you suppose of manner with languidness.

It is just as far from that as it is from heedlessness and nervous haste. The anxious, restless girl who never moves quickly and is too lifeless toidget, does not possess repose of manner.

Repose of manner is the result of perfect physical energy and vigorous health and mental liveliness and strong passions all in perfect harmony and under perfect control.

All the colors combined make white.

All the energies combined make balance from which comes the perfect repose of manner.

And now I'm wondering what Aunt Eliza would say if she knew that her small niece who used toidget from haseok to highback chair and back again were actually writing on "repose of manner."

The snowfall of Saturday's storm amounted to 4 1/2 inches. The snow was followed by rain and a sudden drop in temperature which combined to cover the streets with a glaze of ice making travelling difficult. The wind freshened into a heavy gale with a maximum velocity of 70 miles per hour. Saturday night between ten o'clock and midnight there was a rapid rise and fall in the temperature. Between 10 p.m. and 11:45 p.m. the temperature rose from 29 degrees to 38 and by midnight had fallen to 30. Yesterday the highest temperature was 28 degrees, and the lowest 18.

A COLUMN FOR WOMEN

Household : Hints

Dried lemon peel sprinkled over coals will destroy any disagreeable odor in the house.

Hot biscuits, generously buttered and spread with currant jelly are delicious served with game.

Waterlike slices of bread, spread with caviare, sprinkled with lemon juice and salt, make tasty sandwiches.

Lace washed in skimmed milk should not be rinsed in water, but should be ironed while still damp with the milk.

A better iron rest than the ordinary metal stand is a greibrock, as it does not cool the iron so rapidly.

Combs will soon warp and break if washed with water. They should be cleaned with a good, stiff, dry toothbrush or nailbrush.

Use paraffin paper which lines biscuit boxes to polish flatirons. It is also a good lining for the cake tin.

Clean copper by rubbing it with lemon dipped in salt. Rinse in clear hot water and polish with a soft cloth.

Banging the oven door is responsible for half the heavy bread and cake. The door should be closed very gently.

Shredded chocolate coconut, which is bought already prepared, makes a tasty addition to different kinds of salad.

For spring suppers sliced oranges and shredded coconut, put into a dish in alternate layers, is very appetizing.

A delicious jelly is made of gelatine flavored with grape juice and served with blanched nuts and whipped cream.

Though steam heat is cleaner generally than a furnace, it will soil the drapes and walls much more, especially if the radiators are placed close to the wall or under the windows.

Fashions and Fads

Black and deep blue velvet have been constantly reverted to as becoming contrasts in Paris neckwear.

Some of the white leghions which are being seen at southern resorts have the brims faced with black.

Handwork more elaborate than ever before is shown to advantage on coats and gowns of wash materials.

Not only are nets, caisses and grenadines seen with beads, but also the velvets, satins and brocades.

In a handsome pair of beaded suede slippers, the openwork design is particularly filled in with the beads.

Some of the theatre bachelors are of silver net work, with a great raised flower on tarnished metal.

Silk and cotton, and silk and linen mixtures are to be more in evidence than they have ever been before.

Hip yokes with plaited skirts blow them are very much in evidence in the newest gowns made for the south.

Adaptations of their usual blouse will be seen in many of the school frocks for young girls this spring.

Large silver buttons are the fastenings on a smart separate coat of small shepherd plaid in black and white.

Gause with a contrasting color for lining is resorted to often for elaborate effect in both gowns and coats.

Velvet in black and deep rich tones is very much in favor for formal gowns, especially for walking suits.

Square or oblong buckles of marquise, matching one's evening gown in color, are an effective adjunct to many a costume.

Narrow bands of fur are being used for the collar, chinchilla for bracelets and sable for blouses being the usual choice.

UNDER ASSUMED NAME.
CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 12.—Playing under an assumed name is now legal avoidance of the rules of organized baseball. Luigi di Palma, an Italian convict, died yesterday in Dorchester penitentiary, ignorant of the fact that his pardon and an order for his release had been received from the Department of Justice. Di Palma was serving a term of three years for larceny committed at Chippewa. His death was caused by malaria. At the time of his conviction he was employed on the G. T. P. construction work. Arrangements for his funeral will be made later.

LADIES' SEMI-PRINCES DRESS

PARIS PATRONS No. 218

All seams Allow.

There are many attractive features to recommend this design to ladies who are already beginning to plan their summer wardrobes. Among these may be mentioned the pretty little chemise, which may be made with or without the standing collar, the handkerchief revers, the rich fronts and the very odd and picturesque sleeve. As shown in the large view the dress is made of blue and white flannel, with white hand-embroidered lining lawn for the chemise, handkerchief revers and standing collar. The closing of the dress is made at the left side-front seam, and the attached nine-sided skirt has an inverted box pleat at the back. The two-seamed sleeve is a clever arrangement for their own cuffs below the elbow fulness. Collar, silk, satin, nua velling, voile, mohair, lawn, linen, poplin, gingham or percale may be used for the development of this model. The pattern is cut in seven sizes—32 to 44 inches bust measure. For 38 bust the dress requires 6 7/8 yards of material 36 inches wide, with 5 3/4 yards of linen 36 inches wide for collar and chemise. Width at lower edge about 3 1/4 yards.
