Woman and Her Work

"You know we always pay for what we get" - said a friend who lives happily and even hilariously on a very narrow income...

I do not believe there exists another such demoralizer as debt! It seems to lead to everything else, and change the self-respecting man or woman into a creature devoid of every moral virtue...

Three thousand years ago a wise man said that "the borrower is slave to the lender" and the conditions against which he warned mankind have not changed greatly since then...

Speaking of the under petticoat as a necessary part of feminine apparel, Mr. George Samson of Dickens farm, once remarked that though it was not a garment to be mentioned in public we knew it was there...

Of course, for evening wear and with light summer dresses, nothing has been found so far, to take the place of the well starched, and elaborately tucked and flounced white skirt...

But apart from the necessities of the summer wardrobe, the ambition of every well regulated and fashionable matron and maid seems to be to have all her garments, except just her dress skirt, cling as closely to the figure as possible...

It is not only the wife either, who is the sufferer for the children of a man who always owes money seldom grow up quite honest and straightforward...

are adepts at giving evasive answers to unwelcome visitors long before they can do a sum in simple multiplication. They soon learn to distinguish the appearance of the man who has called to collect that little bill...

I do not mean for one moment the struggling man whose cares and responsibilities have been too much for him, and who either from sickness or some other misfortune has gradually fallen behind, until he finds it impossible to retrieve the ground he has lost...

We don't often talk about our underclothes when discussing questions of dress and fashion; and yet these garments are just as indispensable as the smartest of tailor made costumes...

donned instead of the silk bloomers, come a pair of woolen knickerbockers made in every respect like a man's golf trousers, except that they are hung on a yoke; they are not very full, and hook smooth and flat on the hip, buttoning around the knees where they bag slightly...

When summer comes the woman of fashion exchanges her woolen or silk tights for similar ones of lisle thread, and the silk bloomers are worn all the time, instead of merely indoors. They are shown in shades of silk, and are usually made of the new ribbon serge that washes and wears like Irish linen, and comes in dark green, dark blue, and red.

The result of this wonderful innovation is a wonderful reduction in the price of petticoats, and the handsomest silk skirts are being sold at bargain prices.

In fact the trouser habit bids fair to spread and grow exceedingly, now that it has taken root in the land. The fine lady wears them because they are the newest thing out, and she can have them made as expensively as she likes, the working girl wears them because she can buy them quite cheaply if she knows the right place to go, and they do not wear out as quickly as petticoats, besides being so much warmer and easier to walk in.

So altogether it looks very much as if the once sacred petticoat was really doomed to become obsolete and have its place taken by the convenient, if unpoetical trouser. Here is a charming costume quite worthy of description. The material was silk of a delicate silver grey striped with lines of pink, and barred across with a darker shade of gray. The skirt was quite plain, but the bodice had a gump of pale blue chiffon with a full ruche of lace at the throat. A lace fichu was drawn about the shoulders in bertha fashion, below the gump, and knotted on the bosom, a pointed belt of grey velvet confined the full blouse front, and the sleeves of the same silk came just to the elbows, and were finished with frills of lace.

GOOD WOMAN - BAD HEART. When could the life of a loved one be more uncertain than when attacked by heart disease? If you have a hint of it have Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart Always on Hand. It is the only remedy which can relieve you in 30 minutes and cure you permanently.

"This is to certify that my wife has been a sufferer from heart disease for over twenty years. After having tried doctors and remedies innumerable without benefit I procured two bottles of Dr. Agnew's Cure for the Heart, and she has received more benefit from it than from all the doctors and all the cures used heretofore. I am pleased to certify to the excellence of this wonderful remedy."

AARON NICHOLS, Peterboro, Smith Tp. TIPPING GENERAL SHERIDAN. How he Heard two Persons Discussing Himself. The Washington Star prints a story which General Sheridan used to tell at his own expense, and which, according to the Star, he intended to incorporate in his autobiography. It relates to the time, toward the end of his life, when he was in Washington as the head of the army.

In the guide-books of Washington there is a description of the office of the general, or, as it is known, the headquarters of the army in the War Department. It is stated in this connection that the office is generally open to the public, and that visitors to the city are welcome to inspect it, at least during office hours.

Once General Sheridan was very busy preparing or revising some official reports. He had kept the messengers generally stationed at the outer door of his office running around at a rather lively rate to his various subordinates, and for the moment there was no one at the door, when in marched a couple of visitors, a respectable-looking man and a lady, armed with a guide-book. The general did not welcome the intrusion, but they did not know it, for he kept steadily at work.

They examined the pictures on the walls, and especially a marble bust of the general which had just been placed in position. "So that is General Phil Sheridan?" said the man to his wife. "Well, no one would ever think that man was such a fighter. To me he looks a little top-heavy - has too much head for his body."

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cures

Fergus, April 6, 1894 To Robert Phillips, Druggist, Fergus, Ont. This is to certify that I have suffered from piles for a long time and tried several articles recommended for this complaint, but none of them benefited me till I tried Chase's Ointment, which has completely cured me. Mrs. JOHN GERRIE, R. Phillips, Jr., Druggist & Witness.

"My six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the principal seat of eruption being behind her ears. I tried almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought innumerable medicines and soaps, and took the child to medical specialists in skin diseases, but without result. Finally, a week ago, I purchased a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the first application showed the curative effect of the Remedy. We have used only one-sixth of the box, but the change is very marked; the eruption has all disappeared, and I can confidently say my child is cured."
